ROSENWALD DIES; MOURNED

SCHOOL BOARD TO CUT PAY OF 1,513 TEACHERS

3½ Million Savings Made in Budget.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The school board subcommittee on budget decided yesterday to trim the salaries of 1,513 so-called bonus teachers, eliminate appropriations for about 355 other teachers completely, shut down all vacation schools, curtail the evening schools still further, and cut off sick leave pay.

The trustees reduced proposed expenditures $3,433,186, on the recommendation of Supt. Bogan. Then they pruned $150,000 more on their own judgment. Previously items totaling $1,172,435 had been thrown out of the budget. Altogether an aggregate of $4,755,621 has been pared out of the educational fund budget. To get a balanced budget $3,971,000 more must be removed. Supt. Bogan was instructed to report Friday afternoon how that can be accomplished with the least injury.

Pay Savings Is $277,000.

The saving on salary reductions of 1,513 "bonus" teachers was estimated by the superintendent at $277,525. The superintendent's plan also contemplates elimination of overtime for principals and assistant principals. He prefaced his recommendations with a statement in which he asserted he had not lowered the "basic salary schedule."

A list of the teachers whose salaries will be reduced was not made available, but the following table shows the approximate number, together with the cut per individual in each group:

Teachers—	Number	Yearly pay cut.
Manual training	232	$250
Household arts	238	200
Physical education	226	250
Crippled children	93	175
Eighth grade	411	100
Anaemic children	66	100
Blind children	28	50
Deaf children	56	175
Delinquent children	15	....
Critic teachers	20	200
Deans in schools	49	200-600
Teachers in homes	22	200

It was estimated that the elimination of pay for "extended day," heretofore paid principals and assistant principals, will affect 372 other instructors. So that a total of approximately 1,885 will have reduced incomes during 1932.

The elimination of the equivalent of 355 teachers is accomplished by the superintendent recommending a reduction of $1,035,000 for instruction due to expansion of the system. The teachers who normally would be hired will be forgotten, which in turn will increase the pupil load on the teachers now at work.

Other Economies Proposed.

Then the superintendent estimated that $500,000 a year will be saved by closing all schools on Saturdays, including saving on coal. He would also reduce the engineers' supplies $40,000, eliminate $80,000 in wages to the assistant engineers, save $100,000 more on fuel and get a $60,000 economy in reducing overtime.

He would eliminate free bus service for all normal pupils, art students who visit the Art institute and still other items which would reduce the appropriation for transportation by $29,200.

The superintendent suggested the closing of the parental school for 2½ months, the Moseley and Montefiore Truant schools for two months for a total saving of $57,709. By closing the vacation schools he would gain $170,350, and he suggested trimming an additional $100,000 off the evening schools.

Cut Fund for Supplies.

Mr. Bogan thought that $730,982 might be safely trimmed out of the allowance for educational supplies. By shortening continuation schools, the superintendent estimated $152,420 more in savings.

The board set up $250,000 to pay sick leave of teachers. The superintendent recommended a reduction of $100,000, but the trustees decided to wipe the total $250,000 out of the budget.

School Trustee Savage predicted at the morning session that the school board will not be able to get any money for six months. He believes that if the schools continue to operate until July, it will be with payless paydays and with coal, books, other supplies, and equipment obtained on credit.

Whether the teachers, janitors, and other employés, to whom the board now owes $24,147,040, can go without compensation for another six months is problematical.

SENATE PASSES ASSESSING BILL; HOUSE FRIENDLY

Income Tax Rumpus Brings Threat.

House in all day debate on amendments to income tax bill increased exemptions to $1,500 for single men and $3,500 for married men. Details on page 6.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Sweeping through with only one negative vote the Kelly plan to revise Cook county's tax assessing machinery — key measure of the governor's conference—passed the senate today by a vote of 48 to 1. James B. Leonardo, a Republican from Chicago's 20th ward, was the dissenting member.

JAMES H. LEONARDO.

That this contentious plank in the revenue relief platform, highly political in character because it involved ousting office holders, was put through the upper chamber with so overwhelming a majority was considered a great victory for those pushing it. Both Mayor Cermak and Gov. Emmerson lent it support and their influence will likely be felt in the house next Tuesday when that body begins consideration of its passage.

While the senate was passing the bill in the amended form, brought about by numerous holiday conferences in Chicago, Representative Homer J. Tice [Rep., Greenview] sponsored the same amendments across the hall. They were adopted with no serious objections.

Governor Aiding Program.

The governor indicated today that he will push it and the tax conference program as a whole. He has taken no position on the funding bills now being drawn. It now seems likely, however, that if any funding is sought it will aim to lift only the 1930 levy in Cook county, spreading it over a long period, probably twenty years, by a $268,000,000 bond issue. Farther than that the assemblymen seem unwilling to go.

Downstate threats to oppose "everything" Chicago wants in the way of relief legislation were made when the senate reconvened late in the afternoon and word reached it that the income tax bill had been "kicked around" in the house. Andrew S. Cuthbertson [Rep., Bunker Hill] led the attack.

"If Cook county is going to treat us like this," he shouted, "I say that it is time for us to tell her, 'Your program is going no farther. We're through.'

"At the very moment the Kelly plan was being rushed to the house so it could be acted upon an organized bloc over there, including the speaker, who owes his election to downstate as much as anything else, was put in motion to defeat everything that downstate wants."

Threaten Chicago Program.

"The Chicago program is at an end," cried Louis H. Hanna [Rep., Monmouth]. "That's just as plain to me as anything could be."

"Furthermore,'" continued Cuthbertson, "I want THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to publish a retraction of what I said yesterday. I said then that I would help Chicago if Chicago wanted the 1930 tax levy refunded. I feel differently now."

No debate preceded the senate roll call today. Arthur A. Huebsch [Rep., Brookfield] asked that the bill be called on third reading and explained its provisions briefly.

Formulated at a conference between the governor, Mayor Cermak, influential legislators, newspaper publishers, and other officials, the measure abolishes the present boards of five assessors and three reviewers, replacing them by one assessor and two reviewers, the latter being known as the board of appeals. The governor and President Emmett Whealan of the Cook county board will choose the assessor and each official also picks one of the reviewers. Township assessors are retained as deputy county assessors, their salaries to be fixed by the county board.

Downstate Watches Chicago.

"I urge its passage," said Huebsch, when he had finished explaining the bill. The roll call began.

It had progressed through almost a

Governor May Step Aside for Custer Today

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Persistent rumors about Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's attitude toward his chances for a second term reached another climax tonight when it became noised about that he has determined not to run again and has agreed to back Omer N. Custer, chairman of the state tax commission, for the Republican nomination.

One report, which has every appearance of authenticity, was that a final conference was held tonight and that a formal announcement will be made probably tomorrow or, at the latest, before the end of the week. One of the subjects of the conference was said to be the question of the form the announcement will take.

Details Not Settled.

One suggestion has been that Gov. Emmerson will state that he will not be a candidate in the April primary and at the same time will indorse Custer. Another has been that it might be better strategy if Custer should announce his candidacy for himself and then, later, Emmerson should follow with an indorsement.

This afternoon it was learned that Gov. Emmerson, Chairman Custer and George F. Harding of Chicago had been in conference. Following this meeting Harding returned to Chicago, but about dinner time Custer, accompanied by his close associate, Garrett Kinney, director of finance, disappeared in the direction of the executive mansion.

Rumored for Months.

Belief that Custer would be the Emmerson candidate if the governor decided to step aside has been current for months. Custer has been active in state politics for many years. He served one term as state treasurer and has been chairman of the tax commission for one year. His home is in Galesburg, where he is engaged in banking, newspaper, and hotel interests.

THREE FIREMEN BATTLING LOOP FIRE OVERCOME

Three firemen were overcome by smoke while fighting a fire early this morning in the Hofherr meat market at 439-45 South Clark street. Two were revived on the scene and the third, James Whelan of engine 21, was taken to St. Luke's hospital.

The blaze started from spontaneous combustion between the walls and did $2,000 damage, Fire Marshal Michael Corrigan said. Most of the damage was by smoke. To get at the blaze concrete smashers were used.

Another early morning fire was in the first floor plant of the Industrial Sheet Metal company at 162 West Kinzie street.

100 MILLION ESTATE SHRINKS TO 8½ MILLION

Cleveland, O., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Under the influence of unfavorable economic conditions, the estate of the late Samuel Mather, estimated to be worth $100,000,000 in prosperous days, has dwindled in dollar value to $8,500,000, the executors disclosed today.

Mather, prominent industrialist and capitalist, died at his home here several months ago after bequeathing about $3,000,000 to numerous institutions and charities. The rest of the estate was left to descendants.

The executors, however, filed the will for probate today, together with their sworn estimate of the estate's value. As a further check of their evaluation, they asked the court to appoint three men to make an additional appraisal.

Personal property in the estate consists of stocks, bonds, money, notes, an interest in the firm of Pickands, Mather & Co., and miscellaneous assets, and is worth $3,000,000, the executors said. The rest of the estate consists of real estate.

Wife and Clothes Stolen; He Wants Clothes Back

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—S. C. Adkins, who described himself as the perfect host, today registered an official complaint against a former guest, by name Logan King.

Adkins swore out a warrant charging King with the larceny of $40 worth of clothing. He took the warrant to state police headquarters and informed the desk sergeant.

"By the way, that guy also stole my wife. And they drove away to Ohio. I want my good clothes back."

Union Bans Private Cars at Funerals

Notice was given yesterday that starting Monday privately owned automobiles are not welcome in funeral cortéges. It was stated that mourners who do not ride in the cars furnished by morticians and driven by union chauffeurs cannot drive their own cars in the procession, but must meet the funeral party at the cemetery.

This action was decided upon by the teamsters and chauffeurs' union as a means of furnishing more employment and "to save the time of the union drivers." The morticians are asked to cooperate.

Notice Sent Liverymen.

"We sent a notice to the Chicago Motor Liverymen's association that the practice of having privately owned automobiles in funeral cortéges will cease," said William Kerrigan, secretary of the International Teamsters and Chauffeurs' union, local No. 727. "We stated that the drivers of these private cars are a nuisance, a menace to the public, and are causing unemployment in our organization. The present membership of funeral drivers is 250 where formerly it was 1,200.

"An important thing is that usually our drivers make two trips to cemeteries each day, one in the morning and again in the afternoon. The hearse and the regular funeral limousines are usually ready to leave as soon as the casket is carried out by the pallbearers. Then there is constant delay while they are forced to wait for all the other machines to be occupied. In many instances this prevents the driver's return from a morning funeral in time to make an afternoon trip."

Holds Rate Is Reasonable.

Kerrigan declared that the livery autos provide comfort and safety, with all passengers protected by insurance, at a reasonable rate. He added that the union was not attempting to prevent private autos from going to the cemetery by another route.

The Chicago Funeral Directors' association, at a meeting in the Hotel Sherman last night, appointed a committee to represent them at the meeting of the Liverymen's association called for tomorrow night. J. T. Kelly, secretary of the liverymen, said that he would confer with Thomas M. Crane, his president today, and that a decision on the demand would be made tomorrow.

German Jobless Raise Barricade; Fight Police

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Police broke up two communist meetings in Berlin tonight and arrested 175 persons. Demonstrations by unemployed were reported from other parts of Germany. In Homberg trees were felled and a barricade formed from which the demonstrators fired on police. There were no casualties. There were numerous arrests in Theinhausen, where the police were stoned.

U. S. Tax Pays for 'Love Life of Bullfrogs'

Pest eradication, one of Uncle Sam's methods of disposing of the tax payers' money, is the subject of Arthur S. Henning's dispatch on page 5 of this paper.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—The house today decided its members could get along with only one room each in the house office building. It voted, 234 to 133, to reduce the first deficiency bill providing funds to complete the new annex from $760,000 to $60,000.

SENATOR PAT HARRISON. [Fotograms.]

In the senate, usually so much more dignified, it was the love life of bullfrogs and how to dress for sun bathing, as Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.], pleading for government economy, argued that at least government pamphlets dealing with these erudite subjects could be dispensed with in time of depression.

"I will now," he declared sententiously, "refer to some of these striking bulletins that were issued last year at great cost. First, I refer to some issued by the department of agriculture: 'Utilization of calcium in spinach.' No doubt that will relieve many farmers who are in distress.

"Bringing Up Bobby."

"'Lamb as you like it,' 'reindeer recipes,' 'bringing up Bobby,' 'The use of metric system in nutrition.'" [Laughter.]

"'Principles of window curtaining,' which says that curtains are used to keep out the light sometimes.

"'Children's rompers.' They have pictures in this one. It is a beautiful thing and it tells you not to fit them too tight.

"'How to dress for a sun bath.' Now that is a wonderful thing. When I was a boy I did not dress for a sun bath.

"'Where sheets wear out.'"

There was laughter from the galleries.

Where to Make Love.

"'A study of housing in relation to family development.' There is a document telling how to live at home, and one of these questions, as I read it, tells you which room to use for love making."

The Mississippi senator skipped to department of labor publications. Genially, he smiled over at former Secretary Davis, now senator from Pennsylvania.

"Here is a good one," he went on. "It was prepared by a man, but I don't think my friend there from Pennsylvania wrote this one. It is called 'Breast-feeding demonstrations.'

"Wonderful Literature."

"Great information that we are getting out! Why, they even have one that tells of the love adventures of the American bullfrog. It tells how courageous he is, and that as he and his fair Juliet sit in the sun rays upon some old log in an old lonesome river, at the first approach of footsteps or noises the old masculine part of the company jumps off ahead of time to notify the fair damsel that she must get out of danger. It tells you that when this bullfrog is in love and mating, he croaks or makes a noise—wonderful piece of literature!" [Laughter.]

Then, said the senator, there was one on a cat trap, and the department of agriculture, as he understood, was preparing "to build a statue to the American pig."

Makes Him Favor Cuts.

It was things like that, said the senator, that made him willing to vote for a cut in the pay of federal employés.

He likened the magnificence of the new department of commerce building to that of Solomon's temple.

The American people, he declared, were more aroused than ever in their history over the matter of government extravagance. It was up to congress, he insisted, to cut every department 10 per cent, and do it arbitrarily if department and bureau heads declined to coöperate.

FEAR RELAPSE IN CONDITION OF JUDGE KAVANAGH

Superior Judge Marcus Kavanagh was under the constant attendance of physicians in his room last night at the Auditorium hotel. The fear was expressed by Dr. Louis E. Schmidt and Dr. George Coleman that pneumonia might develop in the patient. The judge was suffering from a severe attack of influenza Tuesday when he fell as he was leaving his courtroom in the county building and struck his head. The injury to his head was not serious but the physicians said that his general physical condition was low. Judge Kavanagh is 72 years old and is the dean of Cook county judges, having served on the Superior bench since 1898.

PHILANTHROPIST TO BE BURIED IN PRIVATE TODAY

End Comes After a Long Illness.

GIVE AND SPEND.

"I believe that more good can be accomplished by expending funds as trustees find opportunity for constructive work than by storing up large sums of money for long periods of time."

"Perpetuity means eternity. No one in history has been able to establish a trust that has endured even for a thousand years."

"Those who seek by perpetuities to create for themselves a kind of immortality will fail, because no institution can live forever."

—MR. ROSENWALD'S PHILOSOPHY.

Julius Rosenwald died in his sleep at 2:55 o'clock yesterday afternoon. His widow and five children were at the bedside at the Rosenwald home in Ravinia as Dr. Herbert Pollack, attending physician, announced that the 69 year old philanthropist and capitalist was dead.

Immediately after the death, Lessing Rosenwald, a son, issued a statement which embodied Mr. Rosenwald's own ideas concerning funeral services. The statement read:

"Prior to his death, Mr. Rosenwald expressed a wish that the funeral services be limited to members of his immediate family and that there be no flowers. His family expects his friends to cooperate in making this possible."

Burial to Be Private.

Carrying out these wishes for privacy which were said by Mr. Rosenwald's intimate friends to be typical of his retiring nature, Lessing Rosenwald said last night that the funeral will be held today, but that the nature of the services, the time, the place where they will be held, and the place of burial will not be announced to the public. The body was removed to H. F. Kelley's mortuary in Highland Park, where it was prepared for burial.

The formal death notice stated: "Funeral services will be strictly private and at the convenience of the family."

Many Send Condolences.

As soon as news of the death was flashed on the wires by waiting correspondents scores of telegrams expressing condolences began pouring into the mansion in Roger Williams avenue, Ravinia, where the Rosenwald estate was situated. It was learned that President Hoover had personally telephoned the Rosenwald home ten days ago to inquire concerning Mr. Rosenwald's condition, and that queries from the White House had been received several times since then.

Those present at the bedside were the widow, Mrs. Adelaide Rosenwald; Lessing Rosenwald and William Rosenwald of Philadelphia, sons; Mrs. Adele R. Levy of New York, Mrs. Edith R. Stern of New Orleans, and Mrs. Alfred K. Stern of Ravinia, daughters.

Taken Ill Two Years Ago.

Mr. Rosenwald became ill about two years ago. Physicians diagnosed his complaint as hardening of the arteries. He was never confined to his bed, however, for any length of time until last April, following a trip to Honolulu. At that time his original trouble was aggravated by heart disease and a kidney ailment, according to physicians, and he was ordered to bed. A combination of the three diseases finally caused his death, Dr. Pollack declared.

Eight days ago he became seriously ill and grew steadily weaker. Mr. Rosenwald realized that his death was near, Dr. Pollack said, and he dictated from his deathbed a program of philanthropic activities to be followed by the Rosenwald fund after his death.

At 10:45 o'clock yesterday morning he awoke and was conscious for 15 minutes. His mind at that time was clear, the physician said. He then relapsed into the sleep which ended in death about four hours later.

Keeps Up Interest in Events.

"He was the most amazing person I have ever worked with," said Dr. Pollack. "His mind was active until the last. He read the newspapers thoroughly until Monday and expressed an interest in events of the world. He had apparently lost all interest in his vast business enterprises and was interested only in his philanthropies at the last.

"He was very happy to see his children last Monday and his attitude to

CHICAGO LEADERS PAY TRIBUTE TO PHILANTHROPIST

Leaders of Chicago paid tribute last night to Julius Rosenwald, who won a great fortune as a merchant and used it to further philanthropies nation-wide in scope. The news of his death yesterday afternoon brought expressions of regret at his passing from business men, public officials, educators, and social leaders of the city. Among them were these:

Mayor Cermak—Chicago has lost a wonderful man. He was a great philanthropist and the charitable organizations and the poor have lost the best friend they ever had. He was also one of Chicago's most public spirited citizens. He always had the interest of the public at heart. In my opinion, he was a type of man of whom only a few are left.

Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago—Mr. Rosenwald was one of the most active and generous members of the university's board of trustees. This institution, like every other with which Mr. Rosenwald was connected, will find it hard to do without his imagination, loyalty, and common sense.

Samuel Insull — Mr. Rosenwald's death marks the passing of a great Chicago citizen.

Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works—Mr. Rosenwald was such a close, dear friend of mine that it is hard for me to comment on his death. His loss is a great blow to the city. He was a much bigger man than Chicago realizes. It is difficult to estimate how much he will be missed. A glance at the great works he has accomplished will show this."

Sewell L. Avery, chairman of the board of Montgomery Ward & Co.—"Seldom does a character of such strength and tenderness, of such intelligence and such simplicity, of such understanding and such sympathy combine with them the power of leadership in humanitarian service such as he has given throughout the world. He was a great man."

Henry Horner, probate judge—I know of no man, in my time, who has done what this man has done in philanthropy. No one acted with the self-effacement, modesty, and unselfishness of Julius Rosenwald. I do not know of a single man who has done more for his fellow men. He was interested not alone in philanthropy, but all phrases of human welfare and life.

Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden—Mr. Rosenwald performed a fine service on the race relations commission [appointed by Mr. Lowden during his term of office]. I feel that Mr. Rosenwald was a powerful factor in bringing about the results which followed the commission's reports—those results being the dying out of racial feeling in Chicago. I had a great affection for him and a profound regard for his ability and character.

Amelia Sears, county commissioner—Mr. Rosenwald's death is a great loss to city and nation, and particularly to the Negro. The Rosenwald schools for Negroes which he established throughout the south and his support of the Urban league in its early days are only a small part of his work for this race.

John V. Farwell, business leader and trustee of the Museum of Science and Industry—He was the leading citizen in Chicago in helping all good things. His leadership brought other people to help who otherwise would not have done so. He was a great and good man and his death is a great loss to the city.

William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools—We have lost one of our greatest citizens. Education was near his heart and he was ever generous of wise and sympathetic counsel as well as of money.

Harold F. McCormick, capitalist—Mr. Rosenwald had great ideas and did great things. What a benefactor to humanity he was, and what a charming friend.

W. R. Abbott, chairman of the board of the Illinois Bell Telephone company—The passing of Julius Rosenwald is a great loss not only to this community but to the world at large. His philanthropy to all races and creeds has been outstanding. One of the interests greatest to him was the completion of the Museum of Science and Industry which he founded through his generosity.

George M. Reynolds, banker—"Mr. Rosenwald had sympathy and good will for all unfortunates. I regarded him as a great man and a great philanthropist."

Frederick H. Rawson, banker—"Mr. Rosenwald was a very close friend of mine and his death is not only a great loss to myself but to the whole nation. He was a great patriot and a wonderful business man. Mr. Rosenwald gave large sums to everything worthy and gave as unstintedly of his time and good judgment."

William V. Brothers, chief justice of the Circuit court—"The death of Julius Rosenwald will leave a vacant place in public questions of importance to all our people which will be most difficult to fill. His loss is a great one."

Leo F. Wormser, secretary of the Museum of Arts and Industry—"Institutions which Julius Rosenwald founded and projects he supported throughout this country, and indeed the world, are his everlasting monuments. To the welfare of mankind he gave his energy, time and fortune, but most of all he gave himself."

George E. Q. Johnson, United States district attorney—"Mr. Rosenwald's activities as a citizen gave inspiration to all. Everything he did in a public way sprang from the best impulses of a real American."

Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board—"I think he lived a wonderful life and set a great example. His deeds will never be forgotten."

Harold H. Swift, president of the board of trustees of the University of Chicago—"The city of Chicago has lost its outstanding citizen. The trustees of the University of Chicago mourn the loss of his genuine friendliness as well as his very wise counsel."

Dr. Charles W. Gilkey, dean of the chapel of the University of Chicago—"Julius Rosenwald was widely regarded as the foremost citizen of Chicago. This high estimate rested not only upon his wealth, his business genius or his generosity. It rested even more upon his civic sense and public spirit."

James Simpson, chairman of the board of Marshall Field & Co.—"Mr. Rosenwald gave to the world an example of how best to dispose of great wealth for the benefit of his fellow men. He had a great desire to help those who were less fortunate than he."

D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair store—"Mr. Rosenwald was unquestionably one of our greatest philanthropists. The world will be better for his having lived."

Robert Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co.—"We lose in Mr. Rosenwald an outstanding American. Those of us who were privileged to have an intimate contact with him mourn a friend whose wisdom, humor, and kindliness were a never failing source of happiness."

Dr. Louis L. Mann, rabbi of Sinai temple, of which Mr. Rosenwald was vice president—"The passing of Mr. Rosenwald is a distinct loss not only to the Jewish community and to the city of Chicago, but to all mankind. Of him it can be said that he made no distinction between race, creed, or color."

Claude A. Barnett, director of the Associated Negro Press—"Julius Rosenwald, because of his broad humanitarianism and practical philanthropies, was one of the most potent influences touching Negro life in America."

Nathan K. McGill, Negro leader—"We regarded Mr. Rosenwald as the greatest individual benefactor of our race since emancipation."

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank—"I feel that in many respects Chicago has lost her most useful citizen of the last decade. I personally have lost one of my best friends."

Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university—"Chicago has lost its most beloved citizen. He was known as our greatest philanthropist, not so much by the millions he gave as by the spirit which prompted his giving."

Harry M. Fisher, chief justice of the Criminal court—"A princely man has just passed from our midst and as a community we remain spiritually poorer than we were when he was with us. His philanthropy was as natural to his character as any other function in life."

NOTED AS PHILANTHROPIST

By reason of his success as a merchant and his enormous philanthropies, Julius Rosenwald was regarded as one of the foremost figures in America. For twenty years Mr. Rosenwald had devoted his fortune in ever increasing amounts to benefactions intended to eradicate racial and religious prejudice and to encourage thrift.

"The besetting sin of America is extravagance," he declared again and again.

Mr. Rosenwald's earning power began as a schoolboy when he got a job pumping an organ in a Springfield, Ill., church for five cents an hour. At the age of 48 he became president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the mail order house which he built into one of the greatest mercantile organizations in the world and of which he was chairman of the board at his death.

No Racial Distinctions.

His philanthropies kept pace with his growing income. They were directed largely to aid Negroes in the United States and oppressed Jews in foreign lands. But his generosity had no racial limitations and his gifts flowed generously to whites as well as blacks, to Gentiles as well as to Jew

"Charity," Mr. Rosenwald once remarked, "is the one pleasure that never wears out."

He practiced this precept until his known benefactions exceeded $60,000,000. He celebrated his fiftieth birthday, for example, by giving away $687,000.

At the outset of the recent unemployment relief campaign he pledged a gift of $250,000 on condition that five other men be found to match this sum individually. When the five required pledges were not forthcoming, Mr. Rosenwald made his gift $150,000 unconditionally.

He believed firmly in the principle that the present generation should benefit from present philanthropies. Foundations designed to aid future generations and perpetuate the name of the benefactor made no appeal to him. In 1928 he made a provision that the millions of the Rosenwald Foundation were to be entirely distributed within twenty years of his death.

His Work for the Negroes.

Mr. Rosenwald's interest in the Negro race was first aroused by Booker T. Washington, founder of Tuskegee institute. At first he merely made donations to existing schools for Negroes, but his interest finally expanded to a point where the Rosenwald Foundation was established to found a whole system of primary and secondary schools for the colored race throughout the south.

Through coöperation of whites and Negroes and by joint appropriations from the foundation and the state and county governments, more than 5,000 clean, airy, modern schools for colored children dotted the southern states by 1930. In that year the foundation appropriated $2,500,000 for Negro schools and other philanthropies.

Gives Aid to Agriculture.

Mr. Rosenwald's realization that the prosperity of the farmer was the foundation of business, the mail order business at least, led him to make several practical gifts in this direction. In 1913 he gave $1,000,000 to the Council of Grain Exchanges for research work in crop improvement. In 1923 he established the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Research Foundation for a study of scientific marketing.

Among his other benefactions were $625,000 for Negro Y. M. C. A. buildings in various cities, $5,000,000 to put Russian Jewish farmers back on land in Crimea, $1,000,000 for Jewish relief and colonization in Europe, $5,000,000 for the American-Jewish Joint Agricultural corporation, and $5,000,000 for a Jewish Theological seminary.

Born Near Lincoln Home.

Mr. Rosenwald was born Aug. 12, 1862, in Springfield, in a house not far from Abraham Lincoln's old home. He was one of the five children of Samuel and Augusta Rosenwald, who had been married in Baltimore in 1857 and came to Illinois after the civil war.

"I was uneducated in the public schools," Mr. Rosenwald used to say of his boyhood.

At the age of 16, unimpressed by the small emoluments of organ pumping and peddling newspapers, the boy set out for New York and found a job clerking in the clothing store of Hammerslough Brothers, operated by his uncles. Upon reaching the age of 21 he felt he had acquired sufficient experience to strike out for himself, and opened his own store in Fifth avenue.

The first Rosenwald enterprise had little success. His next venture was in Chicago, where, in partnership with Julius Weil, he founded the firm of Rosenwald & Weil, clothing manufacturers. In 1895, ten years after its beginning, the concern became Rosenwald & Co. Much of the output was then being sold to R. W. Sears, proprietor of a small mail order house.

In the late nineties the Sears house required more capital and Mr. Rosenwald purchased a half interest for $70,000. A year later he became vice president and in 1910, at the death of Mr. Sears, he succeeded him as president of the concern.

Within the next six years Sears, Roebuck & Co. enjoyed phenomenal success. By 1916 Mr. Rosenwald's half interest had become worth $150,000,000, an appreciation generally attributed to the establishment by Mr. Rosenwald of the then revolutionary policy of refunding the purchase money to dissatisfied customers with no questions asked.

Sales figures told the growth of the concern. From $11,000,000 in 1900, the sales jumped to $100,000,000 in 1914 and to $270,000,000 in 1919. Although the mail order business has declined since the war, Sears, Roebuck & Co. has maintained a sales volume by establishing chain department stores in hundreds of cities throughout the country.

Estimate of a Colleague.

"A man who thinks much and talks little—a man of action," was a colleague's estimate of the mercantile wizard who directed the growth of the concern.

Mr. Rosenwald frequently disclaimed credit for development of the business, attributing his success partly to luck and partly to the loyalty of his co-workers.

"The fellow at the top usually gets too much credit," he asserted. "Often he is credited with ideas that come from the brains of his fellow workers. What could any man do if none would help him? It is the able, willing fellows around a man who really do things."

An anecdote demonstrating his simplicity of manner is still told at the Sears, Roebuck headquarters, an enormous plant covering several blocks at Homan avenue and Arthington street.

Disdains Costly Office Rug.

When the plant was built the office floors were covered with linoleum. The executives, desiring to pay their chief a compliment, purchased a splendid oriental rug and presented it to Mr. Rosenwald with appropriate ceremonies. For weeks the rug stood in a corner of the office, tightly rolled. Eventually it disappeared.

"If linoleum is good enough for the auditor, it's good enough for the president here," Mr. Rosenwald confided to a friend some years later.

The welfare of his "co-workers," as Mr. Rosenwald always designated his employés, was one of his primary interests. When the new plant was first opened in 1906, saloons surrounded the buildings on all sides.

Mr. Rosenwald, always an advocate of temperance, but having no legal recourse against the dram shops, called a mass meeting of the workers and elicited a pledge that none would enter a saloon within eight blocks of the establishment.

Within eighteen months the nearest saloon stood eight blocks from the main entrance of the mail order house. A huge sign above the front door read "First Chance" on one side and "Last Chance" on the other side. The barroom remained on the edge of the "restricted" zone until prohibition came.

Establishes Bonus System.

Mr. Rosenwald also displayed extraordinary interest in the financial welfare of the workers. He was instrumental in the establishment of a bonus savings system under which the company added a specified amount to every dollar of the employés' deposits.

Perhaps his most spectacular gesture to the employés came on Oct. 30, 1929, on the fourth day of the terrific crash in the stock market. With millions of dollars in paper profits vanishing every hour, Mr. Rosenwald came out with the bold announcement that he personally would guarantee the accounts of any and all of the 40,000 employés to avert the danger of their savings being swept away.

To carry out Mr. Rosenwald's guarantee, John Higgins, vice president of the company, looked up the accounts of all the employés throughout the country. Wherever an account was on margin he notified the broker that Mr. Rosenwald's personal fortune was available if and when additional collateral was needed.

Mr. Rosenwald's move was credited at the time as an important stabilizing influence on a market which was becoming demoralized. He had done something of the same sort in the market crash of 1921, transferring all weak accounts to two brokerage houses and putting up $1,600,000 to guarantee the margins.

Hit by Post-War Deflation.

The master merchant experienced difficulties of his own that winter of 1921, difficulties which served to demonstrate the capabilities of the Rosenwald genius. The post-war depression had struck the mail order business amidships and sales fell off $75,000,000.

When it became apparent that a $16,000,000 inventory loss would have to be written off the 1921 balance sheets Mr. Rosenwald pledged $20,000,000 of his personal fortune to see the business through. He accomplished his purpose by purchasing company real estate valued at $16,000,000 and donated 50,000 shares of stock to the company treasury, with the option of repurchase within three years.

His action saved the concern, reestablished the business on a lower price level and aided the recovery of trade generally. It was hailed as one of the most remarkable financial moves of the decade.

Nor were all his philanthropies in the form of outright donations. One of his most progressive benefactions was his organization of a syndicate to erect the $2,700,000 apartment development exclusively for Negroes at 47th street and Michigan avenue.

The investment paid its interest charges, provided a satisfactory sum towards liquidating the principal and met all overhead expenses, proving to Mr. Rosenwald's satisfaction that dehabilitated areas could be reclaimed for modern, livable apartments with plenty of sunshine and fresh air, to be rented to Negroes at a profit.

The University of Chicago was a large recipient of Mr. Rosenwald's benefactions. In 1930 he gave $2,000,000 towards a $5,000,000 fund for dormitories. He had previously given the institution $3,000,000 for the medical school, hospital, laboratories and scientific enterprises.

Another of his projects from which the whole city will benefit is an industrial museum. Having endowed this institution on a lavish scale, he provided $5,000,000 for reconstruction of the Fine Arts building to house the Museum of Science and Industry. Finishing touches are now being put on the building, which stands in enduring stone.

Mr. Rosenwald performed notable patriotic services during the war. Appointed by President Wilson to be chairman of the committee on supplies of the national defense council, it devolved on him to superintend the purchase of millions of dollars' worth of goods needed by the government in war time. During later phases of the conflict he led a delegation of Jewish business leaders on a mission to France to address the troops and inspire their patriotism. In 1919-'20 he served in Washington as a member of the President's industrial conference.

Republican in Politics.

In politics Mr. Rosenwald usually espoused the Republican cause, although he had championed the local Democratic ticket when Mayor Dever was a candidate. Discussion of his activities in the senatorial campaign of 1926 were revived last August when Frank L. Smith, who won the election, but was denied his senate seat, publicly declared that Mr. Rosenwald had offered him $550,000 in Sears-Roebuck stock to withdraw from the race in favor of Hugh S. Magill, independent Republican.

Being ill at the time, Mr. Rosenwald made no reply. Several of his close friends confirmed the story and asserted that Mr. Rosenwald had made the offer for the single purpose of saving Illinois the disgrace of electing a man who, he believed, would be barred from taking the oath because of the conduct of his campaign.

Mr. Rosenwald married twice. His first wife, Augusta Nusbaum Rosenwald, died in May, 1929. The following May he married Mrs. Adelaide Rau Goodkind, widow of a St. Paul merchant and mother-in-law of his eldest son, Lessing Rosenwald.

The ceremony was performed at the Lessing Rosenwald residence in Philadelphia, after which the couple took a trip to Egypt. By a prenuptial agreement Mrs. Goodkind received $1,000,000 and waived dower rights in the Rosenwald estate.

For many years Mr. Rosenwald was president of the Jewish Charities of Chicago. He was chairman of the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency and a member of the executive committee of the Chicago Plan commission. He was a trustee of the Rockefeller Foundation, the Baron de Hirsch fund, the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, the University of Chicago, the United Charities, Hull house, and the Art institute.

Mr. Rosenwald's gifts to charity and education totaled more than $62,000,000, according to a tabulation made last night. Among the more noteworthy contributions were:

Establishment of 25 Y. M. C. A. and 3 Y. W. C. A. institutions for Negroes	$ 625,000
Contributions to 4,400 rural Negro schools in south	3,660,000

Numerous other contributions were made at other times such as the recent $150,000 gift to the Joint Emergency Relief fund in Chicago. A short time ago an announcement was made of the formation of the Rosenwald Family association for the purpose of carrying on specified philanthropies. No mention was made of the sum donated for this purpose, except that it was smaller than the Rosenwald Fund.

ROSENWALD SERVICE TO HIS FELLOW MEN PRAISED BY HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—When advised of the death of Julius Rosenwald, President Hoover issued the following statement:

"The death of Julius Rosenwald, which occurred in Chicago today, deprives the country of an outstanding citizen. His busines ability found expression in commercial achievements of great magnitude and importance.

"His patriotism was reflected both in his services in the cause of national defense during the war and in his devotion to the upbuilding of the life of the community and the country in times of peace.

"One of his most conspicuous contributions to the public welfare was through his humanitarian activities. His warm hearted human sympathy for all mankind resulted in munificent gifts for the advancement of public health, education, housing, and the wide reach of social amelioration."

ROSENWALD IDEA LEAVES MARK ON PUBLIC GIVING

Foe of Perpetual Trust; Philosophy Told.

Julius Rosenwald influenced greatly the method and principles of public giving in this country and throughout the world. In this he was guided, as in the giving itself, by the desire to advance public welfare. He was vigorously opposed to "the dead hand in philanthropy," as expressed in perpetual endowments and foundations.

"I am certain," he wrote in the Atlantic Monthly in 1929, "that those who seek by perpetuities to create for themselves a kind of immortality on earth will fail, if only because no institution and no foundation can live forever."

Tells of His Philosophy.

His philosophy of giving was expressed in another article written a year ago, as follows:

"Real endowments are not money, but ideas. Desirable and feasible ideas are of much more value than money, and when their usefulness has once been established they may be expected to receive ready support as long as they justify themselves."

To the objection that if the principal of all endowments was spent in a few years there would be nothing left to take care of the needs of the next generation, he replied:

"We may be confident that if a public need is clearly demonstrated, and a practicable way of meeting that need is shown, society will take care of it in the future."

Tells Troubles of U. of C.

Mr. Rosenwald explained in one of his articles something of the troubles of the University of Chicago with endowments.

"As a trustee of the University of Chicago," he wrote, "I know how difficult the problem is. Opportunities for purchasing libraries or for extending the work of some department into new fields are continually coming before us, and though we have endowments of $43,000,000, we have frequently been unable to authorize the use of even a few thousands for some object which would add much to the university's resources and usefulness, to say nothing of its prestige.

"A number of years ago the university started collecting more endowment. I did not contribute to the fund, but instead turned over a sum of which the principal may be exhausted. That fund, I am assured, has been of considerable service. It has been used for such diverse purposes as the purchase of a library of a Cambridge professor; for paying part of the cost of Prof. Michelson's ether drift experiments; for reconstructing the 12 inch telescope at Yerkes observatory; for a continuation of research in glacial erosion in the state of Washington and for research on phonetics. If the fund had been given as a permanent endowment it is obvious that some of the objects could not have been achieved."

Fund Established in 1917.

The Julius Rosenwald Fund was incorporated on Oct. 30, 1917. Its chartered purpose is "the well being of mankind." The endowment was in Sears-Roebuck stock, estimated as of $30,000,000 value. In April, 1928, Mr. Rosenwald gave an additional 20,000 shares of the stock to the fund.

On Jan. 1, 1928, the fund was reorganized and the administration was placed in the hands of a board of trustees and a staff of officers, with Edwin R. Embree as president and Alfred K. Stern as director. The charter and constitution of the fund provide that the principal, as well as the current income, may be spent at any time in the discretion of the trustees, but both principal and interest must be expended within 25 years of the death of the founder.

Mr. Rosenwald's example was followed by Senator James Couzens of Michigan, who established in 1929 a fund of $10,000,000 for the health, happiness and development of "the children of Michigan primarily and elsewhere in the world."

Spend $2,500,000 in Year.

Last year the Rosenwald fund expended $2,500,000, the largest part of the disbursements coming from capital. The report stated that help had been given in the building of 5,295 schools for Negroes, all part of the public school system of the south. Fellowships were given to 165 Negro teachers and students of promise, and twenty private colleges were helped with buildings, endowment or current expenses. In addition, health, child study and general education, library service, social studies and attempts to improve public administration received substantial aid.

Perpetuity Means Eternity.

Mr. Rosenwald pointed out that the Rockefeller foundations are not perpetuities.

"As a matter of fact," he wrote, "I am told that these boards have expended about 100 million dollars of their capital or special funds, and it is probable that at least two of them will disburse all of their principal funds within another decade or two.

"Perpetuity means not a thousand years or a million years, but eternity. No one in the history of the world has been able to establish a trust which has endured even for a thousand years. The very idea of a perpetual trust is strange and abnormal. It may have originated from the desire of men to gain favor in the world to come."

GIFT FOR MUSEUM REVEALS MODESTY OF ITS BENEFACTOR

A typical example of Mr. Rosenwald's modesty was revealed by Attorney Leo F. Wormser, secretary of the Museum of Science and Industry.

"The board of directors of the museum in 1926 decided to call the museum "Rosenwald Industrial Museum,'" he said. "Mr. Rosenwald wired that he appreciated the compliment, but did not want his name used. Nevertheless, the charter was applied for and granted under that name. Mr. Rosenwald then insisted that his name be withdrawn as his $5,000,000 gift had not been made for personal gratification and the trustees finally changed the name to its present title."

First Employer Recalls Rosenwald's Store Job

Emporia, Kas., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—"He was a fine boy, and it's easy for me to see how he made a success in his business," said Charles Squires, Emporia architect, who ran a mercantile business in Springfield, Ill., and gave Julius Rosenwald his first job when the late philanthropist was barely 11 years old. Tonight Squires showed his old account books kept in his 99 cent store, and they show where Rosenwald bought his first watch chain, paying only 80 cents because he was an employé. Rosenwald made $2.50 a week as an errand boy. Squires' store was one of a chain in states from Illinois east to Massachusetts. Squires has lived here since 1879.

COUNTY BOARD PAYS A TRIBUTE TO ROSENWALD

A rising vote in expression of sorrow for Mr. Rosenwald's death was taken yesterday by the county board which was in session when it heard the news. The following statement was authorized by the commissioners:

"In the death of Mr. Rosenwald the country has sustained a great loss. His genial spirit, his abiding interest in all human affairs, his willingness to give of his time and his effort for any cause which he believed was right, and his approachability have established him in the hearts of his city. His loss is felt not only here but throughout the country."

Family Receives 200 Messages of Condolence

More than 200 telegrams of condolence were received at the Rosenwald home last evening. Among the wires expressing condolences to the family were those from Frank O. Lowden, Jane Addams, Arthur Reynolds, Horace Stein of Philadelphia, Abraham Flexner of New York, Jesse Isidor Straus of New York, Harold H. Swift, Walter S. Gifford, Federal Judge Julian Mack, Mr. and Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, and Daniel Willard.

Roosevelt Pays Tribute to Philanthropist's Work

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Franklin D. Roosevelt expressed his sorrow tonight at the death of Julius Rosenwald. "The death of Mr. Rosenwald," said the governor, "takes from the whole nation a citizen who, through many years, had given unselfish service to the public good."

DALE JACKSON, AIR DAREDEVIL, STUNTS TO DEATH

Plane Comes Apart 3,000 Feet Up.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Dale [Red] Jackson, famous the country over for his daredevil flying, crashed to his death this afternoon while stunting a new model Curtiss plane 3,000 feet above the Municipal airport, where the All-American air races are scheduled to open tomorrow.

Jackson had taken up a new "midget" experimental model from the Curtiss shops, a Teal amphibian. He was entertaining the crowd below with a sensational series of loops, snap rolls, and slow rolls and then apparently tried his favorite upside down spin.

Observers said he had completed the spin and was zooming nose up when his left wing was seen to flutter off. Then the tail assembly was torn loose and the other wing crumpled.

Falls to His Death.

The tiny ship fell like a plummet, crashing to earth a mile away from the judges' stand at the airport. When a racing ambulance arrived at the scene Jackson was dead, his left hand clutching the ring of his parachute. It was evident that he had endeavored to save himself by a parachute leap, but was unable to get clear of the fuselage after the wings buckled. One theory was that the frame of the small ship may have been squeezed together in such a way as to imprison him.

It was reported tonight that the Curtiss officials in giving Jackson permission to try the ship had warned him not to try any rolls as the plane, an experimental model, might crack under the strain. This apparently is just what happened.

Jackson achieved fame in July, 1929, with Forrest D. O'Brine, when they established a new world's refueling endurance record at St. Louis. A year later, when the Hunter brothers at Chicago set a new record of 553 hours, Jackson and O'Brine again took off at St. Louis. They stayed aloft for 647 hours.

His Most Daring Feat.

Jackson touched the peak of his fame as a fearless pilot when he flew a Laird racer to third place in the Thompson trophy race at the National Air Races in Cleveland last September, after flying through the top branches of a tree on the course and breaking most of the inner structure of the lower left wing. The accident occurred on the fifth lap, but Jackson kept the plane in the air, flying at about 200 miles an hour, while fabric tore off and the wing gradually fell to pieces, until he completed the tenth lap and took third prize money of $3,000.

Hunt Women Flyers in Vain.

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—A day of search by land and air tonight failed to reveal any trace of Mrs. Ruth Stewart, St. Louis aviatrix, and Mrs. Debbie Stanford, Toronto, her passenger.

The White Lockheed plane in which they were flying from St. Louis to New York disappeared yesterday afternoon near Sterrett's Gap.

Army Flyer's Body Found.

Elkins, W. Va., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—The body of Lieut. E. H. Bobbitt, missing army pilot, was found in the mountains near here today, according to a report made to state police. Bobbitt disappeared Christmas day while flying from Selfridge field, Mich., to his home in Hot Springs, Va.

BRIDGET'S NIGHT AT SEA FAILS TO STIR SYMPATHY

British Court O. K.'s Tame Deer Hunt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 6.—Bridget, a 14 year old tame deer, which was shooed into the woods to be chased by Midkent hunters, was the principal in a trial at Hythe today in which Capt. Edwin Handys Dawes, master of the hunt, and Capt. Ronald Fox, secretary, were prosecuted by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

The society's witnesses testified that they saw Bridget pushed out of a cart and told to run along so the hounds could follow. Instead Bridget started to graze and then strolled among a flock of sheep. Shooed again, Bridget returned to the cart.

Bridget Swims Into Ocean.

Finally she was induced to run, but instead of running into the woods she headed for the sea. The pack was called off, but a single dog followed Bridget, which struck out and swam far from shore. The water was stormy.

Bridget reappeared the next morning, but put to sea again to evade capture. Harry Griggs, coxswain of the Hythe lifeboat, testified that the waves were still high. He marshalled a crew, launched the boat and went deer hunting on the rolling main. After a long chase he hitched a line to Bridget and "ran her ashore."

Curls Up and Goes to Sleep.

The society's witnesses testified that Bridget knocked down four men when she saw the familiar cart and made a dash for it. Once in the cart, she curled up to get some of the sleep she had lost by being out all night.

The defense contended that Bridget had not seen the cart before and that the keeper, on whom she lavished affections, was really a groom to her. The defense also contended that Bridget did not mind the run across country.

The defendants were acquitted.

BELL WILL DIE TONIGHT; GIVES LAST INTERVIEW

Slayer Abandons Hope of Escaping Chair.

Frank Bell, condemned murderer, gave his last interview yesterday in the county jail. He is convinced that no further stay will save him from dying in the electric chair a few minutes after midnight tonight for the murder of Christ Patras, a restaurant proprietor killed in a holdup.

FRANK BELL. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Bell, who had been surly for several days, was in better spirits when he was taken to the office of Warden David Moneypenny in the county jail for the interview. The warden had just promised him that he could have all day today alone with his mother and sister. A newspaper man apologized for mentioning the execution, saying that he didn't wish to hurt Bell's feelings.

Blames Bad Companions.

"I don't see how you can hurt my feelings more than they're going to be hurt tomorrow morning," replied Bell with a wry smile.

"Bad companions put me where I am today," he continued. "If I had listened to my mother's advice, and kept on going to the Baptist church, I wouldn't be here now. I'm convinced that I have to go, and if I have to, I will."

He praised Warden Moneypenny and the latter's assistant, George Gibson, for their treatment of him and their efforts to obtain a commutation for him. While under sentence of death, Bell informed the warden of a plot by William Lenhardt, another condemned killer, to shoot his way to freedom. Lenhardt has since been executed.

As a result of that act, which Warden Moneypenny said probably saved his own life, the warden made efforts to have Bell's sentence commuted to life imprisonment, and helped to obtain several stays of execution for the condemned man. A few days ago, however, Gov. Emmerson denied a commutation.

Bell and Richard Sullivan killed Patras during a robbery of the latter's restaurant at 2572 North Clark street. Sullivan turned against his partner when Bell confessed the murder, and in court said that he was willing to take a death sentence if Bell suffered the same penalty. Bell got a last minute reprieve the night he and Sullivan were to be executed, but Sullivan walked to the chair believing that his partner had preceded him.

Attorneys Harold Levy and Emmet Byrne, who represented Bell in his final appeals, said yesterday that no further steps would be taken.

TEXAN DEMANDS IMPEACHING OF ANDREW MELLON

Cites an Old Law Against Business Interests.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon was accused of "high crimes and misdemeanors" and his impeachment demanded in a resolution introduced in the house of representatives today by Representative Wright Patman [Dem., Tex.].

The basis for the Texas congressman's charges was a statute adopted in 1789, defining restrictions upon the secretary of the treasury. As to connection with outside business, Mr. Patman charged Secretary Mellon with having violated the law on nine counts and being therefore subject to the statute's penalty of a $3,000 fine, removal from office and being barred from holding any future federal office.

"On my own responsibility," Representative Patman told a house that was crowded and attentively still, "I impeach Andrew W. Mellon of high crimes and misdemeanors."

He asked that the resolution be referred to the judiciary committee and without debate or any defense of the secretary. This was defeated.

Cites Specific Charges.

The principal point on which Mr. Patman based his charges was the provision in the statute prohibiting a secretary of the treasury from "directly or indirectly being concerned or interested in carrying on the business of trade or commerce."

The resolution listed the many commodities and many activities in which, it claimed, the Mellons were concerned. These corporations, Mr. Patman went on, "are directly interested in the tariff, in the levying and collection of federal taxes and in the shipping of products on the high seas; many of the products of which these corporations are protected by our tariff laws and the secretary of the treasury has direct charge in the enforcement of these laws."

Secretary Mellon's official control over the coast guard and his ownership "in whole or in part" of ocean going vessels constituted a violation of the law, the resolution contended.

Details Other Connections.

The statute prohibits a secretary of the treasury from owning any sea vessel, Mr. Patman's charges stated, yet, it was claimed, Secretary Mellon has an interest in four Norwegian vessels, 14 Venezuelan vessels, and 49 flying the American flag.

The secretary's dual rôle as director of the public building program and as principal owner of the Aluminum Company of America" was next on the list.

And though his duty was to enforce the embargo against convict made goods directed at Russian imports, Secretary Mellon, the concluding charge stated, is one of the principal owners of the Koppers company, which made a 200 million dollar contract with Russia in 1930 to build ovens and steel mills in the soviet union.

YOUTH KILLED FLEEING POLICE

A 22 year old youth arrested as a robbery suspect was shot and fatally wounded last night after he had made a dash for freedom from the Shakespeare avenue police station. Forty policemen chased the fugitive for three blocks, firing frequently at him, until he was cornered in an alleyway at 2843 Lyndale avenue and shot in the head.

The dead man was identified as Kenneth Monroe, said to have a police record as a robber. He had been arrested with five others at 1907 Ruble street and identified as a bandit who had attempted to hold up a clothing store a month ago.

Monroe was being finger printed in the station as part of the routine of arrest when he suddenly broke away from Sergt. John Walsh, gained the door and ran down the street. Shouts and bullets from the revolvers of pursuing policemen failed to halt him. The chase extended for three blocks when Monroe was finally cornered and shot by Patrolman William Geifier.

Four pistols and a shotgun were found in the room where Monroe and his companions had been arrested. Two women and three men were arrested with Monroe at the Ruble street address. The women gave the names of Betty Davis, 24 years old, 4851 Wentworth avenue, and Mrs. Cecelia Melulis, 34 years old.

KILLED IN LEAP OF 21 STORIES FROM HOTEL

An apparently demented man leaped from a fire escape on the 22d floor of the Hotel La Salle late last night and was instantly killed when he fell into an alley on the north side of the building. Papers in his clothing indicated that his name was John Marcellino Olivett of 1057 Mayfield avenue.

A note written in Italian was found in the man's room in the hotel. Translated, it read: "Everybody is following me. I am going crazy. Everything I have sent to my uncle, Georgonia Marengo, Wartola province, Catazaro."

The man registered in the hotel last evening and was assigned to room 327. He apparently climbed the fire escape from the third floor to the 22d floor.

Bomb in Gary Smoke Shop Causes Damage of $1,000

The De Luxe Smoke shop, an alleged hand book place, at 24 West 8th avenue, Gary, was bombed early this morning. Damage to the store and adjoining shops was about $1,000. The smoke shop is owned by Louis and Phil Kirsch, brothers. Police said the bombing probably was an attempt by rivals to muscle in.

DISROBED, BUT VICTIM CHASES BANDIT TO CELL

Aaron Goldman refused to be embarrassed yesterday when three bandits robbed him of $200 and disrobed him in the office of the Star Loan and Mortgage company, 30 North Dearborn street. Clad only in his underwear, shoes and socks, Goldman led a chase in the street that ended in the capture of one of the bandits.

When the bandits entered Goldman's office on the eighth floor they pulled out revolvers and forced him into an inner office. They took off his trousers and shirt. The shirt they used to tie him to a chair. Then they scooped up the loot from the cash box and fled. Goldman worked loose and dashed down the eight flights of stairs after the men.

Goldman's unusual appearance and his shouts drew Russell Strubble, 22 years old, 1317 Nelson street, and Harold Busse, 6328 Waveland avenue, into the chase. With the aid of Policeman George Herbert, one of the men was collared. Taken to the Central police station the holdup man gave his name as Angelo Centanne, 25 years old, 3351 Walnut street. A revolver was found in his pocket. The loot was carried by one of the men who escaped.

LOUIS ALTERIE IS INDICTED ON KIDNAP CHARGE

Five Others Accused in Second Abduction.

Indictments naming Louis Alterie, formerly a bootleg gangster in Chicago, as one of the kidnapers of Edward Dobkin, a gambler who paid $8,000 ransom last March, were reported to have been voted last night by the grand jury which also voted indictments against five others as the kidnapers of Dr. Max Gecht and Mrs. George Gecht, the physician's wife.

Named with Alterie in the Dobkin kidnaping are John Pingara and William Thomas, who are also accused in the indictments for the Gecht kidnapings. Attorney Ward Swalwell, formerly an assistant state's attorney, Albert Russell and Edward Finnen were included in the indictment for the Gecht abductions.

Arrested In Denver.

Alterie was arrested yesterday in Denver. For several years he had been operating a "dude" ranch which he lost on Tuesday through failure to pay a mortgage. Denver police took him in custody at the request of Assistant State's Attorney C. Wayland Brooks who has been placed in charge of the kidnaping prosecutions. After announcing he would resist extradition Alterie was released on bail of $2,500.

Dobkin, who is said to be what gamblers call a commission man—one who places large bets with bookmakers on a commission from plungers who do not want to lower the odds at the race tracks, was a witness before the grand jury yesterday and was said to have identified Alterie, Pingara, and Russell from photographs as those participating in the extraction of ransom from him.

Held Captive Two Days.

Dobkin said he was held captive two days and then on his promise to pay he was released. He followed orders next day and went to the Foreman National bank where he drew $8,000 in large bills and walked to La Salle and Lake streets where, as he had been advised, he was tapped on the right shoulder by some one behind him. Without turning around to look he passed the envelope containing the money over his left shoulder, he testified.

Alterie's name was first drawn into the present investigation of kidnapings through the confession of Gus Sanger, at whose home in Palos Park Dr. Gecht and Mrs. Gecht were detained a month ago until $2,000 was paid. Sanger's attempt later to start a romance with Mrs. Gecht led to his arrest and the arrest of the others indicted yesterday. Sanger testified yesterday for the state and was not indicted, as it is understood he has agreed to be a state's witness at the trial of the others.

Pal of O'Banion.

Alterie, who first came into prominence as a pal of Dean O'Banion and who offered to fight a duel to death with O'Banion's slayers wherever he encountered them, has been making periodical trips into Chicago, according to the police. When last here he was subpoenaed as a witness in the federal prosecution of Alphonse Capone.

Dr. Gecht was before the jury for an hour yesterday. His wife was in the jury room twenty minutes. Their attorney, Irving Breakstone, was also a witness. All are reported to have involved Attorney Swalwell, first as having suggested the kidnaping of Gecht, and then as having arranged for the payment of the ransom.

Fire Destroys 4 Homes, 2 Garages in Norwood Pk.

Four frame cottages and two garages were burned to the ground in Norwood Park, just outside the city limits on Irving Park boulevard, last night. The fire started in an empty cottage at 4325 North Sayre avenue and quickly spread. Firemen from Chicago were hampered because there was no water power and they were forced to use hand extinquishers. The families of the Rev. C. E. Cornwell, 4333 Newland avenue; Peter Thomas, 4324 Newland avenue, and Herman Reussow, 4329 North Sayre avenue, were made homeless by the fire.

THREE MILLIONS OF U. S. FUNDS IS SPENT ON BUGS

Pests Expensive Pets to Taxpayers.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Whether it be due to the persuasions of racketeering scientists, as some congressmen allege, or to the activities of congressional knights of the pork barrel, as some of the scientists assert, the cost of the federal government's efforts to control and eradicate insect pests has risen close to 3 million dollars this year, $2,863,740, to be exact.

Wherever and whenever an insect menace to human, animal or plant life appears, citizens are now accustomed to turn for relief, not to their state governments, but to the national government, which invariably responds with additional appropriations for the operations of the 900 scientists and other experts composing the bureau of entomology of the department of agriculture.

Raise Doubt of Benefits.

There are numerous members of the appropriation committees of congress who are convinced that the money expended on the bureau of entomology is wholly wasted and that none of the scientific expedients employed has been of any practical value in the elimination of pests.

For example, Senator L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.], for many years chairman of the house appropriations subcommittee on agriculture, has long maintained that the only effective control of the corn borer lies in careful cultivation of well drained soil.

Other legislators are heard to complain that the government entomologists are forever experimenting, but never getting anywhere.

On the other hand, C. L. Marlatt, veteran entomologist and present chief of the bureau, will cite you chapter and verse and a wealth of statistics to establish his contention that "the annual saving to agriculture, and hence to the country, resulting from the control and eradication of insect pests."

Spread of Fruit Fly.

The Mediterranean fruit fly furnishes illustration of this clash of views. In the spring of 1929 it was reported that this pest had appeared in Florida and was menacing the fruit crop. Florida went into action against it with an emergency fund of $50,000 and also appealed to Washington for aid. The department of agriculture responded with an allotment of $40,000 and sent numerous entomologists to the scene.

A few months later Dr. Marlatt appeared before the house appropriations committee and sketched such a picture of the menace to the entire fruit and vegetable crop of the south that congress provided $4,250,000 for war on the fruit fly. With this fund the bureau purchased an enormous amount of spraying and other machinery and moved upon Florida with a small army of entomologists and handy men.

Start Destroying Crops.

By that time the bureau scientists professed to have found that 180 different kinds of fruits, vegetables, and other plants were infested with the fruit fly. Thereupon the bug baiting army proceeded to destroy infected oranges, lemons, and other fruit and vegetable crops throughout a territory comprising one-third of Florida. Growers were reimbursed for such losses from the joint federal and state funds.

In 1930 Dr. Marlatt viewed the situation with even greater alarm. He estimated that a further appropriation of 36 millions would be required for the extension of the eradication campaign and the reimbursement of owners of destroyed crops.

Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde was beset with doubts of the justification of such expenditure and appointed a committee, headed by President Hoover's friend, Vernon Kellogg, to investigate. This committee found the work justified in the main, though it pronounced the program too extreme and, as a result, the estimated additional fund required was reduced to 26 millions.

Campaign Called Fraud.

About this time Representative W. R. Wood [Rep., Ind.], chairman of the house appropriations committee, began receiving letters from Florida orchard owners stating that the Mediterranean fruit fly was not a new pest, that it appeared periodically, and after a season disappeared as mysteriously as it came. It damaged crops, to be sure, but it would be gone before the scientists could do anything about it.

Mr. Wood thereupon began opposing Dr. Marlatt's appeals for more money. He was induced, however, to appoint a committee of entomologists outside the government service to make another investigation. This committee upheld the bureau findings but thought that an additional 10 millions would be ample.

Not being satisfied, Mr. Wood induced the treasury department to send secret service men to the scene. Their report, according to Mr. Wood, was that the fruit fly campaign was a "gigantic fraud." Nevertheless the President recommended an additional appropriation of 8 millions.

Refuse Further Funds.

Then the appropriations committee chairman took a committee of congressmen to Florida which held hearings at various places and surveyed the bureau's work of eradication. The upshot was a refusal of the appropriations committee to vote the additional funds requested. Mr. Wood charged the whole campaign was a racketeering scheme to raid the public treasury for the benefit of the bureaucracy. He asserted that the eradication work had not restricted the ravages of the pest to any smaller area than had been affected in previous visitations.

No additional funds were voted by congress and the fruit fly disappeared without another dollar being expended. Mr. Wood, who claimed his opposition had saved the country 36 millions, said the fly had disappeared naturally, as he had predicted it would.

Corn Borer Scare.

About three years ago, the entomologists worked up a scare over the corn borer and congress appropriated 10 millions to attack it. The progress of the borer, which has been about 30 miles westward annually for decades, was not arrested, though Dr. Marlatt claims that introduced parasites are "now destroying from 6 to 16 per cent of the borers present." Mr. Wood defeated a move for a second 10 millions and is fighting $750,000 proposed in the current budget.

One classic example of this sort is the $10,000 appropriation a Mississippi senator once got to investigate a cotton planter's theory that grasshoppers turn into cotton leaf worms. An entomologist was detailed, lived a year with a planter and convinced him that his theory was bunk.

Girls Menaced by Robbers

Left to right: Miriam Lewis, Genevieve Sheffer, Mary Coakley, and Mary O'Brien, who were present when electrical workers' union headquarters at 47 North Ogden avenue were robbed of between $5,000 and $10,000. Miss Coakley was choked into submission when she screamed and the other girls herded into a closet.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Union Robbed

Two bandits took possession of the office of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers at 49 North Ogden avenue yesterday and forced employés to open a safe, from which they took $2,450.

In the course of the robbery one of the robbers slugged Miss Marie Coakley, 24 years old, 5213 Warner avenue, with a sawed-off shotgun, and then choked her to quiet her screams. She entered while the holdup was in progress.

John J. Slora and Sylvanus Williams, assistant secretaries of the union, had just opened the office for the day when the gunmen entered. They told the robbers that a time lock would not permit the opening of the safe for fifteen minutes. The two gunmen guarded them for that time, subdued Misss Coakley when she entered, then forced Slora to open the vault and give them the money. They fled in an automobile driven by a third man.

MOVE ON! JAPAN ORDERS CHINESE AT GREAT WALL

Tokio Army Continues Into China Proper.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TIENTSIN, Jan. 7 (Thursday).—The Japanese army advancing south along the Peiping-Mukden railway from Chinchow reached Wanchiatun station, nine miles north of Shanhaikwan, where the great wall separating Manchuria and China proper reaches the sea, early today. An emissary was immediately dispatched to the headquarters of Ho Chu-kuo, Chinese commander at Shanhaikwan, ordering him to evacuate his 3,000 Chinese troops from Shanhaikwan at once.

Japanese air bombers dropped explosives on the station at Lienshan, a short distance north of Shanhaikwan, late yesterday. It is also reported that the Japanese landed more troops and large quantities of munitions at Chinwangtao, which were transported to Shanhaikwan.

Advance Into Jehol.

According to telephone reports from Shanhaikwan, Japanese troops led by Lieut. Gen. Muro have begun an advance into Jehol province. The first objective is the town of Pepiao, located at the end of the branch railway which connects with the Peiping-Mukden line near Chinchow. It was said that Japanese planes bombed Pepiao as well as Tungliao late yesterday. The Japanese allege that many Chinese troops and bandits have fled from Chinchow into Jehol province.

Japanese troops today began a rigid search of all Chinese entering the local Japanese concession at Tientsin. The Japanese say they fear that the Chinese may be plain clothes men.

The uneasiness of the Chinese population here increased yesterday, when 300 Japanese troops with full war equipment marched through the native city as a warning demonstration. Fifty Japanese soldiers marched through the Nankai university district.

Chinese Residents Flee.

Chinese employés of foreign firms refused to return to their homes and remained in the foreign concessions, while many Chinese residents in adjacent districts have begun to move into the foreign areas with their household goods. The confusion was increased by the arrival of trains from Shanhaikwan and other points near the great wall, packed with fleeing Chinese refugees.

Stimson to Move Again.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—Renewed pressure is to be brought against the Japanese government by the major powers within the near future. This became known here today. Indications today were that the moves to halt Japanese advances in Manchuria and China proper and to smooth out the entire oriental situation will be taken independently at first. Later a united joint plan of some kind will be put into effect, probably under the provisions of the nine power treaty guaranteeing Chinese territorial integrity and continuance of the open door.

Within the last two days the ambassadors of Great Britain, France, and Italy have conferred with Secretary Stimson on Manchuria.

As Secretary Stimson conferred with the diplomats of other nations on further joint Manchurian action, Ambassador Debuchi of Japan paid another call at the state department, this time to read the latest advices from Mukden outlining the American consular version of the attack by Japanese soldiers upon Culver Chamberlain, American consular officer.

Incident Not Yet Closed.

State department officials said that while Secretary Stimson looked upon the Japanese expression of regret for the Chamberlain attack as an apology, the incident was not yet closed. Secretary Stimson expects to ask further redress from the Japanese government, which is expected to include punishment for the Japanese party which assaulted Chamberlain.

Failure of the Japanese government to arrange prompt punishment for the Chamberlain assailants has created an unfavorable impression at the state department.

Tokio Is "Surprised."

TOKIO, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Official circles here were surprised at reports from Washington today that Mr. Stimson was not entirely satisfied with Japan's expression of regret for the attack on Consul Culver B. Chamberlain at Mukden.

It was said that the Japanese government is willing to take any further action which any self-respecting government would take under the circumstances, but it was not clear here whether Washington wanted a written apology.

It was emphasized that Chamberlain was not recognized as the American consul when he was attacked and that no Japanese soldier would wittingly offend an American official.

FOUR ARE SEIZED FOR SENDING SEX MAIL TO SCHOOLS

Find 30 Bogus Addresses on Postman's Route.

A former policeman, a postman, and two women, all colored, were arrested yesterday at 3141 South Park avenue on charges of sending obscene literature through the mail. It is alleged they sent their literature, pertaining to sex matters, to girls' schools and colleges throughout the country. The arrests were made by Sergt. Daniel Healy and his squad and Postal Inspector W. O. Baumgardner.

Those held are Ira O'Neil, 4709 Evans avenue, the former policeman; his wife, Viola; William C. Mitchell, 3602 Rhodes avenue, the mail carrier, and Helen Halcomb, living at a Y. W. C. A. hotel. They will be arraigned today before Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. O'Neil was convicted early last year for sending obscene matter through the mail and is now appealing a two year sentence. He was dismissed from the force last July.

Arrest of the group resulted from a complaint of several United States senators whose daughters attend the Forest Hill seminary at Washington, a finishing school for girls. K. P. Aldrich, chief postal inspector here, was notified.

Inspectors traced the material out and learned that remittances would be received at any one of thirty places on the south side. It developed that the addresses were bogus, but all listed in the delivery route of Mitchell, the postman. Thus a remittance would be in his mail consignment. Inspectors said that the group obtained an average of $3,000 weekly from the sale of literature which ranged in price from $5 to $50.

HOUSE SHOOTS HOLES IN SENATE INCOME DRAFT

Exemption Amendments May Mean Defeat.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—An all day battle in the Illinois house of representatives, the hottest of the special session, left the state income tax law staggering with all the symptoms of being mortally wounded.

HOMER J. TICE.

Two changes that its proponents say almost destroyed its usefulness were adopted. One raised the exemption of single persons from $1,000 to $1,500. The other increased the exemptions of heads of families from $2,000 to $3,500. In addition the backers of the tax were able to muster only 68 votes on a test roll call, which came on a motion to kill the bill by striking out the enacting clause. Seventy-seven votes are required for passage.

One other proposed amendment—to include corporations—was slaughtered, and there the day's battling stopped, with an agreement that it will be renewed next Tuesday morning. The bill already has passed the senate.

It's the Old Split.

That tabloid history of the day gives little idea of the hostilities that raged most of the morning and all afternoon. They took the form of the old split between Cook county and downstate, although if it had not been for the steady support of a number of downstaters the legislators from the metropolis could not have scored a single one of the victories they did achieve.

It was James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee] who moved to strike out the enacting clause. So bitter did the feeling of supporters of the bill become that several times during the debate they threatened either a sine die adjournment or defeat of all the bills in the governor's tax conference program intended to relieve Cook county.

These threats were uttered by two men considered the biggest of the downstate Republicans, Roger F. Little of Champaign, the floor leader, and Homer J. Tice of Greenview, chairman of the appropriations committee.

"We are willing to help you, but you must help us," said Tice. "We will not go on helping you if we see a united front against us."

Little spoke about "going home," but a direct statement that he might present a sine die resolution was made by Clinton Searle [Rep., Rock Island].

However, when a recess for the night was taken the feeling was less bitter and the advocates of the income levy were talking about attempting next week to undo the amendments raising the exemption brackets which were introduced by Charles J. Jenkins [Rep., Chicago].

Because of their desire to attempt reconsideration they caused the bill to be left on the second reading or amending stage.

Strike Out New Department.

The first move in connection with the income tax bill was a conciliatory one by its proponents. A chief criticism had been that it carried a proposal to create a new state department, the revenue department, at an estimated minimum cost of $300,000 a year, to collect this tax and the proposed tobacco tax. Gov. Emmerson has expressed disapproval of this idea, and Mr. Tice moved to strike from the tax bill the reference to the revenue department and substitute the existent finance department. This amendment was adopted by general consent without a vote.

Tice yielded to Representative Jenkins, who had presented the amendment to increase the exemption of an unmarried person from $1,000 to $1,500.

"This bill was beaten in the regular session largely because the exemptions were too low," said Jenkins. "Let us not place this legislature in the position of saying that $1,000 is a living wage."

Tice protested that a tax of 1 per cent on an income of $1,000 or $10 a year would be a very small price to pay for the protection given the payer by the state.

Listen to Earl C. Smith.

At this point Representative Howard Doyle [Dem., Decatur] insisted that the house should hear Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, repeat the explanation of the tax which he gave at a dinner to some of the legislators last night.

The rules were suspended and Mr. Smith spoke from the clerk's desk. When he had concluded some hot questions were fired at him. Leroy M. Green [Rep., Rockford] wanted to know why the farmer should not include in his income schedule the value of his products consumed at home—grain, milk, eggs, meats, fruits, vegetables, and firewood as examples.

Raymond T. O'Keefe [Dem., Chicago] brought a reply that there was no thought of this tax as a speedy relief measure, as it would not produce any revenue until next year.

When the discussion returned to the Jenkins $2,000 exemption amendment, Tice moved that it be tabled. But as a substitute Burns of Kankakee moved that the bill be amended by striking out the enacting clause. Burns said that heretofore he had acted in sympathy with t[illegible] Illinois Agricultural association and continued:

"This elimination of the revenue department is only camouflage. There will be just as big an appropriation for the finance department for this work. Why should we set up a new, expensive personnel to handle a new tax, when needed revenue may be raised under present laws with the existing machinery?

"We need relief that can come only from a reduction in the cost of government; a reduction, not an increase, in the revenues raised for government."

As to Chicago's Share.

Tice contended the cost of collection would be small for the large sum to be raised by the tax, an estimated $30,000,000 the first year, but was immediately questioned by Thomas J. O'Grady [Dem., Chicago], who said that it was estimated that Cook county would receive 42 per cent, or $14,350,000, from the income tax for its elementary schools. O'Grady contended Cook would contribute 90 per cent of the tax, or $27,000,000.

"Chicago owes the state $20,000,000 now, because the property owners have not paid their taxes," said O'Keefe, "and if you want to give them a further alibi for not paying all you need to do is to impose this new tax on them."

On the roll call—57 to 68—by which Burns' motion to kill the bill was defeated all of the Cook county members present except three voted against the tax. Charles Cola, Democrat, voted with the downstaters; James P. Boyle, Democrat, voted "present"; and Mrs. Anna Wilmarth Ickes, Republican, did not vote.

Tice moved to table Jenkins' first amendment, the individual exemption, and was defeated on a viva voce vote. Then the amendment was adopted by a rising cote of 72 to 55.

Vote Exemption $3,500.

When Jenkins' second amendment, to increase the exemption of married persons from $2,000 to $3,500, was brought up, Tice moved a compromise figure of $2,500 and lost on a viva voce vote. Then Jenkins' motion was passed by roll call, 68 to 58.

This brought from the downstaters their vehement protest against the attitude of the Cook county members and those lining up with them.

Here a luncheon recess was taken and when the house reconvened it took up the further amendments to the bill necessary to substitute the figure $3,500 for the figure $2,000 wherever the latter occurred.

With war clouds hovering, the first two of these were adopted by rising votes, the first passing, 57 to 55, the second 58 to 53. Then Tice demanded a roll call on the third of the series.

The roll call went against Tice once more, the vote being 65 to 57, but during it Tice renewed the downstate declarations of war.

"We have reached a point," he said, "where we are going to assert our rights. We downstate are entitled to consider downstate just as much as any part of the state. Downstate agriculture, downstate banking are asking this relief, but we have not yet heard the voice of the great city by the lake saying, 'We will meet you half way.'

Kill Corporation Clause.

Four more routine Jenkins amendments were adopted by viva voce votes, and then O'Grady presented his amendment to place corporations on the same basis as persons under the income tax law.

This produced the last of the series of lesser squalls of the day. Opponents declared its adoption would kill the income tax completely. It was defeated on a roll call by a vote of 32 to 66.

SEEKS 'CARFARE LOAN' OF $25,000 TO HELP STAFF OF ASSESSORS

As the fourth payless payday in two months rolled around yesterday for county employés, Charles E. Fox, director of appraisals for the board of assessors, set out in search of $25,000 for "carfare money" for the 500 employés in the assessors' office.

Fox, who is in charge while Assessor John E. Conroy, secretary of the board, is in Springfield lobbying against abolition of his job, said that many of the employés are so short of cash that they have difficulty in getting to work, and have to borrow lunch money from more fortunate fellow workers when they get there. The 200 field workers engaged in 1931 reassessment work in the country towns frequently have trouble getting gasoline for their automobiles, he said. He intends to approach bankers for loans, to be secured by the salary claims of employés.

The pay due to county employés yesterday was for the last half of December. On Dec. 22 they got their checks for the last half of October, having had three payless paydays before that. Mothers' pension checks totaling $50,000 are due on Monday, but county officials said they had little hope of making these payments for the support of 1,800 widows and their 6,000 children.

ASSEMBLY GETS HUGE "OPEN THE SCHOOLS" PETITION WITH NAMES

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—One of the largest petitions ever presented physically to the Illinois general assembly was wheeled in on two hand trucks before a joint session of the two houses this morning. It was said to include the signatures of 927,339 Chicagoans. The appeal was for legislative relief for the public schools of Chicago. It did not include an indorsement of any of the legislation pending before the assembly, but was limited exclusively to a demand for "immediate action to keep the schools open."

The presentation of the name collection was made by Irving A. Wilson, president of the Chicago Principal's club. Mrs. Holland Flagler, of the Parent-Teachers' association, made a brief plea. Then Allan J. Carter, chairman of the committee, told of the big meeting at the Chicago Stadium Monday night.

"We implore you," he said, "that action be taken in the next two weeks so that our schools may remain open."

In reply to questions, Attorney Carter said the signers had not been asked to indorse any specific remedial legislation, but he believed the program of the governor's tax conference "would help."

Cop Fired for Failure to Pay for His Meals

Policeman Harlow F. Zauner of the Fillmore street station was ordered discharged from the force yesterday by the civil service commission after a hearing on charges that he had walked out of a restaurant at 4007 West Madison street several times without paying for his meals. "This was an instance of one of the cheapest and meanest forms of official racketeering," commented Richard J. Collins, president of the commission.

dozen names before it was noted that the downstate members were remaining silent, waiting, apparently, to see how the Chicagoans voted. The Cook members, however, were answering "Aye" without hesitation, so those from the smaller counties quickly followed suit.

A dozen or more took the opportunity of explaining their votes as their names were called. The first of these was Harold C. Kessinger [Rep., Aurora], who said he was voting for the bill "only in the hope that the governor and Mr. Whealan will do what Mayor Cermak prophesied—appoint such outstanding people that their very appointment will give the taxpayers new faith in the taxing machinery."

Charges Tax Fixing.

Earl B. Searcy of Sangamon county, Springfield Republican, gained almost rapt attention when he explained his vote.

"Unless and until certain big business men in Chicago cease fixing their taxes—something they have done for more than 25 years—no cure is in sight, either by this or any other bill," said Searcy, speaking very slowly and very clearly.

"Big business, on the one hand, has been buying the taxing machinery, and the taxing machinery, on the other hand, has been yielding to the purchase," he continued. "I gladly vote for this bill," adding that "Mayor Cermak, in his talk here yesterday, seemed to have the interests of the small taxpayers thoroughly at heart. I believe these assessing changes are in line with their demands."

When the senate adjourned Leonardo was asked his reason for voting against the bill.

"I'd never vote to put people out of office who have been elected by the people," he said.

Court of Appeals Denies Rehearing of Oliver Case

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday denied a rehearing of the case of County Assessor Gene G. Oliver, who recently was sentenced by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward to 18 months in the penitentiary at Leavenworth for violation of the income tax law. Oliver still may appeal to the Supreme court.

Accuses Helen Morgan at Murder Trial.

Flint, Mich., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Miss Helen Joy Morgan, 27, Flint heiress and former Chicago resident, on trial for murder, today heard a state witness testify he saw her drag the body of her sweetheart, Leslie Casteel, 38, from an automobile and leave it on a lonely road last April.

HELEN JOY MORGAN.

This witness, Nelson Roome, testified that while he was picking dandelions in the cemetery, where it is charged Miss Morgan slew Casteel, he saw Miss Morgan deposit the body in the middle of the road, brush her clothing, return to the car, and drive away.

Roome testified that a short time before an automobile containing a man and woman passed him and soon afterwards turned from the main highway and stopped. Several shots were fired, after which Roome ran to a pumping station about half a mile away and notified the police.

Admits Giving Two Versions.

Under cross examination Roome admitted he had given two versions of what occurred on the cemetery road.

On direct testimony Roome said he heard shots followed by a woman's screams after he had seen the car pass and looked to see the woman dragging a man's body from the car. On cross examination he admitted that he had told a reporter the night of the shooting that he had heard the woman scream before he heard the shots.

Later, he said, he thought the matter over and decided he had heard the screams after.

Policeman Wears Overcoat.

A policeman donned the blood-stained overcoat worn by Casteel the night he was slain and paraded before the jury this afternoon.

Counsel for Miss Morgan protested against admission of the exhibit, but Prosecutor Ralph M. Freeman said the purpose was to show the course of five bullets fired into Casteel's body and won his point.

TAXPAYERS' BILL FOR LIQUOR TOLD AT CANAL TRIAL

Seller Testifies About His Big Profits.

One of the channels through which the beer and whisky flowed into the sanitary district offices during the whoopee régime of 1927-'28 when Timothy J. Crowe was president of the board of trustees was revealed yesterday in Chief Justice Harry Fisher's Criminal court when two business men took the witness stand to tell of unusual methods to get business.

The evidence indicated that the taxpayers in the end paid for the entertainment of their elected officials because the "gratuities," as they were termed in court, were just added to the price of the articles purchased. Crowe and seven others are on trial on charges of graft conspiracy.

Whisky Flowed at Parties.

George B. Dietrich, who lives in Oak Park and maintains business headquarters at 600 West Van Buren street, testified that whisky flowed freely at the district whoopee parties. He also said that some of the officials of the district always had choice seats at the opening nights at theaters, at important football games, and ringside seats at prize fights. Dietrich testified that he had to buy tickets from the scalpers sometimes, but he always got them no matter what the price because in the end the taxpayers paid.

Charles J. Frenzel, one of the owners of Frenzel Bros. & Co., cinder contractors, testified as to the price of cinders for the $1,068,000 cinder bridle path adjoining the north shore channel road. He said he made campaign contributions of $1,500 in exchange for selling the district some 70,000 cubic yards of cinders at $1.90 per yard while he would have sold them to "contractors" at $1 per yard.

He also admitted that the district was kind enough to ship him 38 carloads of its own cinders, pay the freight to within 200 feet of the cinder path, and then allow him to charge $1.90 per cubic yard for its own cinders.

Not Willing Witnesses.

Dietrich talked much more freely than Frenzel while on the witness stand, although it was obvious that neither was what the prosecution would term a willing witness. When Judge Fisher and his associates, Judges James J. Kelly and John Prystalski, started in to question the two witnesses about their manner of dealing with the district the phrase, "Now let me explain that, judge," was frequently heard.

The dealings of both witnesses, they said, were through Timothy Connolly, former purchasing agent for the district, who was indicted with the officials now on trial and who was recently arrested in San Diego. Connolly is now being brought back to Chicago.

Prosecutor Northup hopes to force Connolly to become a state's witness and in that way make direct connections with some of the defendants. He is expected to arrive before the trial is resumed again next Monday.

Tells of Delivering Whisky.

Dietrich's testimony about the delivery of whisky, which ran as high as 25 cases per month, caused some speculation earlier in the day, which was explained when he resumed the stand after the luncheon period. He delivered some whisky in case lots to a Miss Murphy on North Karlov avenue. She is now Mrs. Connolly. He also delivered some on Washington boulevard, but not to Crowe's home, which is on this thoroughfare, he said, but to Connolly's home.

Dietrich started out his testimony by telling of the formation at Connolly's request of several different companies. The records of these companies were burned in 1929. The companies were the Illinois Supply company, Great Western Manufacturing company, Holden Construction and Material company and the Continental Supply company. They are all out of business now. It cost Dietrich, he said, more than $50,000 in gratuities to do $299,325 worth of business.

Splits Up Companies.

Dietrich's testimony under the questioning of Prosecutor Northup was as follows:

Q.—How did you happen to form all these companies? A.—Connolly asked me to split up the business because there would be too much jealousy among the competitors if one company got all the business.

Q.—After you were on intimate terms with Connolly did he ask you to furnish him with anything? A.—Yes, he asked for whisky. At first perhaps it was a few bottles, and then it was cases.

25 Cases Per Month.

Q.—How many cases did it reach? A.—As high as 25 cases a month. I bought it for $135 and $140 a case.

Q.—Did you think Connolly drank all this whisky himself? A.—I asked him once, but received no answer.

Q.—How was the whisky delivered? A.—Most of the time he sent over for it.

Q.—Were you called on to supply prize fight tickets? A.—Yes, ringside seats from 4 to 8 at a time.

Q.—And were you asked to supply theater and football game tickets. A.—Yes, about the same as the prize fights.

Q.—Did you think this flow of whisky and the purchase of these tickets helped in getting the business? A.—It always does.

Necessary for Business.

Q.—Did you feel that you had to do these things to get the district business? A.—Perhaps it was necessary. I thought so anyhow.

Q.—How much do you estimate it cost you to do business with the district? A.—About $50,000 a year.

Q.—How could you stand the gaff? I mean how could your profits justify such expenditures? A.—The profits on the merchandise justified the expenditures. No prices were stipulated on any orders. We made our own prices. As a bulk, the business carried the burden of the expense bills.

Q.—Was any complaint ever made that your prices were exorbitant. A.—None that I can recall, although there may have been an instance or two where I was asked to change the inventory.

The witness said his companies did some business with legitimate concerns and that they aimed to make a profit of 10 to 20 per cent. The district business carried a profit of 50 to 100 per cent to carry the cost of the whisky, Canadian beer, and the demand for contributions to political programs and purchase of tickets for political affairs.

"Did you ever read the code of ethics of the Association of Commerce?" Judge Kelly demanded of Dietrich. He said he never had, although a member.

Testimony About Cinders.

Frenzel in his testimony admitted that he owned the Chicago Grading company in addition to the concern operated under his own name. He said he formed this company because Connolly suggested it. Thomas H. Byrnes, former superintendent of streets, was a partner in the Frenzel concern, he said. Frenzel was confronted with his price lists showing that he sold cinders for $1 a cubic yard in Chicago and $1.25 outside the limits. He explained that price was for "contractors."

"Connolly told me to form the grading company so it wouldn't look so fishy," explained the witness.

The sanitary district, although buying more cinders than any customer Frenzel had, was not considered a contractor and was charged $1.90 per yard for cinders.

Paid for Own Cinders.

Frenzel then told of the cinder deal whereby the district loaded its own cinders on freight cars, paid the freight and then allowed Frenzel to charge them the same price as for other cinders. He was questioned as follows:

Q.—Why didn't you pay the feright? A.—I never got the bill, but I am willing to pay it now.

Q.—Are you ready now to pay the difference between $1.90 and a fair, reasonable price for the cinders you sold the district? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you make any campaign contributions? A.—Yes, I paid $1,000 to either John T. Miller [one of the defendants] or Connolly. I gave them a check and then a little later I was called back and asked to raise the ante a little. I then gave another $500.

U. S. OPENS QUIZ INTO DEALING OF H. O. STONE & CO.

Stock Sales by Mail Are Under Scrutiny.

An investigation into the books, records, and other documents pertaining to the sale of bonds and stocks by the defunct H. O. Stone & Co., investment and realty concern, was begun yesterday by postal inspectors.

Through personal solicitation and advertisements, a large amount of stock in H. O. Stone & Co. was sold at $12 and $15 a share in the spring of 1930, according to prosecutors who are in charge of the case in the district attorney's office. Prospective customers, it is charged, were informed that the stock would be worth $30 to $35 a share in a short time, and these representations were followed by letters boosting the stock and the profits to be made from it. A few months later the stock was worth less than $1 a share.

Assets Already Sold.

The entire assets of H. O. Stone & Co. were sold at public auction in Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward's court a week ago for $137,500. The purchaser was the Continental-Illinois Bank and Trust company. Several thousand investors with claims of $14,500,000 will receive nothing.

Judge Woodward had appointed the Chicago Title and Trust company as receiver for the H. O. Stone Investment Trust and subsidiaries in December, 1930. The company had been reorganized in 1929 and the officers at the time of the crash were Henry F. Norcott, president; H. D. Bennett, executive vice president; Claude C. Niles, vice president; Charles P. Packer, treasurer; and M. W. George, secretary.

Investors Trade Securities.

Many of the investors, who lost heavily when the house closed its doors, had been induced by H. O. Stone & Co. to trade real estate mortgage bonds for securities of the Lawsonia Realty corporation, a subsidiary of H. O. Stone & Co., or the debenture bonds and common stock of H. O. Stone & Co., it is charged. The investors were persuaded to make the change, it is alleged, on the false representation that the bonds they first held would go into default.

JAPANESE SHOT; RACIAL ROW IN HONOLULU GROWS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Jan. 6.—A Japanese boy, suspected of peeping, was shot today by an army officer, adding one more to the steadily mounting list of casualties which have resulted from the tense racial situation here.

In another case an American soldier was taken to a hospital after being hit by a piece of pipe by a Hawaiian girl, who said he entered her room. urday, while a Filipino from an American transport was filled by a traffic officer Monday when, it is said, he refused to obey the officer's command to halt.

The racial antagonism gained sudden impetus in September when an American naval officer's wife was raped. Five men were tried for the crime, but a mistrial resulted. Three weeks ago one of the five men was beaten up, and native elements charged United States sailors were responsible. Street riots resulted.

Gov. Judd and Admiral Stirling today discussed the possibility of cancelling the United States fleet maneuvers here as a result of the situation, which led high naval officers to declare Honolulu was unsafe for their wives.

NEW RADIO PHONE PERMITS SEVERAL TALKS ON 1 WAVE

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 6.—An important invention in the radio field has been patented by W. I. C. Vanderhorst of Rotterdam.

The invention permits the simultaneous broadcasting of several secret radio-telephonic conversations over one transmitter and one wave length from any given point.

Of additional great importance is the fact the wave length is not widened, hence there is no interference with other transmitters.

UNABLE TO PAY DEBT OF $108,000 TO CLOSED BANK

Dismissed by Court on Poverty Plea.

Robert Goldstein, 65 years old, a real estate operator, who is indebted to the defunct Sheridan Trust and Savings bank for $108,000, pleaded poverty yesterday before Circuit Judge Feinberg. The judge is attempting to discover hidden assets for the bank receiver.

"As a former rich man I stand here and tell you I haven't a dime," Goldstein said. "Everything I had is gone. I have borrowed from my associates, sold my car and resigned from all my clubs. I am attempting to start life anew by organizing a novelty business and am living on $35 a week." The judge dismissed him.

Debtor Gives Deed for Home.

Before Goldstein testified Victor J. Curto, a director of the bank, was on the stand for the third time. He had previously refused to turn over a $150,000 trust fund to meet an obligation of $150,000 to the bank. Yesterday he deeded his $100,000 home at 2100 Pratt boulevard to the bank and made his first payment of $150 a month to the bank for its rental.

William A. Burdette, another director of the bank, was threatened with contempt of court for giving alleged evasive answers regarding his assets. Burdette has also been on the witness stand three times, drawing judicial wrath on each occasion for his creation of trust funds, which the judge holds were made to evade payment of an obligation in excess of $90,000.

Warned of Contempt.

Burdette informed the court that he was ordained a minister in 1918. Later he organized a company to promote aluminum clubs among women which became the foundation of a fortune, once reputed to be $3,000,000.

"You haven't forgotten the gospel teachings to treat thy neighbor as thyself?" the judge asked. "Don't you care to follow it in this case?"

Burdette said he did, but felt that he had prior obligations of $280,000. The judge warned him that he might be held in contempt for evasive answers.

R. Le Roy Huszagh, broker, who owes the bank $51,717 on a note, testified he could find a customer for his 625 shares of stock in the Aragon Amusement corporation to meet the obligation. He was told to return Monday with the purchaser.

Promises to Sell Realty.

Henry J. Kopp, 2245 Winnemac avenue, a tile setter, told the court he would sell real estate he owns to meet his obligation of $5,500 to the bank. He was praised for his helpful attitude. The judge will resume the hearings this afternoon.

The Farmers and Merchants State bank of Highland, Ind., a suburb of Gary, closed yesterday. The bank closed eleven months ago and was reopened when depositors rallied to reorganize it. State Bank Examiner John Meyers withheld announcement of the bank's deposits. Resources were given as $225,000.

MENACE FIFTEEN IN ROBBERY.

Three gunmen lined fifteen customers and employés against the wall in I. Fohrman & Co., used automobiles and accessories at 2255 South State street yesterday, and fled with $807 loot from the safe.

Police Hold Slayer After Coroner's Jury Acquits Him

A verdict of justifiable homicide was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the slaying of Edward G. Lewis, 41 years old, 4109 Sheridan road, an ex-convict, on Dec. 13. Alfred Gervasi, 44 years old, 2243 West 24th street, said he shot Lewis in self defense. Capt. Albert Mikes of the Marquette station arrested Gervasi after the coroner's jury had freed him and announced that he would charge Gervasi with manslaughter.

SAYS 1,100,000 IN ILLINOIS ARE OUT OF JOBS NOW

Ryerson Tells Senators of Relief Needs.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—There are in Illinois more than 1,100,000 jobless persons who are able and willing to work, Edward L. Ryerson Jr., head of Gov. Emmerson's relief commission, told a senate subcommittee today.

E. L. RYERSON JR. [Tribune Photo.]

That was the number estimated on Oct. 15, he said, and since then the number has "undoubtedly increased." He submitted a report prepared by Howard B. Meyers, chief of the bureau of statistics of the Illinois state department of labor, estimating the present number of unemployed in the state at 1,173,000, of which 651,000 are in Chicago, and 88,000 in Cook county outside Chicago.

Charity Demands Growing.

"A large and increasing number of Illinois citizens are being forced to depend on charity in order to live," Mr. Ryerson declared. "Taking the state as a whole, private charity alone cannot furnish sufficient funds to meet the relief needs of the coming year."

For the period from last Oct. 1, to Sept. 30, 1932, the total of relief funds needed by Cook county will be $26,500,000, less than half of which is in hand at present, Mr. Ryerson said.

Federal Grants Opposed.

Mr. Ryerson did not fall in with the idea of a direct federal relief grant as expressed in the bills introduced by Senators Robert M. La Follette Jr., insurgent Republican of Wisconsin, the subcommittee chairman, and Edward P. Costigan [Dem., Colo.].

"Illinois is taking care of her unemployed if $20 to $25 a month per family is taking care of them," he testified. "Of course none of this is really taking care of them. Work is what is needed. But to use relief funds for made work costs too much."

He was not sure that the emergency gas tax bill now pending in the Illinois legislature would raise sufficient funds, particularly in Cook county's case. He believed a bond issue necessary and practicable.

Declines Are Recorded.

The following table, furnished by Mr. Ryerson, was put into the record:

Per cent of decline between Sept. 15, 1929, and Nov. 15, 1931.

	Employment.	Pay rolls.
All Illinois industries	34.1	46.0
All Illinois mfg. industries	41.1	58.9
Chicago mfg. industries	38.5	58.0

Some 250,000 Illinois families, Mr. Ryerson estimated, were without regular means of support. The number of Chicago families helped by the five major agencies and the county, he said, had increased from 13,211 in October, 1930, to 74,023 in October, 1931, and to 90,287 in November, 1931.

CITY OF DETROIT CUTS PAY, LOPS 500 OFF ROLLS

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—By the cutting of salaries of approximately 1,200 city employés and the discharge of 500 or more from the various departments, Detroit apparently has saved itself from bankruptcy or the issuing of script. The action was taken in response to Mayor Frank Murphy's urgent request that it was the only way out and that it must go into immediate effect. The city council approved the cuts by a vote of 7 to 1.

MAYOR F. MURPHY. [Tribune Photo.]

Today, upon recommendation of Dr. Henry M. Vaughan, the commissioner of the department of health, dismissed 100 employés. The board of public works discharged approximately 300, including officials who have served the city for 25 years. Some of them were pensioned.

The Institute of Art was cut to a point where it is doubtful if it can remain open for many months. The cut affected every employé on the city pay rolls and ranged from 10 to 17 per cent of their salaries.

The board of education is expected to absorb a reduction of $1,300,000, possibly by having the teachers accept promissory notes for their last month's pay.

No More Piles

You Can End Your Awful Misery Quick Without Cutting or Salves

Thousands of Pile sufferers do not know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give permanent relief, why cutting does not remove the cause.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause—and not one minute before. External treatments can't do this—an internal medicine should be used. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

JOBLESS ARMY, 15,000 STRONG, ARRIVES IN CAPITAL; DEMAND JOBS

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Seeking the "right to work" and confident that congress tomorrow will listen to their pleas, an army of jobless estimated by police to number close to 15,000 reached Washington tonight and were escorted by police to great open property in southwest Washington. The army of jobless men, under the guidance of Father James R. Cox of the Old St. Patrick's church of Pittsburgh, went immediately to work to adjust themselves to the conditions they found.

Pup tents and other shelter reminiscent of a revolutionary army were hurriedly erected. Some of the men arranged blankets on the wet ground underneath the more than 1,000 automobiles and motor trucks in the motor roads, and about 2,000 others were escorted to downtown vacant buildings secured for them by the police.

There was nothing militant in the appearance of the "army" as it drove slowly through the streets of the city. Many of the men were well dressed, although soaked from the drenching rains encountered on the trip from Harrisburg, Pa., where Gov. Pinchot today addressed them and promised them his moral support.

Tonight, however, camp fires are burning on the Potomac and citizens of that section of the capital are wondering what is happening. The fires can be seen from the Virginia side of the river, police reported, and some calls are coming from there from excited residents of Alexandria and adjacent villages.

St. Paul Candy Maker Drops Dead in Evanston

A. T. Herschler, 58 years old, a candy manufacturer of St. Paul, Minn., dropped dead apparently from heart disease yesterday in the Packard Motor Car service station at 1735 East Railroad avenue, Evanston. Herschler registered Tuesday night at the Rogers Park hotel with Albert Bodwell of St. Paul, an official of the candy company, and they were waiting for Bodwell's car when the death occurred.

BILL IN SENATE ASKS USE OF GAS TAX FOR CHARITY

Plan Bears Indorsement of Gov. Emmerson.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—A bill to allow Illinois counties to use their 1 cent gas tax receipts for charity, for one year, if they choose, was introduced in the senate today by James J. Barbour [Rep., Evanston].

It bears the indorsement of Gov. Emmerson and the Joint Emergency Relief fund of Cook county. He said this bill, according to George F. Getz, honorary chairman of the governor's commission of unemployment and relief, will be pushed rather than the one introduced several weeks ago which sought a 2 cent increase in gas tax to provide an additional $10,000,000 for Chicago charity.

Mr. Getz conferred with the governor this morning and shortly afterwards the bill reached the senate. Mr. Barbour explained that Cook county's share of the tax would probably reach $5,000,000 this year and that the measure would make it optional for the county to use the money for roads or charity.

Mr. Getz explained to reporters that the Emergency Relief fund needs $10,000,000 in addition to a like fund it raised by popular subscription in Cook county and that the Barbour bill, if passed, would give half that amount.

Plan Drive for Funds to Run Hammond Schools

Civic organizations in Hammond yesterday prepared for a drive for funds to keep the public schools open. School board officials said that virtually all school funds were tied up in closed banks. Representatives of the school board, the city council, the chamber of commerce, and other civic bodies met yesterday.

N. Y. BANK SUES TO FORECLOSE ON 53 STORY BLDG.

30 Million Structure on Rocks.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—The $30,000,000 Lincoln building, eighth among the tallest skyscrapers of Manhattan, went on the financial rocks today. It was the twentieth skyscraper to face foreclosure proceedings in recent months and real state operators freely predict that five more major buildings will be thrown into the courts within eight weeks. Foreclosures in this city passed the 300 million dollar mark during 1931.

While the Chase National bank was instituting proceedings to foreclose a $16,000,000 mortgage on the Lincoln building a receiver was being asked for the 36 story Court-Montague street office building in downtown Brooklyn by a brokerage firm.

Structure of 53 Stories.

The Lincoln building, one of the newest landmarks on 42d street in the Grand Central zone, is a luxurious office building, 53 stories or 673 feet high. It was opened in March, 1930, and for a time housed 11,000 persons with a yearly rental of approximately $4,528,000.

Construction was begun in the boom days of 1929 by the Lincoln-Forty-second Street corporation, defendant in the present foreclosure suit.

The $16,000,000 mortgage which brought on the suit was entered into on June 1, 1928, and it provided that interest payments of $440,000 should be made semi-annually. The corporation, according to the complaint by the Chase National bank, failed to make the regular payment on Dec. 1.

Broker Starts Action.

The Brooklyn skyscraper receivership action was started by Martin Fuchs, broker, who maintained that the owner corporation, the Court-Montague Realty company, had assigned all rents to the Bank of United States, second mortgagee, and that "there is grave danger some of the creditors may obtain undue preference."

Foreclose on Hotels.

Foreclosure sales fluctuated between $50,000,000 and $30,000,000 weekly during the last year, with Manhattan realty being hardest hit. Hotel buildings went under the auctioneers hammer almost weekly and last October a receiver for the Manhattan Towers, a 24 story church and apartment building, was appointed after foreclosure action by the Bank of Manhattan.

The largest previous individual real estate foreclosure came last October when the Benenson City terminal holdings valued at $28,000,000 were put on the auction block.

Drafts Bill for 10 Per Cent City Tax on Amusements

Corporation Counsel Sexton yesterday drafted a bill providing for a city tax of 10 per cent on the receipts of theaters and amusements other than athletic contests, at the request of the city council finance committee. If the bill is approved by the aldermen it will be sent to Springfield, with a request that the legislature enact it. If enacted, the money to be received by the city would be divided, with 7 per cent going into a special fund for the unemployed and the remainder into the city's corporate fund.

RADICALS BLOCK HOOVER'S CREDIT RELIEF PROGRAM

Deny It Right of Way in Senate.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Through Senator John J. Blaine of Wisconsin, the senate radicals today began an attack on the President's legislative program in an effort to win administration concessions in the way of direct federal relief to the unemployed.

By Senator Blaine's objection a unanimous consent argeement to the immediate consideration of the federally financed two billion dollars reconstruction finance corporation was prevented, and debate forced to go over until tomorrow. The bill which is the biggest and probably the most ambitious of those recommended by President Hoover is designed to support the credit of banks and other security holding institutions and to assist the railroads.

"The bill," Senator Blaine told the senate, "is designed to come to the aid of the very institutions responsible for the present situation; and to produce an upturn in the stock market. It should not be rushed through the senate. The same conditions obtained last year, but the President stubbornly and willfully refused to call congress into session.

"So it is unfair to rush through in a moment a bill in which there is no single mouthful of food for the hungry, no single day of work for the working man."

Senator Frederic C. Walcott [Rep., Conn.], sponsor of the bill, declared that the "emergency is growing more acute," that the country needs the revenues from the proposed corporation, and that the proposed organization should "quickly function." Senator A. W. Barkley [Dem., Ky.], suggested that debate proceed.

Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] too, begged for debate to go ahead, but Mr. Blaine retorted that the bill "permitted almost unlimited appropriations to pay for dead horses."

HOB STORE OF WHISKY.

Besides forcing Arthur Goldstein, manager of a Whelan drug store at 3959 Lawrence avenue, to hand over $85 from the cash register and $2 in postage stamps, two bandits stuffed six pints of whisky, all they could carry, into their pockets yesterday and fled.

Keep an eye on your wife

Sometimes appearance is deceiving. That's why we suggest that you keep an eye on your wife. Possibly she isn't as happy as she seems. Some time you may catch her when she's off guard and surprise a little wistful look on her face. Is she worrying about you? After all, most wives are so loyal and proud, and rather reluctant to speak up. This may be miles from the fact—but there's a chance she's distressed because you aren't as careful about shaving as you were in times past.

Of course this suggestion is selfish on our part, but is nevertheless a valuable hint. We urge you to be particular in the blade you choose and the way you use it. Today Gillette is offering a far superior razor blade. It makes frequent, close shaving comfortable and reasonably pleasant. Try it on our guarantee. Buy a package and use two blades. If you don't agree every shave is free from harshness and irritation—however tender your skin—return the package to your dealer and get your money back

BRITAIN SWINGS 'MAILED FIST' TO CRUSH INDIA FOES

Decrees Open Jail for All Gandhi Followers.

BOMBAY, Jan. 7.—(AP)—Turbulent India was in what amounted to a state of siege today as the British government's extraordinary summary measures, dealing with every phase of Nationalist activity, became operative.

New and sweeping special decrees, covering the whole Bombay presidency, outlawed 500 Nationalist organizations, including such institutions as anti-drink leagues, spinning schools and boys' boarding schools.

All citizens were warned that, without trial, they might be sentenced to two years of hard labor for peaceful picketing, persuading any one not to pay taxes, boycotting British goods or public servants, or contributing funds to the Nationalist cause.

Even Children Under Ban.

Other ordinances, operative in all India, empowered the authorities to fine even children for Nationalist activities, the fines being collectable from their parents. Collective fines may be imposed on whole villages and towns.

The authorities may make arrests, raids and searches without warrants, or order the imprisonment of persons without trial. They may control public utility services, posts, telegraphs, railroads and steamships, and exercise the right of confiscation of property.

The government may seize stocks of commodities from private citizens or corporations, compensating them at a price fixed by the government. The publication of false rumors may be punished by a year's imprisonment. Local authorities are empowered to demand the assistance of any citizen in keeping public order or in guarding life and property.

All Leaders Are Jailed.

Almost every prominent leader of the all-India national congress has been arrested. Police took them in by the scores. Thirty leaders were arrested early today at Ahmadabad, where Mahatma Gandhi's Ashram—hotel for disciples—is situated. Thus far in the conflict the casualties include four dead, two at Benares and two at Allahabad. Police fired 14 rounds on a defiant mob at Allahabad yesterday, killing two persons and injuring 100. Numerous others were injured in a police lathi charge at Cawnpore. Small boys at Cawnpore stoned a policeman, injuring him so badly he had to go to a hospital.

In Nationalist strongholds throughout India armed military and police forces paraded the streets to show their strength.

Banks, retail stores, and British insurance and shipping companies suffered a serious slump in trade. Nearly all Hindu stores, schools, and colleges remained closed in mourning for the arrest of Mahatma Gandhi, the leader of the Nationalists.

Party Funds Tied Up.

Both the government and the Nationalists played a watching game, waiting to see each other's plans before launching a heavy offensive.

The government delivered a crippling blow at the congress party yesterday by tying up its treasury, amounting to about $15,000. The congress leaders had taken the precaution of transferring the party funds to private accounts of individual members in two Indian banks, but the police ordered the banks to issue no money against those accounts.

Some observers expressed fear that, if the government arrested all Nationalist leaders as it has planned, the illiterate masses, left without guidance, might take matters into their own hands with violent results.

Gandhi Gets Good Treatment.

In his jail at Poona Mahatma Gandhi continued to enjoy every courtesy. He was even permitted contact with other Nationalist prisoners. The mahatma declined the usual prison fare, preferring his goat's milk, dates, and oranges.

How long Gandhi would be allowed to remain in his comfortable surroundings was problematical. There were persistent rumors that he and other leaders might be deported.

GEORGIA GIRL GOES WOOING WITH PISTOL AND GETS A HUSBAND

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—A pistol in the hand of Miss Lovie Teel, 24, Columbus, Ga., Dec. 23, brought about her marriage to John Rigdon, former University of Georgia football player, and the same gun was used to force Probate Judge John Dudley of Seale, Ala., to perform the ceremony, according to Judge Dudley today.

News of the marriage developed today when a divorce petition was filed at Columbus, home of the bridegroom. In the petition Rigdon claimed his bride "immediately before the marriage ceremony was performed threatened to kill me if I did not marry her and made other threats during the five hours immediately preceding the ceremony."

The judge said he issued the license and performed the ceremony under protest.

7 ARGENTINE COPS SLAIN IN HUNT FOR "3 IRISH REBELS"

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARANA, Argentina, Jan. 6.—Argentine police were repulsed by rebels near La Paz today when they sought to capture the "three rebel Irishmen" who led the revolt in Entre Rios province Sunday. Seven policemen were reported killed, and six wounded in today's battle.

The three Irishmen are brothers, Mario, Eduardo, and Raul Kennedy. They are descendants of an Irish immigrant and are known in Entre Rios province for their herculean strength, their proficiency with knives and revolvers, and their love for adventure.

The rebel followers of the Kennedys are reported to be marching on La Paz. Police and volunteer troops and two warships are on the way to the scene, while army airplanes have been sent to bombard the outlaw band.

Police today stumbled upon the hiding place of the three brothers in a thicket near Mario Kennedy's ranch, about 50 miles from La Paz, but were defeated in the ensuing clash because they had also chanced upon the main body of insurgents.

After the battle police reinforcements were rushed to the scene. They have surrounded the ranch, while planes are flying overhead. The planes dropped twelve bombs on the ranch.

Argentina Protests to Uruguay.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Jan. 6.—Diplomatic relations between Uruguay and Argentina are rapidly becoming strained as a result of Sunday's attempted revolt in the province of Entre Rios. The Argentine ambassador here today presented a note to the Uruguayan government which the ambassador said is a formal protest. He admitted its wording was energetic.

Argentine authorities charge the revolt was plotted on Uruguayan territory and blame the Uruguayan government for not watching Argentine political exiles closer.

Uruguayan newspapers, even those politically opposed to the government, describe Argentina's protest as unjustified.

BRITAIN LASHED BY 93 MILE GALE AND 'HEAT' WAVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 6.—The south coast of Great Britain was lashed by the winter's worst gale tonight, while northern Europe was afflicted generally with freak weather. The wind off England reached a velocity of 93 miles an hour.

In contrast to the distressed shipping, air service to Paris was not interrupted, and a 90 year high temperature record was broken in England while severe cold took several lives in Portugal.

The steamer Jersey City was reported in distress off the Scilly isles tonight with its engines broken down. The vessel is drifting and has asked for help.

Warships Caught in Storm.

The Atlantic fleet was prevented from starting its spring cruise today. Several British warships met storm adventures. The destroyer Vendetta developed engine trouble off Southsea Castle and had to be towed into harbor. An explosion in the engine room of the destroyer Wessex off Chatham injured two men.

The battleship Royal Sovereign rushed tonight to the assistance of the freighter Trevaylor, which is drifting off Eddystone lighthouse without a propeller. The warship is standing by throughout the night.

Lisbon reported intense cold, accompanied by a dense fog, which paralyzed shipping and land traffic. There has been no rain in two months and farming in all parts of the country is severely damaged.

The River Tua is frozen at Mirandella, something never before seen in Portugal.

It is reported from The Hague that the Dutch East Indian islands of Bali and Lombok are stricken by disastrous floods and hurricanes. Villages were destroyed. Submarine cables from Singapore to the Dutch Indies and Port Darwin have been interrupted and the islands are completely isolated. Airplanes have been dispatched to investigate.

EXPECT JURY TO EXONERATE GARY CHEMIST TODAY

William R. Gibson, Gary, chemist, probably will be exonerated by a coroner's jury today of charges that he murdered his wife, Mrs. Florence Gibson, and their 1 year old daughter, Margaret, on Tuesday night. After questioning a colored maid, Mae Marsh, police expressed the belief that Mrs. Gibson shot her daughter and then killed herself while temporarily insane. Mrs. Gibson told the maid early Tuesday night, just before the maid left, that "you will never see me alive again." Gibson said he returned home late at night to find his wife and daughter dead.

MRS. VANDERBILT UNDERGOES KNIFE THIS MORNING

Newport, R. I., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt will be operated upon at the Newport hospital tomorrow morning, according to a spokesman for the family today. The operation, which is regarded as of a major nature, will be performed by Dr. Charles W. Stewart, surgeon at the hospital, assisted by Dr. M. H. Sullivan, a New York physician, and a staff of nurses from that city.

Before her marriage in December, 1929, Mrs. Vanderbilt was Anne Gordon Colby of New Jersey. She is the mother of twins born several months ago. Her husband is the son of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt.

ADAMS TOLD HE SHOULD RESIGN IF FOR BIG NAVY

Views Called Disloyalty to Hoover.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams today clashed with a Democratic member of the house naval affairs committee when the latter questioned his loyalty to President Hoover and suggested the cabinet member emulate the example set by William Jennings Bryan and resign.

The charge of disloyalty was hurled at Mr. Adams by Representative James V. McClintic [Dem., Okla.], a little navy member of the committee, after the cabinet member had voiced approval yesterday of the Vinson 616 million dollar naval authorization bill, a measure not yet approved by the President.

Secretary Adams immediately and indignantly denied that his appearance before the committee yesterday disclosed any disloyalty to his commander in chief. He resented, he said, any implication that he was not loyal to President Hoover.

Nation's Security Imperilled.

The Adams-McClintic clash climaxed a lively committee session during which navy witnesses asserted that passage of new naval warship legislation was absolutely necessary in the interests of national security. Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, said vessels were becoming so old and worthless that the nation's security might be endangered if a satisfactory naval program is not authorized.

McClintic tossed his bombshell a few moments after Admiral Pratt had begun his testimony.

Suggests Adams Resign.

"If Secretary Adams is not in accord with the President's view on matters of vital interest to the nation and the world, then, following the precedents established by William Jennings Bryan and others while serving in the cabinet, he should resign," McClintic said.

The attack by McClintic was inspired by the belief that Secretary Adams, a loyal cabinet member, should have refrained from personally commenting on the Vinson bill before President Hoover either approved or disapproved it. Mr. Adams, however, took the view that the committee member had a right to his personal views.

Today's evidence made it clear that any naval legislation passed at this session of congress will not have the sympathy of President Hoover. Admiral Pratt disclosed that the navy general board had first prepared a bill similar to the Vinson measure and then had reduced it to a one year program in the hope of obtaining White House approval, but had failed. Admiral Pratt said, however, that President Hoover had advised the navy department to supply any information asked by congress.

Arms Delegates All Peace Loving Souls—Stimson

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Stimson today called the American delegates to the Geneva disarmament conference, the most practical pacifists I know. He grew quite peppery about it as he replied to Representative Charles A. Karch, Democrat, from East St. Louis, Ill., who, at a meeting of the house foreign affairs committee considering the $450,000 appropriation for the conference expenses, asked him, "if this is a peace conference, why are we sending a delegation made up of such militarists?"

Stimson bounced forward in his chair and fairly shouted out his answer.

All Peace Men, He Asserts.

"I know every man and woman in that delegation. There is not a militarist among them. I know that personally, not from hearsay."

Others in the committee expressed a contrary fear.

Representative Cyrenus Cole [Rep., Ia.], wanted to know whether our participation in a conference called by the league of nations, might not "implicate, if not complicate us" with the league.

"Absolutely not," Secretary Stimson declared.

But the scope of the coming meeting, he explained, has widened considerably from its first dimensions, which were merely those of the technical disarmament, to a general discussion, "not only of peace, but of those foundations which underlie peace, and upon which the stability of the entire world now depend."

U. S. Army Reduced—Stimson.

As far as America is concerned, Secretary Stimson pointed out, her questions of disarmament have already been settled. The navy is already limited, and the army has been reduced to such figures he maintained, "that no foreign statesman can say with a straight face that it is a menace to anybody."

Stressing the fact that the coming conference is not a snapshot, but the result of a 12 year development through preliminary conferences, the secretary predicted that it carried with it in a large measure the hopes of the peace loving people of the entire world.

Blow at Depression, He Says.

"I realize," he said, "that under present world wide depression, there is a widely extended pessimism and cynicism. People are apt to get that way when they feel poor and are suffering. But this conference is directly aimed at some of the evils which have promoted the depression and unless something is done along these lines, the hopes of the entire world will be dashed and brooding and depression will be increased."

Because there are to be 50 participating nations, instead of the five of the London conference, Secretary Stimson feels that eight months is a short maximum to put on the duration of the meetings. Therefore, he thought it would be a good thing if the $450,000 expense appropriation asked for in the Linthicum bill could be increased. But the committee members told him that they couldn't get a higher figure through the house.

LEVEES AND DIKES CRUMBLE BEFORE WALL OF WATER

New Orleans, La., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—A wall of water from the Tallahatchie river is rushing down the valley and in many localities the fight to hold it back has been abandoned.

Dikes are crumbling and thousands of acres have been flooded. The situation at Twilight Matthew Bayou and Grassy Lake on the east bank of the Tallahatchie river and Glendora, Jones, Federic, Ross and Reynolds levee district is desperate. Convicts and other laborers are exhausted from the ceaseless fight they have waged for days.

Railroads are finding it difficult to send sandbags to the affected areas. At Philip, a big fleet of boats has been assembled to remove marooned victims from their homes. It is estimated that 15,000 are in need of help.

M. R. Krick, representing the Red Cross, arrived on the scene today and commenced organizing relief forces.

Citizens of Charleston, Miss., have appealed to the federal government for flood aid from United States army reserves. Washington immediately ordered Col. W. J. Davis of Jackson to the scene. Greenwood, Miss., relief workers also urged Gov. Bilbo to send National Guard cots and tents.

BAD BOLIVIAN LOAN BLAMED ON STATE DEPT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—How the state department's fears lest Latin-American relations be disrupted led it to disregard the warnings of the department of commerce concerning the financial instability of certain South American countries, was told to the senate finance committee today by Grosvenor M. Jones, chief of the finance and investment division of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce.

G. M. JONES, [Clinedinst Photo.]

And he told, also, how American bankers and investment houses disregarded the import of departmental statements and had gone ahead selling the American public hundreds of millions of dollars worth of South American bond issues, many of which are now in default.

A Bolivian loan for $23,000,000 was floated in the United States in 1928 without official objection, despite an official opinion that "Bolivia was borrowing too much," Mr. Jones testified, saying that "We reluctantly gave our consent because at that time our Latin-American relations were upset."

Likewise, a Colombia short term credit for $20,000,000 was not stopped, he testified, although it was issued after the commercial attaché at Bogota had written to Dr. Julius Klein, of the commerce department, expressing the opinion that "Colombia is running wild on borrowing."

STATE DEPT. BLAMED BY GLASS FOR ALL FOREIGN LOAN LOSSES

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—(AP)—The state department was charged today by Senator Glass with "moral responsibility" for every dollar that has been lost by Americans in foreign bonds.

The Virginia Democrat made his charge in reference to testimony before the senate finance committee today that the state department gave its sanction to loans which the commerce department considered unsafe.

"I pointed out to congress two years ago," Glass said, off the floor, "that the state department was engaging in this lawless procedure, and the senate adopted a resolution calling on Secretary Stimson to say by what right the department assumes to approve or disapprove the loans.

"He made a reply that was idiotic and the senate passed a resolution calling upon them to desist. Stimson practically said the next day he was going to ignore the senate's action.

"The state department is morally responsible for every dollar lost on these investments.

"They had a clerk passing on the loans that didn't know any more about them than my cat."

U. S. WORKS FOR FRANCO-GERMAN WAR SWAG PACT

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—American Ambassadors Frederic M. Sackett and Walter E. Edge today continued their efforts to induce Europe to take the initiative in reaching a mutual understanding on the questions of reparations and war debts without always looking to America for guidance.

Chancellor Bruening conferred with the two American ambassadors at luncheon at the American embassy this noon. This meeting was given additional importance by the other guests. They were B. W. von Buelow, German secretary of state for foreign affairs; Dieckhoff, head of the British and American departments of the foreign office; Herman Warmbold, minister of economics; Ritter, the German government's leading financial expert; the British ambassador; the Japanese ambassador and Albert H. Wiggins of the Chase National bank of New York and head of the conference of world bankers.

Seek Franco-German Agreement.

Although the luncheon was called "purely a friendly meeting at which the diplomats exchanged views," well informed politicians believe efforts are being made to bring about a provisory understanding between France and Germany on the question of reparations.

Several diplomats have been trying to postpone the date of the reparations conference at Lausanne until after the French and Prussian elections in the spring. They contend it will be better for Europe if France and Prussia go to the polls before the showdown at the reparations conference, which they declare is bound to rekindle old hatreds.

Long Term Holders Enter Parley.

BERLIN, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Allen Wardwell, New York attorney, who is believed to be representing a protective committee organized by American holders of long term German bonds, arrived today but it could not be ascertained what part he will take in the international conference of bankers which has been going on here for several weeks. With the entrance of the long term bondholders, four factions are now interested in solving German's financial problems—short term credits as represented in the "standstill" agreement; reparations, short term credits not represented in the agreement, and long term bonds.

Seek to Protect Reichsbank.

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Local banks which are parties to the German credit standstill agreement expiring Feb. 29 said today that cabled reports from abroad purporting to describe details of an agreement reached at the Berlin negotiations between German and foreign bankers' committees were premature, but that progress was being made in solving a new plan.

It is said with authority here that the new standstill plan to be agreed on will involve principles which were more or less agreed upon before the Berlin negotiations started, and that these principles include that of allowing credits to stand within reasonable limits for as long a period as may be necessary, with monthly payments for amortization of credits which should be so dealt with.

In turn the amortization, the rate of which is one of the principal points now at issue in the negotiations, should be at the most rapid rate practicable, while at the same time not so rapid as to jeopardize the position of the reichsbank.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE RASKOB AMENDMENT.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, proposes in a letter to the committee that the Democratic national platform indorse the submission of an amendment to the constitution modifying the eighteenth. His proposal hinges upon the replies to the question he had sent out to the contributors to the Democratic campaign fund. The questions went to 77,000 Democrats; replies came back from 25,000, a more than average return as such things go. His analysis of the replies showed that on the question of resubmission at least 80 per cent out of every hundred replies, regardless of geography, were for it. This was true of southern dry states as well as of northern wet states. Consequently Mr. Raskob urges the adoption of his proposal.

The amendment he drafts would allow states to retain or discard the eighteenth amendment as the people of the state should decide. Federal prohibition would continue where the people preferred it to their own regional determination. It would be superseded by state regulation where the people chose to have state sovereignty back again.

There will be some confusion as to whether Mr. Raskob proposes a national referendum or not as a background for the procedure. He speaks of giving the people of the United States a chance to vote directly on the question, but we take it that he means that the opportunity shall be given them as citizens of their states. Proponents of a national referendum have never made clear how they intend to get at it. The United States does not conduct elections. Checking out this idea Mr. Raskob's proposal could be simplified to mean that congress should submit a constitutional amendment to the states for adoption with the provision, congress exercising its constitutional authority, that the action shall be by state conventions rather than by state legislatures.

Then the states, as they chose to do so, would elect delegates to state conventions and pass upon the question of the new amendment. If thirty-six states so acted and voted to adopt the amendment the United States would have taken a turn in the road. The submission of such an amendment or of an amendment making a straight repeal of the eighteenth amendment is the least which could be asked by opponents of federal prohibition. It would not settle anything immediately. It would not satisfy citizens who think that a prohibition of beer under the eighteenth amendment is unnecessary and unwise. Modification of the Volstead act would remain as an issue, but the submission of a constitutional amendment would open the door to a constitutional settlement of the whole question as contemplated by the American scheme of government. That cannot be opposed equitably or intelligently. If prohibitionists fight it the explanation is that they care nothing about legal processes, but demand what they have in any fashion required to keep it.

Mr. Raskob may not get to first base with his proposal, but that failure will be to the discredit of a party which has its traditional rationale in just such principles as support him—the right of the state to its police powers, the simplification of the federal government and the competence of the individual citizen.

NO RECESSIONAL.

Special prayers were authorized by the archbishops of Canterbury and York for use in the services of the Church of England. The opportunity was generally ignored, it is reported. The prayers were for optional use and there was no noncomformity in nonuse. The objection to them seems to have arisen from several considerations. For one thing the archbishops were regarded as too material and for another they offended the patriotic sense by being too contrite. They were too this-worldly in the phrase, "In the policy of our government for the restoration of credit and prosperity, thy will be done." They appear to have been too other-worldly in the concession: "Because we have indulged in national arrogance, finding satisfaction in our powers over others, rather than in our ability to serve them, forgive us our trespasses."

Such a conception of British disservice to the world through power and arrogance was too shocking for British self-consciousness of precisely opposite qualities. It could not be put in utterance, least of all in the utterance of a religious confession. These sins are the other fellows', particularly American fellows. The archbishops were plainly mistaken. Is it not notorious that it is principally the United States which has found satisfaction in power over others rather than in ability to serve them?

The primates of England ignored the profoundest sense in English feeling, the consciousness of rectitude. An American traveler who tried after banking hours to change some dollars into pounds at the cashier's desk in his hotel was told that it could not be done. No one could follow the eccentricities of foreign money. It bounced up and down too much. The pound is stable, but no Englishman can tell from day to day where the dollar is with reference to it. As the Irish mother shouted—all the regiment's out of step but Mike.

JULIUS ROSENWALD.

For the moment and quite naturally Julius Rosenwald the philanthropist is overshadowing Julius Rosenwald the business man. Certainly his generosity was beyond praise, and no less certainly he thought as clearly about the stewardship of wealth as any man in his generation. The emphasis upon his philanthropies is unfortunate only because it suggests that Mr. Rosenwald was one kind of man in business and quite a different sort of person when he stepped into the rôle of philanthropist.

Mr. Rosenwald's personality was not so divided. He was a great philanthropist because he was a great business man; or perhaps, more accurately, the qualities of mind which brought him a great fortune were disclosed again when he turned to deciding what to do with the wealth at his disposal.

Mr. Rosenwald amassed his fortune by developing a new merchandising technique. He entered the mail order business when it was young and revolutionized the buying habits of millions of men and women. He taught the farmers and the inhabitants of small towns that they could buy better goods for less money by ordering from a catalogue than by going to the country store. The manner in which Mr. Rosenwald became wealthy is typical of our era and perhaps of no era which preceded it. Almost without exception the greatest of the contemporary American fortunes have been built up either by teaching the mass of men to need new things or by supplying old wants in a new and superior fashion. Mr. Rockefeller founded his fortune through teaching men to use kerosene instead of candles to light their houses. Mr. Ford became rich by teaching men to ride in automobiles. And so on.

Whatever the particular service or commodity may have been, the man who became rich by supplying it has had to overcome the inertia which leads men to want to do things as they have always been done. The men who became wealthy in this new way have been innovators and in a real sense leaders and teachers.

It was altogether likely that those who had amassed great wealth by exploiting innovations should continue to show originality if they decided to give their money away. They would not be content with traditional alms giving. They would find, if they could, new ways of giving money which would be superior to the old ways. And they would start finding these new ways with a wholly different attitude toward wealth than was possessed by the owners of the great fortunes of previous eras, fortunes which had been amassed through tribute levying, hoarding, and unearned increment. To the rich of other generations wealth was static. To Mr. Rosenwald it was dynamic, useful only as it was used, and capable not only of relieving abject misery but of going far beyond that in educating men to want a more wholesome and happier life than they had ever before known.

Because Mr. Rosenwald had learned to regard wealth as a dynamic force he could not tolerate the thought of tying up the principal of his gifts in perpetuities. There can be no perpetuity in a changing world, he often said, for no human creation can last forever; but even if it had been possible to create such an endowment he would have had nothing to do with it. He wanted his gifts to achieve the maximum of results in a minimum of time. That end could not be reached by spending only 4 or 5 per cent of the gift each year. The amount to be spent must depend upon the work in hand and not upon the desire of the donor for an unattainable immortality.

Mr. Rosenwald had encountered inflexibility, timidity, and stupidity in his business career. He saw that gifts in perpetuity tended to increase the normal inertia in men's minds. That gave him an additional reason for insisting that his gifts be spent, principal and income, within a generation. If that were done no bureaucracy of men more intent upon preserving their jobs than upon the work in hand would be created. Let the next generation look out for its own needs.

Mr. Rosenwald was not the first man to think in these terms nor the first to act in accordance with them, but through the power of his example and through unceasing propaganda he did more perhaps than any other man to drive his point home. It seems altogether likely that as a result of his efforts the piling up of perpetual endowments is about at an end.

Today Mr. Rosenwald is honored the world over as a man of simple character, kindly and generous to a fault. In the years to come he seems destined to be remembered as one of the great innovators in both commerce and philanthropy.

Editorial of the Day

CRANMER AND THE GOLD STANDARD.

[New York Herald Tribune.]

The London Morning Post can be forgiven a certain sense of shock at discovering in a prayer appointed by the archbishops of Canterbury and York such un-Jacobean a thought as:

In the policy of our government for the restoration of credit and prosperity, Thy will be done.

As the Morning Post observes, this is indeed something other than the language of Cranmer, though whether the effect would have been any less novel had the Most Rev. Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang endeavored to translate the sentiment into the style of the King James version is at least a question. And if the critics of Dr. Lang and his fellow archbishop mean to suggest that the sentiment should not have been expressed at all, they would not appear to be up on very firm ground.

If the church cannot remember in its prayers those matters which are engrossing the thoughts of all its parishioners; if it must remain wholly dumb upon matters which fill nearly every serious vehicle of lay thought and confine itself only to the range of ideas available to the sixteenth century scholars who gave it that stately and sonorous language which it so justly prizes, then the church would appear to be passing from an active force in the daily affairs of men into a philological museum. In the sixteenth century the church, in its prayers for the safety of the sovereign, did not hesitate to touch on matters of political importance to the lives in its charge, and from a far earlier date it has asked that we receive "this day our daily bread."

If the church has not in the past prayed for "prosperity" it has certainly prayed for wellbeing, which ought to be much the same thing, and if earlier divines never spoke of the "restoration of credit" they have concerned themselves over rain for crops or fair winds for fishing fleets, which were of similar economic importance in simpler societies.

NOTHING SURE NOW.

Counsel—Are you sure this is the man who stole your car?

Plaintiff—I was until your cross-examination. Now I don't know if I ever possessed a car.—Der Lustige Sachse, Leipzig.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ANYHOW, THE REPUBLICAN SLOGAN for the presidential campaign this year has been selected. Senators Jones of Washington, Vandenberg of Michigan, and Metcalf of Rhode Island picked it out from 100,000 suggestions. This is it: "Prosperity is returning; don't throw it in reverse." Pretty good, pretty good, but a little long and not good yelling. And the "reverse" thing is a little too cultural and up stage for a lot of the sovereign voters. A policeman never says "Please reverse." If he did nobody would know what he was talking about. He says, "Hey, youse, backup!" No, as slogans go we've met better ones. Still, the old one, "Two chickens in every pot, two cars in every garage," didn't come out so good.

DIALOGUE.

SONNETS XLIII. AND XLIV.

Sit on your little hill, and sing, and laugh,
you, with your eyes of steel, your heart of ice!
I will, and thank you for your kind advice!
(The reddening sun lights up her broken staff.)
I, I sit contented on my lawn.
I have no weary feet, no laboring breath;
there is no life in me to meet with death;
there is no light to go; the light is gone.

Some day, she said—and, oh, her eyes were deep—some day this path that goes from here to there will carry me, relentless, on its way, will plague my waking day, deny me sleep,
will blind my listless eyes—and I won't care!
I'll bare my breast to pain!—Some other day.

Sit on your little hill, and laugh, and sing,
you, with your heart of ice, your eyes of steel!
You, to whom the clouds beneath reveal no hint, no vestige of a worldly thing, because you took your staff in your strong hand and walked the pitiless pathway to desire, you, whose feet went straight into the fire,
scorning the sweet, the green and level land.

You found the hill. I sit here on the grass contented with my day, my dreaming night.
Already you have known your little hell,
and I must wait for mine, the while they pass,
those fools—may be—who watch the steady light.
I ask you what to do. And you won't tell.

JEANNE DE LAMARTER.

WAIT! A professor in Leyden college in Amsterdam announced yesterday he had found the very coldest temperature ever recorded, 489 below zero on a Fahrenheit thermometer. Oh, piffle! just wait until the Anti-Saloon league records its reaction to Mr. Raskob's solution of the prohibition question. Four hundred and eighty-nine below zero is some cold, but it won't be near as cold as the Anti-Saloon league's going to be towards that Raskob suggestion.

"REAL PARENTS Will Surround Their Children, Says Authority." An authentic case, suggests Manufacturers' Newsboy, of in loco parenthesis.

"DEMAND ACTION OF STATE SOLONS." Now, attention, classes in journalism. There are no doubt some of your number who read headlines about the state solons in the newspapers nowadays, who wonder what a solon is and whether it is the same as a colon or a moron. Oh, vastly different, dear children. A state solon is a member of the state legislature. You in your childish ignorance think such persons should be called state senators or state representatives. Oh, children, what a very grave error. A member of the state legislature, dear ones, in newspaper language, is a solon. When you finally get a job on a newspaper, if you ever do, you will be hurled straight out the office window and three desks dropped down on top of you should you ever in writing a story refer to a solon as a member of the legislature. Bear this in mind, and some day they may let you sit outside the editor's office and tell people who want to see him that he has just died.

WE ARE HORROR STRICKEN at the stories of people stuck in snow drifts in southern California and almost frozen to death. But we can only congratulate ourselves that we are privileged to live here in the great middle west, where June sits around on the knees of old January so continually that really we are a little bit shocked. Come, let us wander into our gardens and pick the luscious oranges, lemons, and prunes which ripen so abundantly all about us. But be sure we take our parasols; the sun is almost too hot for comfort. Heavens! what a climate, what a climate!

ETCHING—THE TURN.

He turned his team at the headland,
The furrows lay long and deep:
The empty, winter blanched prairie
Trailed green where sloughs were asleep.

He heard the rattle of harness,
The thudding clods on the plow;
In acridness and aversion
He flung the sweat from his brow.

The dust choked thick from the breaking,
Bestirred by heavy shod feet:
But musk of mint and of mallow,
Brought billowing visions of wheat.

The rows stretched straight from the headland,
With dusk faint flushing the plain:
The cry was sweet of the night bird,
The turn meant homing again!

SIGHTSAVING IN SCHOOLS.

MUCH can be done to improve the vision of nearsighted children. On the other hand, without proper care, if the vision of a nearsighted child is neglected it tends to become steadily worse until the age of 17 is reached. At that age, in most cases, the eyeball stops stretching out of shape, and the state of vision tends to remain at a standstill until the lens changes of senescence cause nearsightedness to again become progressive in certain cases. If the vision of a child is very bad, and correction be not done, the tendency of the eyeball to stop stretching at about age 17 does not develop and vision continues to disintegrate until well into adult life.

One of the commonest of all disorders is nearsightedness. It causes considerable loss of capacity, and it results in fatigue and headaches. A small part of the blindness results from neglect of the nearsighted eye.

Drs. Jackson and Thompson advocate a public health movement, principally through the schools, to improve the eyes of nearsighted children. The things to do are as follows:

Test the eyes of children as they enter school.

All children with eye defects that would lead to excessive convergence are fitted with glasses. These glasses are to be worn constantly.

The children with especially poor vision are put into sightsaving classes. They are to be seen by an eye specialist once every three months.

Children 6 to 10 years old, with shortsighted eyes, are not to be allowed to do much close reading. It is this kind of eye work that strains the eyes and, in some cases, stretches the eyeball out of its best shape.

Particular attention is paid to posture and to the proper lighting of the schoolroom.

Nearsighted pupils must spend a considerable part of their time playing in the open air. By wearing nonbreakable glasses they can engage in somewhat rough sports and that is just what they need.

Attention must also be paid to the general health, and the diet must contain enough vitamins.

Dr. Thompson does not think nearsightedness is inherited, though a child may inherit a certain weakness of the eyeball membranes that makes them stretch under strain. He advocates having all nearsighted children wear properly fitting glasses all the time and he limits the hours of studying to two hours daily for bad cases, and to four hours daily for cases that are not so bad. He especially advises against reading in bed during convalescence from diseases such as measles.

SALT WATER IN MORNING.

Mrs. J. T. L. wries: Your reply to Mrs. A. D. that one teaspoonful of salt in a quart of water before breakfast is not dangerous interested me.

1. Is it more effective than the water without salt, for constipation?
2. Do you advise the use of oil?
3. Enemas?
4. Yeast?

REPLY.

1. The claim is that a glass of warm, normal salt solution, taken on arising, is not absorbed, does not irritate, causes no excess of fluid to be secreted, but passes down the digestive tract, stimulating action. The same claims cannot be established for plain water. However, a glass of water on arising is of some service in overcoming constipation.
2. Some need to take it.
3. Answer to No. 2 applies. Anything is better than the habitual use of laxatives.
4. Yeast has some laxative action with some persons.

CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—[Friend of the People.]—1. If an American citizen marries a foreigner does the foreigner become a citizen? 2. If a foreign couple came to this country and the husband became a citizen, would the wife automatically become a citizen? 3. Will you please list in order of preference the names of the countries from which we still receive immigrants? 4. If a foreigner came to this country and he wishes to visit his native country before obtaining citizenship here, will he be permitted to enter this country again? C. E. B.

1. If the marriage occurred before Sept. 22, 1922, the foreign born wife becomes a citizen through the marriage. The citizenship status of the husband is not affected.
2. Yes, if the marriage occurred before Sept. 22, 1922.
3. This is a question that should be answered by the Immigration Service, Room 1343 Transportation building.
4. This is also a question for the Immigration Service, but it may be stated that he should obtain a permit from the Immigration Service before he leaves the United States. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT, District Director U. S. Department of Labor.

NO HARD AND FAST RULE.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you please advise me at what age a husband is allowed to discontinue paying an allowance to his boy. There is a divorce suit pending at this time. R. D. K.

The obligation of the parent depends on the family standard of living, the parent's ability to pay, and all of the factors bearing upon the propriety of continuing the child's education. There is no hard and fast rule. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DIVORCE.

WINNIPEG, Canada, Dec. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My wife deserted me and I am unable to get a divorce on these grounds in Canada. Can I secure a divorce in Mexico while living in Canada? Also, could I at a later date get married in the United States when I go there to live? My wife lives in England. Whom do you apply to for a Mexican divorce? E. T.

It is the general rule that if the court has jurisdiction of the marriage relation (by virtue of the parties having lived in the jurisdiction) or of the parties (by the defendant being served with process of his appearance being entered) a decree can be entered which will be recognized in other states, but many of the divorces secured in such states as Nevada have no extra-territorial effect because the court lacks jurisdiction. Hence, we advise persons who contemplate going to a foreign state for a divorce to first get the advice of a disinterested lawyer in their home state. Do not rely on advertising, on news articles, nor on the claims of the lawyer who makes his living out of exploiting such cases.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

This nation has had other serious financial depressions, as the following excerpts from The Tribune files reveal. Each of these periods of hard times has been followed by periods of great prosperity.

New York, Oct. 3.—George Bird, Grinnell & Co. failed today, and the failure shocked the street in an extraordinary manner. The firm had acted largely for the Vanderbilt clique and held enormous blocks of Vanderbilt shares in Lake Shore, Western Union, and New York Central. The effect was damaging to all the Vanderbilt shares. Lake Shore fell 3 per cent, Western Union 2, and Union Pacific took a large fractional cut.

1894.

Aug. 22.—Gov. John P. Altgeld issued an appeal in behalf of the destitute people of Pullman whom he found during his personal investigation Monday.

1907.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 29.—Vice President Bancroft of the Oregon Short Line, part of the Harriman system, ordered a sweeping reduction in the forces engaged on maintenance and construction work on the line.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 29.—That the Lehigh Valley railroad in the near future contemplates so reducing its working force that nearly 4,000 men will be discharged was the statement made, upon apparently good authority, in financial circles.

Dec. 10.—The coffee and rolls line—that harbinger of a Chicago winter and annual reminder of the thousands of men who lack employment—has again formed.

1921.

Feb. 7.—Labor wants shorter hours and more jobs. A tentative plan of working shorter hours, so as to permit a division of jobs between employed and unemployed, was adopted at a meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 7, 1916.

CHICAGO. — Thirty-six passengers were burned and bruised at 11:30 last night when a car on the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric railway bounded off the track in Wilmette, turned over, and then caught fire. The car was traveling at high speed when it struck the curve in the track at Wilmette avenue. Without warning it turned over and before the passengers could make their escape it had caught fire.

LONDON.—The house of commons just before midnight passed the first reading of the government bill for compulsory military service by the decisive vote of 403 to 105. This victory of the government's policy for conscription was achieved within a few hours after organized labor of Great Britain, sitting in congress, vigorously protested against the measure. As a result of the tremendous outburst of disapproval, three Labor ministers of the cabinet—Arthur Henderson, William Grace, and George H. Roberts—resigned.

LONDON. — An announcement by the Peninsular and Oriental Steamship company says that the number of persons on board the torpedoed Persia who have not been accounted for aggregates 336. Of these 119 were passengers and 217 members of the crew.

CHICAGO.—Another confession of complicity in the St. Luke's hospital holdup was added to the police records by Charles Searles, son of Edward Searles, chief engineer at the hospital for the last twenty-five years. During an examination by Assistant State's Attorney Marvin E. Barnhardt, young Searles is said to have admitted he supplied the prime movers in the robbery with information that aided them in its execution, but denies his complicity went further.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 7, 1902.

CHICAGO. — Mayor Harrison presented a special message to the city council giving in detail his views on the traction franchise extension problem. His platform includes compensation, ultimate municipal ownership and underground trolleys in the downtown section. He also urged the simultaneous expiration of all franchises and the express prohibition of the transfer of a franchise to a nonresident or a foreign corporation. A general system of transfers is demanded.

WASHINGTON. — Admiral Schley and President Roosevelt held a conference at the White House at the request of the President, who is said to be anxious to end the Sampson-Schley controversy. Schley has been urged by naval officers to drop his fight for vindication in connection with his course at the battle at Santiago.

CHICAGO.—Frank H. Cooper's interest in the Chicago firm of Siegel, Cooper & Co. has been purchased by Henry Siegel, Isaac Keim and Frank E. Vogel. The price paid, it was said, was $7,501,000. The transfer also includes Mr. Cooper's stock and interest in the good will of the company. The business will be continued as formerly except that Mr. Keim, who has been identified with the company since it was formed in 1887, becomes managing director.

CHICAGO. — Clyde Fitch's play, "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," was presented at the Illinois theater by Ethel Barrymore and her company.

WASHINGTON.—Senators and representatives from the Pacific coast have drafted a strong Chinese exclusion act which will be introduced in both houses in a few days. The bill declares that all Chinese, other than citizens of the United States or those who are coming to and residing in the United States under the present treaty with China, shall be refused admission and returned to the country whence they came at the expense of the transportation companies bringing them.

THE STATE OF THE PUBLIC MIND.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—I believe that Judge Jarecki is to be congratulated on his decision regarding the 1928 and 1929 taxes. Why? Because it is right and just, notwithstanding the fact that the county and city are broke as a result of their own reckless spending. In your issue of Jan. 1 you quote Francis X. Busch as saying, "I know he decided the case under the law and evidence as he interpreted them, but he is as wrong as a man can be in this opinion." Does Mr. Busch really mean this or is he an advocate of the theory that might makes right?

We all know that the 1928 and 1929 assessments were unjust and that a great many of the small home owners especially were obliged to pay exorbitant taxes. If quite a percentage defaulted in their payments then, when times were fairly good, how in the name of common sense can they pay more now? About one-half the people are out of employment; nearly all of them have lost their savings in closed banks and through tumbling stocks and bonds; real estate has depreciated to such an extent that much of it is in the hands of receivers and owners cannot meet their obligations. Add to all this higher taxes and press the lever hard, but you cannot extract blood from a turnip, and the result will be greater chaos than before.

Do not accuse the citizens of a lack of patriotism. The majority of them have done their duty and are willing to pay a fair amount of taxes, even more than their share, but the spectacle of the drainage canal revelry, the school board extravagance, plus many other things, do not tend to fire us with patriotism or a desire to continue "holding the bag."

Those of our officials who are really interested in good government and have the interests of city and state at heart can best serve them by working to eliminate all graft and waste in every department—practice economy—cut out nonessentials.

Begin with the root of the evil instead of letting the evil grow and trying to compel the people to set things right.

NELLIE F. MORRISSEY.

A DISSATISFIED BONDHOLDER.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—Is there any way in which a poor sucker, holding first mortgage real estate bonds, purchased with hard earned dollars, can find out what is being done on buildings now in receivership? I sought information at the Chicago Title and Trust company, trustee or depository for these bonds, and they cheerfully gave me the amount of disbursements and what taxes and interest were due and unpaid. However, they could not give me the receipts of any building, although they have managed several of these properties for over a year; they could not tell me what percentage of bondholders had turned in their bonds, and they could not tell me what their plans were for refinancing. If buildings are put into receivership for the protection and benefit of the bondholders, is there any reason why these facts are not available?

GERTRUDE J. MICHEL.

NEXT.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—Now that THE TRIBUNE has seen fit to apologize to Bailiff Ike Weil, I suggest that it apologize to President Hoover for the implications in its articles on the arrest of the President's brother-in-law, where the relationship is more remote.

SAMUEL J. WRIGHT.

THE FIRST WHITE SETTLER.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—In THE TRIBUNE of Dec. 27 Herma Clark, in her interesting "When Chicago Was Young" column, refers to John Kinzie as the "first white settler of Chicago." Three years before the establishment of Fort Dearborn and the arrival of Kinzie at Chicago, John La Lime bought Du Sable's property at Chicago for 6,000 livres—about $1,200—as proven by a bill of sale recorded at Detroit, and conducted a reputable business at Chicago until he was killed by Kinzie in 1812.

La Lime was incidentally the official Indian interpreter at Chicago from the establishment of Fort Dearborn until his death; he stood high in the esteem of Capt. Heald and the soldiers of the fort, being different from many of the fur traders in that he did not use whisky in his trade with the Indians. La Mai is another white man who is known to have settled at Chicago prior to the coming of Kinzie.

John Kinzie was certainly not the first white settler of Chicago; but he was the first and perhaps the last slave trader at Chicago. ERNEST BRADSHAW.

FOR CHEAPER MILK.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—The only hope for lower milk prices in Chicago seems to be through the chain stores. They were the ones mainly responsible for bringing the 10 cent loaf of bread down to 5 cents. I hope some enterprising grocery chain stores will enter the milk business, establish their own plants and sell milk on a cash and carry basis at 8 or 9 cents a quart.

According to statements by the dairy companies they are now paying about 4 cents a quart to the farmers; they are getting about 4 cents for the handling, bottling, pasteurizing, etc., and then it takes another 4 cents for delivering it to the consumer. I'm sure there are thousands of people in Chicago, especially those out of work, who would gladly walk 2 or 3 blocks to a chain store to buy milk at a 3 to 4 cent saving.

A. JOHNSON.

COMPETITION FOR THE FARMER.

Urbana, Ill., Jan. 2.—There is no limit here and in Australia to what agricultural colleges can raise in competition with the farmers. The University of Illinois dairy department with its immense barns and many cattle had a sign, "How to Make the Dairy Pay." Sure, any one could do it that way. They are tax exempt; we taxpayers have to pay their deficits. Why not follow A. Legge's suggestion and let such production cease and stop paying taxes for that? There is now such a surplus and taxes are higher than ever, especially in terms of bushels of oats and corn. The same farm has to pay the same taxes if it has a mortgage as if it is owned clear.

MRS. FRED C. HUBBARD.

IN DEFENSE OF WOMANHOOD.

Bellwood, Ill., Jan. 4.—Why blame the depression on the fair sex? What has caused our women to come to the front today? The woman of yesterday who did not work had so much more to look forward to, a husband, his confidence, his salary, a home, children, and sometimes a savings account. Today our unemployed girls cannot find husbands and of those who venture into matrimony more take on a liability than an asset. Many girls today are the sole support of the family. Credit must also be given women for their sincere work and charity drives. Why bite the hand that's feeding many?

TAKE ROOSEVELT MESSAGE AS BID FOR NOMINATION

Urges a New Leadership for Nation.

Albany, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt made an open and definite bid for the Democratic nomination for President today when he asserted the public is demanding a new national leadership and that leaders for the last two years have shown us few plans for the reconstruction of a better ordered civilization in which the economic freedom of the individual will be restored.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT. (C) Associated Press Photo.]

Those who listened to his annual message, which he read to the legislature when it convened at noon, placed that interpretation upon his words. The governor devoted the opening and the ending of his message to the economic problems faced by the nation and the mistakes of the last few years on the part of "leaders of American thought in government and business."

Interpreted as His Answer.

Several weeks ago a report came from Warm Springs, where Gov. Roosevelt was on vacation, that he would announce shortly after the first of the year his attitude toward the presidential nomination. To many here today his message fulfilled that prediction.

The governor asserted the errors of the past call for a leadership broad enough to understand the problems not only for our nation but of their relationships to other nations, the problems not of New York alone but for all the forty-seven other states, the problems not of the cities alone but of the small communities and rural districts as well. He said that this leadership must be "practical, sound, courageous, and alert."

The governor made a direct reference to the needs of the government at Washington when he said:

"It is true that in any state of this union of states the complete solving of these economic problems which are national in scope is impossible without leadership and a plan and action by our national government. Perhaps that will come, but in the meantime we in this state have a very positive duty to do what we can to help ourselves."

Discusses National Needs.

The governor assumed the rôle of a national adviser in economics when he told of the evils that should be avoided in times of stress and emergency like this. He said there are two extremes which the nation should avoid. At one end, he pointed out, is the school of thought that believes that American business and American industry can pull itself out of the slough unaided by government.

"Its optimism," Gov Roosevelt said, "forbids what it calls governmental interference. Its confidence in the success of individual action rejects efforts on the part of state and nation to lead back to better times.

"Too many national leaders in business, finance and politics adhered to this view, and for too long a time. Fortunately, though tardily, their views have changed. Even if such a return, without the aid of united community effort, which we call the state, were possible, it would have cost too much in human suffering and misery."

Decries Pessimistic Outlook.

The governor said that the other extreme is the pessimism which looks upon the future with fear.

The governor expressed his confidence in the American system of economics and government, asserting it is everlasting. He said we should not seek in any way to destroy or tear down except to replace unsound materials with new. He called for the elemination of those methods that have proved mistaken and the application to business and to government of principles in which the rights of the average citizen are given a higher spiritual value.

"The times and the present needs," he said, "call for a leadership which insists upon the permanency of our fundamental institutions and at the same time demands that by governmental and community effort our business and industry be nourished and encouraged back to a basis made more sound and more firm by the lessons of exeprience through which we are passing."

STORE OWNER IS ROBBED.

Two armed bandits tied up Sidney Schwartz, 1248 North Spaulding avenue, in his Avenue Fair store at 3859 West North avenue yesterday and fled with $70 loot.

ACTRESS DIES

ALYCE McCORMICK.
[Keystone View Company Photo.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Death has ended the career of Alyce McCormick, 30, who recently had important rôles in "Frankenstein," "Bad Girl," and "The Spirit of Notre Dame." Miss McCormick came here five years ago from Omaha, Neb., to seek fame in motion pictures. She died last night from pneumonia. She was the daughter of F. A. McCormick and lived at the family home here.

SENATE PASSES LAME DUCK ACT FOR SIXTH TIME

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—For the sixth time, and on this occasion by a vote of 63 to 7, the senate this afternoon adopted the "lame duck" resolution of Senator George W. Norris, Republican insurgent of Nebraska, proposing a constitutional amendment to change the dates of the commencement of the terms of the President, Vice President, members of congress and of the assembling of congress.

Ratification of the Norris program was accomplished only after the senate, by a vote of 54 to 17, broke down strenuous opposition by Mr. Norris and others to displacing the election of a president pro tempore as the unfinished business.

Although enthusiastic backers of the Norris bill, the insurgents preferred to see it laid aside if thereby they could keep the election of the president pro tempore continuously before the senate.

As passed in the senate, the Norris amendment is precisely that approved last year and almost the same adopted five times previously. The house has passed it once, but the two bodies have never agreed upon its details. It provides that the President and Vice President shall begin their terms Jan. 15, instead of March 4, and that members of congress shall assume office Jan. 2, and congresses begin on that date also.

PARTY LEADERS START TODAY FOR DEMOCRAT RALLY

Hurley Is on Way to Make Convention Bid.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Mayor Cermak, accompanied by thirty Democrats of prominence in the Cook county organization, is to leave today for Washington for the pow-wow of the Democratic national committee. An advance guard of Chicagoans, headed by Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the nonpartisan citizens' committee which is seeking to land both national conventions for Chicago, left for the capital yesterday to present the city's bid on Saturday.

The Republicans have picked Chicago for their convention in June, and Mr. Hurley, upon his departure, declared that the prospects are that the Democrats will do likewise. Kansas City is reported to have dropped out as a bidder, and word from Washington is that the contest now lies between Atlantic City, San Francisco, Chicago and perhaps Detroit.

Ample Funds Assured.

Mr. Hurley says the non-partisan committee has raised ample funds to satisfy the requirements of the national committee, the railroads have offered reduced fares, and the hotels have an abundance of accommodations at reasonable rates. The central location of Chicago is to be stressed. Before the Republican committee a certified check for $150,000 was produced, and a similar argument may be laid before the Democrats. In years past it has proved a potent argument.

In Mr. Hurley's party were Melvin A Traylor, president of the First National bank; Col. Robert I. Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce; Sidney Strotz of the Stadium, John Burke, Walter Gregory, Leonard Hicks, W. J. Hennessey, Frank W. Bering, Judge Denis E. Sullivan and others.

Mayor Cermak's party leaves on the Capitol Limited this afternoon. They will attend the Jackson day banquet at Washington tomorrow night, which is expected to be one of the largest celebrations of its kind the party has held. On Saturday, Mayor Cermak and the local chiefs will aid Mr. Hurley and his nonpartisan group in urging that the national convention be brought to Chicago.

Leaders Accompany Mayor.

Those in the mayor's party include: Albert Horan, Municipal court bailiff; Patrick A. Nash, county chairman; Emmet Whealan, president of the county board; Clayton F. Smith, managing chairman; Edward J. Hughes, member of the Board of Review; William L. O'Connell, Judge John F. O'Connell, Judge Henry Horner, Robert M. Sweitzer, county clerk; Judge Harry M. Fisher, Moe Rosenberg, Charles Weber, Ald. Jacob M. Arvey, Joseph C. Triner, Charles Levy, Thomas J. Bowler, president of the sanitary district; Ald. James B. Bowler, Ald. John S. Clark, chairman of the council finance committee; County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough; Frank Ford, assistant secretary of the managing committee; Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board; Judge Ross C. Hall, Irving Rooks, president of the Iroquois club; Ernest J. Kruetgen, Joseph L. Gill, clerk of the Municipal court; Frank Lyman, Judge J. J. Kelly, Ald. Stanley Govier, John C. Lewe, James Murnane.

Silent on Raskob Plan.

Michael L. Igoe, national committeeman, and Sheriff W. D. Meyering will be at the Washington conclave. Illinois will have a double vote in the national committee because Mayor Cermak has been invested with the proxy of the committeeman from Hawaii.

Local Democrats had little comment yesterday on the proposal of John J. Raskob, national chairman, for a prohibition referendum plank in the national platform, beyond remarking that the party in Illinois is stronger than ever for modification and that it has shown its attitude by liberal planks in county and state platforms.

In Evanston, the national W. C. T. U. put out a statement that Raskob's plan would "start a wider agitation than ever and keep prohibition in politics for ten years at least."

Expect Remap Decision.

Reports relayed to local politicians from Springfield yesterday were that the Supreme court is expected to hand down a decision on the congressional apportionment act of 1931 in a week or two. The act was declared invalid by Judge Edward Shurtleff. Conjectures at Springfield are that the Supreme court will uphold the law on the ground that the judiciary is without power to review the acts of the legislative branch on what is regarded as a political question.

Reports were current that Congressman Morton D. Hull, Republican, of the Hyde Park district may not seek reelection. Among possible candidates mentioned is State Senator Roy C. Woods.

The Democrats pointed yesterday to the results in the first New Hampshire district on Tuesday, when the Democrats upset a normally Republican stronghold, and began casting about for a strong candidate in Hyde Park.

ASK SLASH IN CLEANING PRICES TO AVERT BOMBS

Prosecutor Seeks Way to Prevent Outbreak.

A general reduction of all cleaning and dyeing prices was suggested yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Edwin C. Dufficy as a preventive of a renewal of the reign of terrorism which a year ago caused thousands of dollars' damage in that industry.

Following a conference yesterday with the owners of three cut rate cleaning shops, Prosecutor Dufficy said that unless a general price revision were made a series of acts of terrorism would doubtless result. The conference followed bombing threats against owners of the loop buildings in which the shops are maintained.

Owners Attend Conference.

Those attending the conference were E. M. Summer, operator of the Sterling Cleaners, with several loop shops; Max Katz, representing the Madison-State Quality Cleaners, 7 West Madison street, and Max Ward, owner of the Metro Cleaners, 177 North State street.

"The price of $1.25 a garment as set by Dr. Benjamin M. Squires of the cleaners' institute is too high for the reduced scale of living," Summer said. "In many cases the garment cost only twice that figure. To continue charging such prices is ridiculous and an attempt to set a fair price calls for a bomb."

Barber Shop Wrecked.

Two vandals yesterday wrecked the interior of a nonunion cut price barber shop at 2402 Lincoln avenue after terrorizing two barbers and a customer. Mike Zingarelli and Angelo Garvardi, the barbers, told Sergt. Joseph Young of the racket office they could not identify the vandals. They preferred to call it a holdup. The shop charges 20 cents for shaves and 35 cents for haircuts, as compared with the 25 and 50 cent scale set by Dr. Squires, arbitrator in the barber industry. Loop barbers yesterday announced a charge of 50 cents for haircuts, a 15 cent reduction.

WOMAN'S DEATH A SUICIDE.

A conorer's jury returned a finding of suicide after an inquest yesterday on the death of Mrs. Elsie Preuss, 49 years old, who shot herself Monday in her home in Morton Grove. Her husband, Adam, said that Mrs. Preuss was despondent because her adopted daughter, Grace, 18 years old, left home.

WICKERSHAM'S MOONEY REPORT CAN'T BE FOUND

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—The report on the Mooney-Billings trial prepared by three experts of the Wickersham commission, and said to have been sidetracked from publication in the commission's report, is not in the records of the department of justice, according to a letter sent to the senate today by Attorney General William D. Mitchell. The senate recently adopted a resolution calling for the report.

ATTORNEY GENERAL MITCHELL. [U. & U. Photo.]

Mr. Mitchell declared that, while the report was compiled and printed at government expense, Chairman Wickersham of the law enforcement commission had informed him that he did not have a copy. Mr. Wickersham, however, had offered to try to obtain a copy from one of the authors and submit it to the senate. The Mitchell letter disclosed, however, that apparently no government official has a copy of the report.

Mother Finds Boy Shot to Death; Called Accident

Returning home from a shopping trip last night, Mrs. Patricia Campbell, 813 Sunnyside avenue, found her 8 year old son, William, lying dead on the living room floor. In her absence the boy had taken a .38 caliber revolver from a drawer and apparently shot himself accidentally in the head. The shot had been heard by neighbors about 8:30 p. m. Mrs. Campbell is a widow.

BRIDEGROOM OF SINGLE DAY DIES IN AUTO CRASH

Alex Rangelis, 40 years old, a truck farmer living near Palatine, was instantly killed last night when his automobile crashed into a farm wagon in Plum Grove avenue, two miles south of Palatine.

The driver of the wagon, Joseph Mayer, 30 years old, of Palatine, received severe injuries when he was thrown from the wagon. Rangelis had been married on Tuesday, it was said, but the name of his bride was not known.

Jacob Beck, 60 years old, 289 Ridge road, Winnetka, real estate dealer and collector an antiques, died in the Evanston hospital late yesterday from injuries suffered Tuesday night when he was run down by an automobile at Center and Cherry streets in the suburb. The driver was Grant Erlich, 15 years old, son of Howard Erlich, 45 Warwick road, Winnetka, head of the Electrical Trade Publishing company.

The boy told police that Beck had walked into the street directly in front of his car. Another machine which was preceding his own screened the victim from view until too late to stop. He was not held.

These deaths increased the Cook county auto toll since Jan. 1 to 26.

D. R. Kelly, 39 years old, 862 Cuyler avenue, Oak Park, a former Chicago policeman, died in the Copley hospital in Aurora yesterday from a skull fracture suffered on Tuesday when the automobile in which he was riding collided with a stock truck near Yorkville. Mrs. Mae Spanier, 201 East Delaware place, his companion, was killed.

Dr. Arthur E. Radcliffe, 78 years old, 2134 Ash street, Waukegan, was seriously injured yesterday when he was hit by the auto of Louis J. Clark, 404 North Genesee street, Waukegan.

7 checkpoints for executives who demand full value from advertising

THESE are the fundamental tests of the value of newspaper space, of advertising responsiveness. Seven checkpoints built on reading habits, on advertising results. There are no others as searching, as inclusive and dependable.

If you haven't checked your space buying by these standards, do so before you spend another dollar for advertising in the Chicago market.

The Chicago newspaper which best meets this seven-point check list gives you greatest value for your money.

This is no time for half-measures, for second-best. And in few of America's key markets can you buy space with the certainty of getting greatest value as you can in Chicago.

No matter what your product is, the Tribune is best fitted to do the job for you. 4 out of every 7 families in the city and suburbs read the Chicago Tribune. 150,000 more than read any other Chicago newspaper.

The home-delivered circulation of the Tribune is now in excess of 270,000. Far more than that of all other Chicago papers combined.

Here is circulation that penetrates deep into every level of buying power. Circulation that has the best grip on the greatest buying power in this market. In the 25 better residential districts the Tribune produces for your advertising 57% more readers than is reached by any other Chicago newspaper.

And in the rich surrounding suburban communities the Tribune sells 67% more copies than any other Chicago newspaper.

In the entire Chicago territory there is no newspaper, no national magazine, that has the influence and responsiveness which the Tribune commands for advertisers determined to get sales in this great key market.

You may feel you can get along without the Tribune. But if results count, you will put the Tribune first on your advertising list as it is first in the preference of your customers in this market.

Your advertising in the Tribune will reach more men and women in the Chicago market than it can reach in any other newspaper. And reach them adjacent to more interesting news and features than appears in any other Chicago newspaper. Dynamic editorial matter that generates a higher velocity in advertising response for Tribune advertisers.

Response that placed—

1,790,000 more lines of retail advertising

1,494,000 more lines of general advertising

1,779,000 more lines of classified advertising

5,064,000 more lines of total advertising

DANDRUFF

Soon Destroys the Hair

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid Arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid Arvon at any drug store. Four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

JUDGE PREWITT LIFTS HIS BAN ON A REPORTER

But Paper Will Push Free Speech Case.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Circuit Judge Henry R. Prewitt of Montgomery county today set aside a previous order entered in his court at Mount Sterling in which he refused to permit a representative of the Knoxville News Sentinel to report the trial of William Hightower in his court.

This is interpreted by attorneys for the News Sentinel and the Scripps-Howard newspapers here as an effort to cut the ground from under the proceedings in the Kentucky Court of Appeals, set for tomorrow afternoon in Frankfort, in which Judge Prewitt was summoned to show cause why a writ of prohibition should not be issued against him as a result of his action in barring the reporters of this paper.

The hearing at Frankfort will go on, according to Attorney Paul Patterson of Cleveland and Newton D. Baker, a potential candidate for the Democratic nomination for president, will be here to argue the case for the newspapers, on the ground that Judge Prewitt's action was a limitation of the freedom of the press guaranteed by federal and state constitutions.

Certain Reporters Barred.

The judge, it will be argued, still refuses to let reporters for the Knoxville paper, which offended him in editorial comment on a trial in his court, to enter the court in the present trial. New evidence will be necessary here and the Scripps-Howard papers throughout the country are prepared, it is said to send more men here to demand entrance to this court.

Judge Prewitt, according to present plans, is to adjourn his court tomorrow noon and appear before the state's highest court at 3 o'clock in the afternoon to defend his action.

Proceeding a Rare One.

The petition for a temporary or a permanent writ of prohibition is a rare thing in this state and only used in times of great emergency. The fact that the Court of Appeals, the highest in this state, would entertain it is considered a victory by the newspaper attorneys, and they have anticipated the granting of the writ.

Their petition states in part:

Contents of Petition.

"On Jan. 2 Judge Prewitt stated from the bench that no reporter for the Knoxville News-Sentinel would be permitted at any time, so long as he was judge, to report any case in said court. On Jan. 4 the petitioner appeared and made a motion to respondent that one Jack Bryan, a reporter on the staff of the Knoxville News-Sentinel, be permitted to appear in the court, the same as representatives of other newspapers were appearing, and be allowed to report for his paper the proceedings in the case of William Hightower.

"The respondent refused said motion and stated that no person from the Knoxville News-Sentinel would be permitted at any time, so long as said respondent was judge, to report any case in said Montgomery county court until the said Knoxville News-Sentinel retracts the libelous and slanderous statements made about said court and the courts of Kentucky, and thereupon entered an order denying such motion."

Libel Charge Denied.

"Petitioner states that it has not published any statement concerning the said respondent or his court, or concerning any court in Kentucky, which is slanderous or libelous, but states that irrespective of any such alleged libel or slanderous statement, the respondent has no right to bar any of its representatives or reporters from the courtroom so long as the reporters or representatives of other newspapers and press associations are allowed to remain in said courtroom to report the proceedings therein.

"The petitioner states that the said rule or order of the respondent deprives it of rights and privileges guaranteed by the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, in that the petitioner is thereby deprived of such rights and privileges without due process of law, and is also deprived of equal protection of laws."

It is this section which in the opinion of the attorneys gives the case a federal status. Section 8 of the constitution of Kentucky, giving the "right to freely and fully speak, write, and print," and section 1, paragraph 4 of the bill of rights, giving the right of "freely communicating thoughts and opinions," are also cited.

Judge Prewitt is represented by his two lawyer sons, Allen and Reid Prewitt.

WED IN LONDON

MRS. BERTIE A. MEYER.
[Rayhuff-Richter Photo.]

London dispatches yesterday reported the marriage of Mrs. Rosemary Ames Ketting, actress, daughter of Knowlton L. Ames, financier who killed himself on Dec. 23, to Bertie Meyer, theatrical manager. After the ceremony Meyer, who is 54 years old, received a telegram saying his father had died of a heart attack the preceding night.

GOV. BRYAN CALLS WINKLER BOND DEAL DISGRACE

Jamie "Exposes" a Giant Bank Theft Ring.

While officials of the Secret Six were expressing great satisfaction yesterday with the recovery of $583,000 in securities, part of the loot of the Lincoln [Neb.] National Bank and Trust company, through an agreement with a Capone hoodlum, Gov. Charles W. Bryan of Nebraska branded the entire deal as "one of the blackest pages in the history of Nebraska and one to make every citizen ashamed." He condemned the action of officials in bargaining with a criminal element for the sake of recovering loot.

Alex Jamie, secretary of the crime fighting body, stated that the recovery of the bonds was the result of discovery of a giant "bank robbing syndicate with 150 members throughout the United States." But he gave no names or details. He said "the master mind, whom only a few know, is a socially prominent business man with connections for the disposal of all types of securities. The loot of the syndicate probably has approached $10,000,000 through the last decade."

Promises to Catch Leader.

Jamie denied that he knew the identity of the mysterious master mind, but said he would be captured by the Secret Six. Other arrests in the Lincoln bank robbery were promised. Two men are now in the Nebraska prison for the robbery.

Gus Winkler, Capone hoodlum and intimate of Fred [Killer] Burke, was indicted as a member of the holdup gang, but established an acceptable alibi after promising he would see that the bonds were returned. Early Monday morning they were left in a suitcase under a street lamp, where they were picked up by Sergt. Roy Steffens of the Secret Six police staff. Steffens said, "Winkler had nothing to do with the robbery, despite the fact that he was able to procure the return of the bonds.

Bank's Loss Reduced.

Return of the stolen bonds reduces the loss to the bank from $3,000,000 to less than $200,000, said W. E. Barkley, largest stockholder in the bank. Besides returning $583,000, Winkler is said to have furnished proof that a large proportion of the rest of the loot, which was in the form of nonnegotiable bonds, had been destroyed.

According to Barkley, a total of $100,000 was paid to Emory Smith, attorney for the Illinois Bankers' association, scores of investigators, and other individuals and organizations which worked on the case. This money was for expenses only, and not in the nature of a reward.

SEEK TO TIE UP INSURANCE DUE HEIRS OF AMES

A bill for injunction was filed yesterday in the Circuit court, seeking to restrain eleven insurance companies which, the bill states, had written policies in excess of $500,000 on the life of the late Knowlton L. Ames, from paying those policies to the beneficiaries. The plaintiff in the action is Gurnett & Co., Boston stock brokerage house, which had a suit for $324,361 pending against Ames when he ended his life on Dec. 23.

The plaintiff charges, in a bill filed by Taylor, Miller, Busch & Boyden, that the insurance proceeds are payable to various trusts established by Ames, and contends further that those trusts were not established in conformance with Illinois statutes, and are therefore illegal. The bill asks that the insurance payments be set aside in a trust fund for the benefit of Ames' creditors.

Gurnett & Co. was suspended for insolvency on Tuesday by the New York Stock exchange and Curb exchange. Its suit against Ames was for losses allegedly sustained in stock market pool operations, which he refused to pay on the contention that the brokers had mismanaged the pool, and that the loss was in a gambling transaction which has no recognition in law.

He Manages to Be Jailed So He'll Be Cared For

Gives you 3 times more for your money . . . yet kills germs in 10 seconds

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC goes 3 times as far, because it can be diluted with 2 parts of water. That's economy for you. Why waste money on antiseptics that must be used full strength?

WE stress the great economy of Pepsodent Antiseptic because it convincingly proves Pepsodent Antiseptic's unique germ-killing power. When fighting colds, sore throat and Bad Breath (Halitosis), remember, there are really only two leading kinds of antiseptics. On the one hand you have the mouth wash that must be used full strength to be effective. On the other hand you have Pepsodent Antiseptic—utterly safe when used full strength, yet powerful enough to be diluted with 2 parts of water and still be effective! Pepsodent Antiseptic is at least three times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes three times as far—gives you three times as much for your money—and gives you extra protection against stubborn colds, and throat irritations. When choosing your mouth antiseptics, be sure you choose the one that kills the germs even when diluted with water! Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be safe! Be safe—and save money!

BAD BREATH (Halitosis)
Pepsodent Antiseptic does double duty when combating colds and sore throat irritations. For at the same time it checks bad breath. Remember P. A. is 3 to 11 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics... and it kills germs when diluted.

LAST YEAR'S WIFE

By ALICE M. WILLIAMSON

SYNOPSIS.

Lorne Carlton and Dick Farrow, popular moving picture stars of Hollywood, are given a farewell party on the eve of their departure for Europe on a delayed honeymoon after a year's happy marriage. Lorne is unhappy about leaving, as she has an undefinable presentiment of trouble, but Dick is anxious for the adventure.

INSTALLMENT IV.

THE DELAYED HONEYMOON.

Lorne had been engaged to Dick before she had begun to understand how big a thing had happened to them both. Being engaged had seemed enough excitement to Lorne. In her mind she had visioned marriage far off in the future. Dick was too young, only twenty-two. Besides, his important father and mother would disapprove. A girl of twenty-two was far more mature than a boy of that age. Dennis and Margaret Farrow would call Lorne Carlton a cradle snatcher!

She had argued all this out with Dick, but Dick had "rushed" her. He had looked so despairing when she refused! Those deep set eyes of his, so blue in contrast to his tanned face and black hair, had been so hungry! The girl and boy had been married with only time for Dick to get a license, and the front pages of newspapers had headlined their whirlwind romance. Dennis and Margaret had shown themselves good sports, though Lorne had always felt that the parents were making the best of a bad bargain for their son.

Since the marriage, everything had gone on in that way, she humoring the big, handsome, spoiled child who was so terribly sweet and dear you couldn't bear to thwart him. Now, after a year, he was sweeping her away to Europe, where she didn't at all wish to go, because of some stupid presentiment which she couldn't even define to herself.

"I don't believe in presentiments," Lorne insisted. But in this pale dawn of the last day at home she lay recalling other presentiments which had come true. Not very important ones; still, you had to count them!

"O, how old I feel and grown up beside him!" the girl thought drearily. "I must get a little sleep now, or I'll look it, too."

She forced her hot eyelids to close, and when at last she dropped into a heavy slumber Lorne might have been happier if she could have seen herself. She had crept higher in bed, so that her brown curls mingled with Dick's ink black hair. Asleep, with no "faerylands forlorn" behind her eyes, the lines of the girl's face softened. She looked as young and untroubled as the boy.

The stations were thronged with cheering young people.

Silly she had been to have the glooms, Lorne decided, as the train steamed out of Los Angeles station with herself and Dick waving wildly to the crowd that waved back and yelled "Good luck!" "Happy days!" from the crowded platform.

Flowers, cigarets, expensive chocolates, baskets of fruit, fantastic, limp dolls, imitation dogs of various breeds, and dozens of novels—tributes to the Farrows from their friends—filled the drawing room that adjoined, with a door open between. In his ice box the train restaurant superintendent was keeping more flowers, mostly orchids, and jars of caviare and rose petal jam. O, it was fun after all, going on a long journey, and finding out how popular you were!

And it was like that, only more so, the whole distance to New York, because the newspapers had given away the secret which the Farrows had tried to keep. Wherever the train stopped, the stations were thronged with cheering young people, who had come to find what Lorne and Dick were like in person off the screen. The pair were slightly embarrassed, but in their hearts they loved it all. They hadn't been stars very long, and it was rather wonderful to see for themselves what it was to be famous.

In New York they spent a few days at the Ritz. Lorne had been granted her wish about that, though Dennis and Margaret had made the fine gesture of inviting the daughter-in-law, with the adored son, to visit them in their marvelous penthouse, a glorified bungalow with a roof garden, thirty stories above New York pavements and silver rivers winding to the sea. Lorne drank in every bit of admiration she received there because it would show Dick's parents that he hadn't married a "dud" and that Lorne Carlton had as many "fans" as Dick Farrow, their son.

It was the first time that Dennis and Margaret had met Lorne, because the marriage had taken place in Hollywood, and the elder Farrows were playing in a Broadway success that had run for more than a year. They were nice to Lorne, and Margaret [who was extremely beautiful and didn't look a day over thirty-three], paid her pretty compliments. Dennis presented her with a magnificent traveling bag which must have cost over a thousand dollars. The two gave several cocktail parties, and after the theater they entertained celebrities to meet Dick and Lorne. Yet Lorne knew in her heart that she was an unwelcome addition to the family. Margaret and Dennis would have given anything to have had their boy with them free and a bachelor. "A young man married is a young man marred." Besides, it was natural that this famous couple, who still played youthful parts on the stage and "got away with it," should dislike having a grown up, rather celebrated daughter-in-law who couldn't be suppressed. Too awful if she should make them grandparents!

Still, to do the senior Farrows justice, they were kind, and before the world they made much of Lorne. They knew everybody who was anybody, as the snobbish saying goes, all over the worth while parts of the world, and they gave the son and daughter-in-law dazzling introductions. The boy and girl were to sail in an Italian ship, see Naples and the neighborhood, stop in Rome, and run through Italy and France in a motor car to Paris, large luggage going on by rail. There were grand introductions for Rome and Paris; but the pick of the bunch, as Margaret and Dennis assured Dick, was for London, which place would be left for the end of the trip. Lorne heard them say this, though they were not talking to her at the time; and she knew they spoke to Dick of the duchess of Crowninshield.

So the two young Farrows sailed in the newest and biggest of the Italian liners. They had a splendid sendoff at the dock and the voyage was perfect. Then followed a tour of unalloyed pleasure. Lorne felt that the beauty surrounding her—beauty of nature, and of old, historic things—was on the way to develop a part of her character which might never have grown if she had remained all the years of her youth in Hollywood.

"What did I tell you?" Dick flung the question triumphantly at her often. "What did I tell you that Europe would do to you?"

And Lorne confessed: "Yes, you were right. I was silly. I'm glad we came."

Rome was a wonderful dream, socially as well as historically, thanks to those letters of introduction. And in Paris, after memories of the Riviera, of the Loire chateaux, of Fontainebleau and Versailles, there were thrills of shopping, of sight seeing, and of being entertained by the great and near great. It had all been so wonderful, so utterly flawless, that Lorne thought to go elsewhere and begin all over again with another country would be an anti-climax.

"Couldn't we stay here a little longer and sail for home from France instead of going to England this time?" she suggested. "We could save it for another trip—next year or the year after."

"My good child, we could not," said Dick, firmly. "For one thing, heaven alone knows when we'll get away from the grind again. For another thing, you know perfectly well that the duchess of Crowninshield has invited us to visit her and we have accepted. So that's that."

"Why should that be that?" Lorne persisted. "Can't we change our minds? We often do. It isn't as if we had a royal command to visit the queen of England."

Dick put on his most highbrow air. "The duchess is a friend of my father and mother," he reminded the rebellious one. "Den and Margot would never forgive me if we let her down. She may have altered a lot of her plans for our sakes, and of course by this time she's mapped out a long list of engagements. The sort of thing you propose just isn't done, Eyes. We'd deserve to be blacklisted. Besides, I want to see London and I want to meet the duchess of Crowninshield. From what Den and Margot say, she must be the eighth wonder of the world."

After that Lorne shut up like an oyster. Not only was she properly snubbed, she was also a little ashamed of herself. Dick had been right about Europe in general; probably he would prove right about London in particular.

Corporal Punishment Not the Only Unwise Method of Discipline

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

A wise woman who has been quoted in these articles before was talking about her mother the other evening. She was a nurse in Virginia, years ago, to many children—which means she was almost a mother to them, too. We were talking about—you can't imagine what! About bringing up children! We always get around to that subject, if possible, because she is so rich in experience.

"My mother had nine children living and she was a busy woman," she said. "She was a fancy laundress. Yet I can never remember her nagging or scolding. She'd say, if we were especially pesky, 'Now, daughter, if you do that again I'm going to whip you.' And if we did it again she would whip us. But when it was over it was over. She didn't hold a grudge or go around with a grumpy look or a mad face."

Well, I don't believe in spanking—but that was infinitely better than irritability and nerves and nagging and scolding and holding the children under a cloud of displeasure.

Are you proud because you don't spank your children? But do you do things that are almost as bad?

Listen to what Dr. Smiley Blanton of Vassar college said the other day: "We do not believe children should be given corporal punishment. On the other hand, it is equally bad to try to get a child to carry out certain lines of conduct by threatening him with the loss of love . . . to say 'This breaks mother's heart when you do this' . . . puts a terrible strain on the child's emotional life and gives rise to most unhappy results.

"What we would urge is that the child should feel a sense of security that the love of the parents will not be taken away from him, but that if he does certain things they will not meet with approval."

Skin Texture Can Be Improved Via New Habits and Exercise

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We are concentrating on skin troubles this week, because I find a terrific demand for it in my mail. As I explained previously, I believe it is because at the moment a large portion of our women have more time on their hands and less money than they have had for some time and they are forced into administering self-help, which is good.

Yesterday I spoke of circulation in connection with some of these skin disturbances and recommended it heartily for what ails your complexion. Let's take up the matter of skin texture, under which heading comes that greatest of all annoyers—enlarged pores. It must be said for the American girl's skin that it bears the look of care. I expect those little hand mirrors found with the powder and rouge emergencies have something to do with it. A woman can't pull out that mirror a half dozen times a day without being more than slightly aware of what's wrong with her skin, if anything.

If it is enlarged pores, she's miserable. The powdering does not seem to hide them. Often, the mirror has the trick of making them appear larger, in fact. Frankly, I do not believe you can "refine" every skin texture, any more than you can make fine hair out of coarse. It's part of the heritage. But, coarse pored skin, just the same, can be made a wholesome, healthy looking skin by giving it a good, clear color tone—and, at least, it doesn't have to be noticeably coarse.

Sometimes the pores are extended by gross eating habits, careless habits of living; careless habits of washing the face. With the latter it is due chiefly to washing in warm or hot water and using no cold rinse or astringent after. But even the naturally coarse skin can be improved with good circulation.

The advantage of cold water facial applications is to improve the circulation, you know. And every blast of outdoor ozone you can get into the system tends to clear and refine that skin of yours.

ITALIAN CHILDREN GET PRESENTS THIRD TIME AT CHURCH FEAST

ROME, Italy, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Other boys and girls who got their Christmas presents two weeks ago and see no chance of more until birthdays come along may envy the Italian boys and girls today.

Today is Epiphany and is the third time the Italian children have received presents in two weeks. The first was Christmas, the second New Year's.

These gifts are usually less expensive than those given in America, but the local system has the advantage of spreading out the holiday season longer.

Today is the anniversary of the visit of the three wise men to the Infant Jesus at Bethlehem. It was celebrated in the churches as a religious feast.

Premier Mussolini, members of the government, and members of the royal family under the guidance of Queen Elena presided over the distribution of gifts here. In all Italian cities and towns thousands of presents were given poor children.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—President Hoover this afternoon received the new Panama minister, Señor Horacio Alfaro, a brother of former Minister Riccardo Alfaro, now president of that republic.

United States Ambassador to England, Charles G. Dawes, who was at the White House for a day, is in New York for a short stay and will go to Chicago before sailing with the other American delegates to the conference in Geneva.

The commercial secretary of the British embassy and Mrs. Leander McCormick-Goodhart, and the former's niece, Miss Patience McCormick-Goodhart, debutante daughter of F. Hamilton McCormick-Goodhart, formerly of Chicago, were among the guests of Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, who entertained at luncheon at the Mayflower following her morning musical today. Among her other guests were the Hungarian minister and Countess Szechenyi, Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, and Señor and Señora de Perera, the latter known professionally as Grace Moore, soprano, and Myra Hess, pianist. Miss Moore and Miss Hess gave the program.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and her small daughter, Paulina, have returned from Cincinnati.

Wise Boy Wonders What Part of Salary Should Go in Bank

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I presume that mine is the usual story of a fellow when keeping company and not being able to save money because of the girl's demands. However, I just want to determine whether or not I happen to be one of the many, or if I belong to the minority.

"What is the size of the average fellow's bank account at the age of 23 when he holds a minor position, paying $30 a week; is well dressed and comfortable, but not extravagant?

"What I am trying to get at is: Does a fellow of 23, with responsibilities at home, usually have a good sized bank roll, or a meager one? My reason for asking is to learn for my own information how I really stand in the financial race. I am anxious to get ahead, attend night school and want to play, but I must see possibilities for advancement, too. I feel that I am not saving enough and I want to be better than just average.

"ALLADIN."

Wise boy, to sit down and face that bank roll question squarely and honestly! To check up on your spending habits at 23, and to entertain the resolve that you are not going to be one of many who lets his money fritter away during those best thrift formative years! And wise, too, to allow for some play as you go along. "Alladin," I'll make the wager that you are already in a fair way to becoming "better than the average."

But you have me stumped! What is the bank roll total of the average young man of 23 on the income suggested or on one near it? You will have to help me answer Alladin, boys! What do you think is a fair showing at 23 under the earning circumstances described?

I want you to answer for the reason that it will set you to thinking about this thing of saving. And thinking about it seriously is a step by way of advancing your own future. If you don't stop with thinking!

Let me hear from you, won't you?

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Now it is easy for your children to guard themselves against colds. At the first sneeze, let them drop Mistol in their noses. "OF COURSE I'LL GO— my cold is much better"

..this safe gargle reduces duration 66%

Tests show that colds which would ordinarily last 9 days vanish in 3 days

One woman—cold gone—up and about, and full of pep at the end of three days . . . Another woman sniffling, sneezing, and miserable for a week or more.

Why is it? Has one greater natural powers of resistance than the other? Sometimes yes. But more often it is because one takes constant precautions against colds and sore throat, while the other does not. One realizes that the mouth and throat are germ-breeding areas that need constant cleansing. The other doesn't realize it, or doesn't care.

Mild Colds Instead of Severe

Clinical tests, made under medical supervision, reveal this remarkable truth: That persons who gargled with full strength Listerine twice a day contracted from ½ to ⅔ as many colds as those who did not gargle with it. In short, a reduction of from 50% to 66% in the number of colds.

When Listerine users did contract colds, they lasted only ⅓ as long as colds contracted by non-users, and were ¼ as severe. Similar tests now in progress, involving the examination of several hundred persons, reveal substantially the same results.

In view of the facts, Listerine should be regarded as a primary aid in safeguarding health. At no time is it offered as a substitute for the family physician.

Listerine is Safe

That Listerine accomplishes such results is due to two factors:

First: Its power to destroy germs in the fastest time and reduce mouth bacteria 98%.

Second: Its safe, healing action on tissue. Listerine is non-poisonous and non-irritating.

Because of these qualities, Listerine has won the endorsement of the Lancet of London, world's foremost medical journal. It is the highest compliment that can be paid a mouth wash.

The Certain Remedy for Halitosis

Keep Listerine handy in home and office and carry it with you when you travel. Use it full strength at least twice a day. Thus you guard against infection, reduce the risk of illness, and automatically assure yourself that your breath is beyond reproach. Listerine, as you know, is the swiftest deodorant and surest remedy for halitosis (unpleasant breath).

Robert Herrick Writes Novel of Older Love

Wherein Two Scientists Turn to Romance.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The End of Desire," by Robert Herrick [Farrar & Rinehart]. Published last Monday.

ROBERT HERRICK has broken a silence of several years—as far as fiction is concerned—with a novel called "The End of Desire." It is a thorough, implacably serious fictional study of the subject of physical desire between the sexes. The protagonists of the main drama are two well known doctors—one the man, a psychiatrist, and the other a woman who is an authority on sex customs among primitive peoples. Their relations as lovers have been going on for two years as the book opens with their arrival at the dock in New York after a long trip together gathering scientific material for monographs, which the woman writes for medical journals.

ROBERT HERRICK.

The man has given up his active work in psychiatry. He is romantically in love with the woman and has shifted all of the former props of his life so that he may be available whenever the caprice or the opportunity of their meeting makes it possible to see her.

It is obvious after a few pages that the situation with which the author is concerned is that of the woman occupying in their relationship the position which is usually taken by the man in such liaisons, and of the man cherishing the romantic and sentimental eagernesses which are more often the woman's emotional contribution. The man has given his soul to the union; the woman only—as it becomes more and more evident—her body. It is with that unusual material that Mr. Herrick deals.

The fact that both his hero and his heroine are mature, and grandparents, and that the problems of their children do as much as anything to precipitate their own psychological reactions would make the book to most readers that much more "modern." It is not only the very young these days who are the material of investigating novelists in their eagerness for something "different" and "modern," but what used to be calm middle age. It is evidently much more dangerous emotionally to be between fifty and sixty than to be between fifteen and twenty-five, according to the popular novelists.

In Mr. Herrick's "End of Desire" the ravages of emotion in youth are the mere puffs of smoke against the sky of a smoldering volcano compared to the upheavals which emotion wreaks in middle age.

There is a vast amount of complaining by the hero—who is a good deal of a darling in his way—that the world is obsessed with the notion that love is a function of sex and not of the soul, a notion which he finds wholly mistaken. And yet it is with that idea, and that alone, that the author is concerned.

The love of Dr. Redfield [male] for Dr. Massey [female] is, according to Dr. Redfield, love of the soul, but all of the manifestations which Mr. Herrick expounds are the manifestations of sex. For that reason "End of Desire" strikes me as a very dull book. It is in no sense a complete picture of life. It is a minute study of one phase of one of its manifestations. However true psychologically the book may be [and how true it is, is a matter for a trained psychiatrist rather than a critic of literature to decide], as a picture of human life and relationships it is too asymmetrical to life. It is a distorted picture as literature whatever its fundamental psychological truth, because the author has failed to give his psychological findings their true place in life.

The book is obsessed with an idea. The men and women in "End of Desire" are not human beings with interesting psychological reactions; they are psychological reactions draped over the forms of the characters in the book like a scarf over a lay figure.

The prurient minded will find little in "End of Desire" to titillate their fancy. There is not much stimulation for the senses in the sorry picture of senescent passion, even if that passion were more minutely described. And Mr. Herrick has no concern with the fact; only with the psychological reactions of passion.

According to the old standard, "End of Desire" is an estimably moral book, for it paints—with vivid colors—the fact that the wages of sin is death. It is also—or would be if the author had chosen to make more of it—a very romantic book, for the hero, in an almost lavish fashion gave all for love.

But the author didn't choose to make it either a romantic or a moral [or a cold blooded or an immoral] book. He chose only to make it a case history. And in doing so he deprived it of life. From the pen of one of America's leading literary figures, a pen dry these many years, "End of Desire" is a disappointment.

Nations Hunt Storm Causes at Pole, Tropics

Even Stratosphere Is to Be Invaded by Science.

BY JOHN AHL-NEILSON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Jan. 6.—For the first time in history all the great nations of the world are cooperating in the study of atmospheric conditions in all parts of the globe at a set time. The aim is to locate, in the arctic circle, the cause of typhoons, cyclones and other atmospheric disturbances.

Somewhere, hidden in a wood near Copenhagen, is an observatory. There the various instruments are now being adjusted for the experiments, which are to be carried out by research workers from France, the United States, Germany and other countries this year.

Danish arctic explorers and meteorologists are working day and night to complete the checking of the instruments. When their task has been completed, the steel instruments will be worth more than their own weight in gold, for it is said the quality of the workmanship can be matched nowhere else in the world.

Those instruments record the polar magnetism by means of magnetic needles moving horizontally and vertically, and at the same time they record the magnetism of the earth at the points at which they have been set up. There are more than one hundred of them now being checked.

Dutch and French scientists will be located on the east coast of Greenland, the former at Angmagssalim and the latter at Scoresby sound.

Dr. Knud Rasmussen will proceed by sledge close up to the north pole itself, and there plant his instruments. He will, at the same time explore the northern coast of Greenland. There his compatriot, Dr. Lauge Koch, on his last expedition discovered the old camp sites of the first immigrants to Greenland, namely the American Eskimos.

Dr. Koch also will make his first trip across the ice by air, when he goes on board the Graf Zeppelin, which it is expected will take an active part in the proceedings.

France has agreed to spend $160,000 on researches, and Belgium has voted $50,000 to send scientists to the Congo. There they will study effects while their colleagues in the arctic study causes.

The Italians will set their station in Somaliland. There they also hope to study effects.

The soviet Russian contingent will be under the leadership of the head of the Pavlow observatory near Leningrad. The Russians hope to achieve great results from the use of stratosphere balloons.

These gas balloons, the invention of Prof. Moltchano, can rise to an altitude of 120,000 feet, it is said, and are equipped with diminutive radio sending apparatus. These radios report the changing conditions through which the balloons pass on their journeys through the stratosphere. Many millions of balloons unequipped with radios have been released in the last few years, but it is almost impossible to trace their descent, so that in most cases no information has been gained.

Dr. La Cour, head of the meteorological institute at Copenhagen, recently has returned from a trip to Moscow. There he obtained permission for all other participants in the researches to make use of the balloons.

Denmark will establish stations along the west coast of Greenland from Cape Farewell to Cape York. The Danish government has placed all the radio stations in Greenland at the disposal of their scientists.

It is hoped, by the establishment of these stations in all parts of the world, to establish exactly how great an effect on the world's weather the weather in the arctic regions has. Experiments also will be carried out to determine the effect on radio waves caused by atmospheric changes, and also what effect the northern lights have on magnetic disturbances throughout the world.

New Orleans Has Merry Start of Epiphany Feast

New Orleans, La., Jan. 6.—(AP)—The elves of make believe came back to New Orleans today as dawn brought the feast of epiphany and heralded the glamor of another carnival season. Tonight, the twelfth after Christmas, business men left their desks to don clown's bells and the capes of cavaliers for the twelfth night revellers' sixty-second annual ball, which ushers in a period of prelenten merrymaking almost as old as the city itself.

New Surgeon General Says U.S. Lacks Funds for Proper Training

Maj. Gen. Robert U. Patterson, newly appointed surgeon general of the United States army, spoke last night before 500 members of the medical department of the Cook county chapter, Reserve Officers' association, at the annual dinner in the Drake hotel.

He pointed out that every officer of the medical reserve should attend training camp every year. However, he said, present funds permit each officer to attend the camp only one year in every six. The 1927 law provides for only 27,000 medical officers, he said, while the war time strength would require 40,000. During the war, 60,000 nurses and 400,000 enlisted men would be necessary for medical services, he said.

Gen. Patterson told of a new aviation medical school now at Rand field, Texas, which, he said, is making real contributions. He also discussed medical regiments, the personnel of which is distributed during war time. The regiments also feel lack of funds, he said. There should be a medical regiment in Hawaii, Gen. Patterson added, but, he declared, it exists only on paper.

Other speakers were Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commandant of the 6th corps area, and Dr. Gilbert Fitz-Patrick, retiring president of the reserve association chapter. Dr. Fitz-Patrick asserted it was up to the reserve officers to impress congress with the vital necessity of carrying out the mandate of the national defense act. He asserted the league of nations, Kellogg pact and nine power treaty have failed to constitute the approved solution of peace.

At the meeting the annual election of officers was held. Lieut. Col. George T. Jordan was elected president. Others named were Maj. Charles W. Freeman, vice president; Maj. Stanley W. Clark, secretary; Capt. Carl F. Steinhoff, treasurer, and Col. O. Kreml and Lieut. Col. Dalwin M. Campbell, directors.

WASHINGTON CROSSES DELAWARE NOW IN BASEMENT OF MUSEUM

New York, Jan. 6. — (AP) — That familiar canvas "Washington Crossing the Delaware," in which America's first President stands with one foot upon the gunwale while his soldiers push blocks of ice aside, has been removed from the walls of the Metropolitan museum to a basement storeroom.

Mrs. William Adams Brown, president of the New York chapter of the Colonial Dames, dismissed the action with the brief statement: "The museum directors know their business and if they remove a picture I take it they have good and sufficient reasons."

Col. Louis Annin Ames, head of the Sons of the American Revolution in New York, said the picture was not commendable art and "possibly belongs in the collection of the New York Historical society rather than in the Metropolitan.

"Washington never stood up in the boat as he is represented," he added. "The voyage across the Delaware was precarious and the general had enough common sense to sit down. The American flag, as shown, also is an anachronism, since it was not adopted by the colonies until six months after the crossing of the Delaware."

Joseph Breck, acting director of the Metropolitan, said lack of room was the principal reason for the removal.

Science Will Make Further Attacks on Secrets Within Atoms

Berkeley, Cal., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Workmen at the University of California today began installation of large electric transformers in an experimental power house where a stream of "particles" will be generated for use as "bullets" in an effort to break up the atom.

This plant will be the laboratory of Prof. E. O. Lawrence and Dr. M. Stanley Livingston, university physicists, who hope to tear apart the complex nuclei of atoms to determine their makeup and possibly unlock new sources of energy.

The particles composing the current the apparatus will generate are technically protons, the infinitesimally small positively charged ingredients of the nucleus of the atom of hydrogen gas. An 85 ton magnet is an important part of the apparatus.

Prof. Lawrence and Dr. Livingston will employ probably not more than 20,000 volt electricity to step up the speed of the proton inside a brass vacuum tank.

There the proton is deflected by magnetic force around and around a spiral course, like a rabbit running in ever widening circles within an inclosure. Each time it passes the midway mark on either side it is given a kick by the electric voltage.

Young Cubans Delight in Fete of 3 Wise Kings

All Day Fun Marks the Festival.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Jan. 6.—The happiest day of the year for Cuban children is this the feast of the Three Wise Kings, known to all Latin American children as "Los Reyes Magos."

The commemoration of the day on which the Three Wise Kings paid homage and presented gifts to the new born Christ 1,932 years ago marks great doings for the rising generations throughout the island. More than 70,000 children were entertained by members of the government and public spirited business men.

At 8 o'clock in the morning the children at their respective schools were given breakfast and then the movies were opened to them until noon. This part of the program was followed by an assembly later in the afternoon. They were taken to the Tropical Beer gardens. There a circus and an exhibition of boxing by the children's idol, Kid Chocolate, was staged.

For this occasion every citizen lent a hand to assure transportation, clothing, candy, toys, and a general good time for the kids and their accompanying relatives and parents. The Havana Electric Railway company, the Cuban Bus company, and numerous private colleges and business organizations contributed towards a nation-wide celebration of the "Three Wise Kings."

Early this morning the three impersonating the Three Wise Men mounted an elephant and camels and paraded the main streets of Havana. Other riders awoke the children with cornets and drums announcing that with their arrival the all day fun had started.

Old Friends of Roosevelt Make Pilgrimage to Grave

Cove Neck, N. Y., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Through pouring rain a little band of pilgrims climbed a hill here this morning for a simple commemorative service at the grave of President Theodore Roosevelt, who died 13 years ago today. There were 30 men and women who had known Roosevelt well and who return every year to do honor to his memory and pay their respects to his widow. After prayer had been said and a wreath laid before the simple stone, the pilgrims went to Sagamore Hill, where they were the guests of Mrs. Roosevelt at luncheon.

Styles Are Rougher, Expert Warns the Makers of Shoes

Their two year spree of being ladylike and demure has ended for American women and the fashions of 1932 are returning to the pre-romantic era of dress, a stylist, whose job it is to warn shoe men of changing styles, said yesterday.

"We haven't gone back to straight lines by any means," said Madame Hamilton Jeffries, fashion editor for United Publishers, a group of trade papers, as she displayed shoe sketches in the Palmer house, where the National Shoe Retailers' association yesterday closed a convention.

"But the Victorian curves and furbelows and coquetries are passé," she said. "An effect of careless roughness will be smart this year. In daytime, clothes skirts will be shorter. For sports wear, slacks and sweaters loosely crocheted by hand, and woolens of spongy weaves, silks of crêpey surfaces will be worn. A dress of bright green wool may have great holes in the weave, and be worn over a slip of pink beige.

"French colonial colors, introduced by the exposition in Paris last year, including the primitive oranges, strange yellows and reds and bright blues, the citrous greens, will still prevail, used in groups of three.

"Shoes and other accessories must never match the costume. With a dark blue sports outfit with a nautical swagger to it, for instance, bright red cut-out oxfords may be worn. The shoes for daytime wear will be conservative, but sport shoes and evening shoes will be fairly flamboyant. At any rate, all sorts of individuality may be used."

Herbert Rawlinson Will Help Success of the Radio Revue

Herbert Rawlinson, screen celebrity and radio star, associated with W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station on the Drake hotel, will serve as assistant master of ceremonies in staging the all-star "Radio Revue" at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night. He will aid Ben Bernie, orchestra conductor, master of ceremonies.

Chicagoans who attend the revue tomorrow night will be directly aiding the needy, for proceeds of the show will go to the Joint Emergency Relief fund. Eighty Chicago radio luminaries will participate in the revue. There will also be famous dance bands, orchestras, and announcers. Leading acts from W-G-N, KYW, WMAQ, WLS, WBBM, WENR, and other local stations will appear.

All $1 seats have been sold, but there are still available nearly 2,000 $2 and $3 reserved seats. The 50 cent seats will go on sale at 6 p. m. General sale of the 50 cent seats was withdrawn yesterday by Sidney Strotz, manager of the Stadium, for fear they would get into the hands of scalpers.

This Is the Day to Laugh Away Pupils' Hunger

"East Lynne" Will Help Feed Thousands.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

When Billy Bryant of the Billy Bryant Show Boat company steps out on the stage of the Cort theater this afternoon to make his curtain speech at the benefit performance of "East Lynne," for THE TRIBUNE Hungry School Children's fund, he will face one of America's popular singers—Coe Glade, a contralto of the Chicago Civic opera.

When Miss Glade heard of the performance which will give free lunches to 7,000 school children, she immediately announced that she was going to take a box and said she expected to have the best time she had had in a long time.

"Naturally I think opera is the greatest form of entertainment," Miss Glade said, "but for second choice I'll take the old melodramas."

Another spectator who is anticipating the show this afternoon is Chicago's official greeter, George Gaw. Greeter Gaw was a former actor and once a co-worker with Carl Carlton, the Lord Mount Severn in the "East Lynne" cast. He played "Little Johnny Jones" in the George M. Cohen play of that name 22 years ago.

"You bet I'll be there to hiss the villain and cheer the hero," Greeter Gaw declared yesterday. "It always gives me pleasure to see worse actors than myself."

Radio also will do its share in helping the hungry school children this afternoon. Among the stars who will attend will be "Tweet" Hogan and members of his band which is playing over W-G-N from the Drake hotel, Bess Johnson, a National Broadcasting company dramatic star, and "the Harold Teen Gang," of W-C-N. Blair Walliser, who writes the radio "Harold Teen" script, when told that the Bryant company was giving a benefit show for THE TRIBUNE fund, said: "Boy, that's a break for our gang. Now we'll teach them how to act. When 'Beezie Binks,' who in real life is Jack Spencer, hears Billy Bryant I bet you he can imitate him to a tee on the radio the next night." In the box which the gang will occupy will be, besides Mr. Walliser and Mr. Sepncer, three other members of the gang, namely, Harold Teen [Bill Farnum], Lilac [Wally Colbath], and Lillums [Eunice Yanke].

But opera and radio stars aren't the only important Chicagoans who will see "East Lynne" as only Billy Bryant and his river going folks can play it. There will be prominent business men and club women who will enjoy the entertainment and know they are helping a worthy cause.

Mrs. Louise Stone, principal of the Hubbard Junior High school, who is boosting the show in her neighborhood, said that every day more girls and boys in her school are in real need of food, but the free lunch fund is insufficient to feed them all.

Mrs. O. W. Montgomery, president of the Myra Bradwell Parent-Teacher association, will accompany her board members to see the production. A group of twenty women are planning to attend the show from the Southeast council, Parent-Teacher association, according to the president, Mrs. C. F. Jobson.

Many good seats still are available. These may be obtained at THE TRIBUNE's Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street; the lobby of Tribune Tower, and at the Cort theater box office. After noon all purchases of tickets should be made at the theater box office. The prices are 50 and 75 cents and $1.

A number of contributions arrived yesterday to provide free lunches in the schools, but at the rate the gifts are being received the fund will go a-begging before another two weeks are past. Most of the $30,938 received since the fund's inception has been distributed and spent. The gifts are:

$25—Kappa Zeta Kappa sorority.
$16.10—The Bookhouse for Children.
$10—A Friend, Friends of Music.
$5—Adam J. Lanz, L. J. G.
$3.82—A Friend.
$2—A. W. G., Louise and Barbara, H. P. Gifford, Dames of the Loyal Legion, N. Davidson, M. B., T. D. W., Joseph Abrams.
1.25—A Friend.
$1—Anonymous, Mary E. Combs, Anonymous, a Friend.
1.0c—F. W. Virden.

Total	$ 96.27
Previously acknowledged	30,841.76
Grand total	$30,938.03

Tired Workers Refreshed by Gland Science

Illinois Central Applies Latest Methods.

INDUSTRIAL medicine, seeking to promote the health and happiness as well as the efficiency of employés, has been advanced by the science of endocrinology, the study and treatment of the glands of internal secretion.

This is the opinion of Dr. G. G. Dowdall, chief surgeon of the Illinois Central railroad. He received a report yesterday on the results of what is said to be the first industrial work ever done by an endocrinologist. Dr. James H. Hutton, who prepared the report, was appointed consulting endocrinologist of the Illinois Central more than a year and a half ago, the first time any industrial organization had recognized this newer field of medicine.

Dr. Hutton, reporting on the results of 780 visits and consultations among employés of the road, found that endocrine disorders among railway employés are of the same kind and frequency as those met in private practice and that their treatment is possible within the limitation of costs imposed by the railway's hospital department.

Only one of the patients treated by Dr. Hutton was in the hospital, their disorders not being sufficient to put them in bed.

"They drag through life," the report said, "feeling miserable and often causing acute discomfort among their fellow workers. Lacking energy, they perform their daily tasks poorly. They have the 'blues' or are 'run-down.' The glandular insufficiency which is most often behind these vague conditions has been rarely recognized to date, though it many times can be recognized as certainly and quickly as many more common conditions and as quickly and successfully treated."

"We regard the results so far obtained as very successful," said Dr. Dowdall. "Endocrinology has provided relief from complaints where surgery and other forms of medicine would be helpless and it is an advance in industrial, just as it is in general medicine."

The pituitary and the thyroid glands were found by Dr. Hutton to be most frequently at fault, and combination pituitary and thyroid deficiencies were found frequently. A comparatively high frequency of pituitary and ovarian deficiencies were found among the women employés, and disorders of the latter type caused a great deal of absenteeism and reduced the working efficiency of many women, according to the report.

The most striking cause of the thyroid-pituitary type was an engineer who constantly complained of sleepiness. His failing became so generally recognized that his fellow workers applied to him the name of "Old Sleepy Eye," and he was removed from road service because of the great danger of falling asleep at the throttle. Treatment with thyroid and pituitary gland extract was begun on July 22, 1930, and on Jan. 6, 1931, he returned to work, rid of his sleepy spells and feeling better than he had in twelve years.

A woman of 38, exemplifying the "old maid," according to the report, was found to have the same endocrine deficiency. She was frequently absent from work, complaining of illness, and was given to hysteria and scenes.

"Crabbed, cantankerous, irritable and irritating, her picture is familiar to all medical men, lawyers, ministers, editors and alienists," Dr. Hutton wrote. She was tall, thin and angular, having lost 20 pounds in four years, and she woke up tired every morning. After six months' treatment she reported increased weight and a general sense of well being.

A girl of 23 with the pituitary and ovarian deficiency weighed 183 pounds and was only 5 feet 2½ inches in height. She also complained of constant backache. Treatment began on June 8 and by September she had lost 20 pounds and was otherwise normal.

A woman who complained of continuous pains in the head had been treated without relief for a year at the out-patient department. Her headaches stopped almost overnight with treatment for pituitary deficiency.

Two firemen with adrenal deficiencies, affecting the blood pressure, complained of weakness and developed some of the symptoms of Addison's disease. Improvement was generally satisfactory with treatment.

Tujunga Votes Its 3,900 Residents Into City of Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—By special election, the former suburban municipality of Tujunga, located in high foothills northward from Los Angeles, voted to annex itself to this city. The population of Tujunga is approximately 3,900 and its area will add a little more than eight square miles to Los Angeles' already unequaled municipal length and breadth of 444 square miles. This is more than one-third the area of all Rhode Island.

With the addition of Tujunga's population the Los Angeles population now stands at 1,241,948.

The Tujunga annexation gives Los Angeles about 452 square miles. North and south it runs 44 miles, and east and west 20 miles.

A large section of the area of the city is ocean water and still a larger section includes sparsely people districts of foothills, mountains, desert, and ranch land.

Movie Gossip as It's Heard in Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 6.—Back in the old days before Betty Compson became a silent film actress, and then a big star, she was a shy little violin player. Now the slump that has hit the film stars has made a violin player out of Betty again. She signed tody for a fifty week tour of fifty big cities of the United States, being featured by the Fanchon & Marco chain stage entertainment enterprise. She'll draw a salary reported at $3,500 a week.

Lew Cody and Mary Nolan have also turned stage entertainers here, taking a week's turn at the Los Angeles Loews theater. It was only a year ago that movie stars of this luster were scoffing at the idea of accepting vaudeville turns. Now they're tickled pink to get them. Estelle Taylor will probably be hitting the road again in a few weeks.

Tom Mix discussed matrimony yesterday. "I'll have to make another million to get in the state of mind where I can consider I can afford to get married again," he said.

Joan Bennett went before the camera again today, it being five months since the accident in making a scene for "She Wanted a Millionaire," in which she broke her hip falling off a horse. She posed for closing scenes in the same picture at Fox studio today. The studio insists that she will not do the riding scenes, and Joan is just as insistent that she will go through with the scenes that she was working in when hurt. My bet is that a double will do the riding.

Food Talk.

They tell me that the fastest train to Chicago from the east is not primarily for the transportation of big executives, but for bringing ocean fresh seafood to us. I don't know about that, but it is true that we can get good lobsters now at low prices. There is no reason why we shouldn't have them now and then even when there's no one but the family.

For serving boiled, the best size is what is known as chicken lobster. It is a small one that makes just a nice individual portion. A good lobster is heavy for its size. It is a dull darkish green, and it must be alive. To cook it, it should be popped head down into a kettle of boiling salted water and cooked for twenty minutes. More time should be allowed for larger lobsters, but twenty minutes is enough for the little fellows. Longer cooking makes the meat stringy.

After boiling allow the lobsters to drain. When they are cool enough to handle, remove large and small claws [Pacific coast lobsters, by the way, have no large claws] and crack to remove meat. Split the body lengthwise and remove the inedible portions; the intestinal cord, sand pouch, gills. Lay the coral aside. If there is fat it should be saved. It is rich in flavor and may be used with the body and tail shell as a base for lobster bisque.

CRANBERRIES BAKED IN A BEANPOT.

Use an earthenware dish with a cover. Allow ¾ cup of sugar for each cup of berries. Alternate a layer of cranberries with a layer of sugar, adding ¼ cup of cold water. Cover and bake in a moderate oven about four hours. Serve hot. The berries may be turned out to serve, but if a real beanpot is used it is much better to serve from that.

LIME GELATIN.

¼ cup lemon juice.
4 tablespoons sugar.
1 teaspoon gelatin.
1 egg white.
2 cups carbonated lime beverage.

Soften the gelatin in ½ cup of lime beverage. Bring the lemon juice and sugar to a boil and add to gelatin mixture. When cool, add the remaining lime. Freeze in refrigerator for 45 minutes. Turn into a chilled bowl and beat well. Beat the egg white and fold into the lime. Freeze 3 hours, stirring every 30 minutes. This recipe makes five portions.

Society Learns About Debts from Deweys

SOCIETY has been learning a lot about the all important war debts since the Charles S. Deweys resumed their residence in Chicago a few months ago.

Mr. Dewey has given enlightening speeches on the subject at both formal and informal gatherings, and tomorrow he is to be the guest of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations at a luncheon meeting of that fashionable but serious minded body in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house.

After the dessert course Mr. Dewey will tell his audience about "War Debts"—their origin, the question of capacity to pay, and a practical method of handling the debts in the present depression.

Among those who have made reservations are the Walter S. Brewsters, Mrs. William H. Bush, Mrs. William B. Greenlee, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Elting, Mrs. John V. Farwell, Clay Judson, Stephen Y. Hord, Robert Hall McCormick, Russell Tyson, Mrs. Ralph Winston, and Mrs. Mason Phelps.

Junior League Show and Musical at Casino Today.

The day's calendar is practically monopolized by the Junior league musical and exhibition at the Casino. The musical program will be given at 3 o'clock by Mrs. Albert F. Madlener, Miss Elizabeth Poole and Jurien Hoekstra, and tea will follow. The exhibit of painting and sculpture by league members will open at 11 o'clock and continue until 6 in the evening. Miss Alice Roullier, John Storrs and Walter Frazier are to judge the show, advance reports of which have been so glowing as excite everybody's interest and curiosity.

Mrs. Stanley Zaring will give a luncheon today at her father's Lake Shore drive residence for Mrs. Alfred McCormack of New York, who is here on a holiday visit with her father, Walter Byron Smith. There will be fourteen guests, all of them young women who made their debuts a few years ago and assisted at the coming out parties of the hostess, who was then Marion Dixon, and the principal guest, who was Winifred Smith before her marriage.

Persian Art Subject of Lecture for Wednesday.

Postmen yesterday delivered three dignified white cards to Arts club members. The first requests the presence of members at an illustrated lecture by Dr. Arthur Upham Pope on "The Persian Exhibition in London" next Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock; the second announces that "through the courtesy of Mr. Guillaume of Paris and the Marie Harriman gallery of New York, the club has secured the loan of the celebrated painting, 'La Noce,' by Henri Rousseau. This will be placed on exhibition next Wednesday for a period of two weeks." The third, but not the least interesting announcement, conveys the information that "by order of the executive committee, the price of luncheon has been reduced to one dollar and twenty-five cents and the price of tea to fifty cents per person."

No doubt a lot of children will be as disappointed as this department is to learn that next Saturday morning's performance of the Junior league's "Runaway Papoose" will be the final show of the season. The league children's theater committee produced only two plays this season instead of the usual four because the girls are engaged in so many relief measures now that they can't spare their members for work on the theater committee. The season, brief through it was, has been a very successful one, and the shows have been drawing large audiences every Saturday morning to the Blackstone theater. "The Runaway Papoose" has been particularly interesting to school children studying early American history.

Bargain hunters and post-Christmas holiday shoppers who yearn for some of the lovely things at the Woman's exchange are welcoming Mrs. Lester Armour's announcement that the shop's annual marked down sale will be held next Tuesday at Miss Helen Gurley's residence at 1416 North State parkway. Lampshades, wastebaskets, pillows, children's clothes, and material by the yard will be among the articles offered at reduced prices.

Drama League to Hear Plays Read on Monday.

The Dama league will meet for one of its play reading sessions on Monday morning at the Chicago Woman's club. Mrs. Howard L. Willett will read outstanding scenes from the three plays which make "Mourning Becomes Electra."

Mr. and Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted have returned from a holiday visit with Mr. Olmsted's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Vance McCormick, in New York.

Boxholders for the Gigli concert to be given next Wednesday evening at Orchestra hall to benefit the Dorothy Kahn Club for Crippled Children include Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull, Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Forgan, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, and Mr. and Mrs. William V. Kelley. Part of the proceeds will go to the Joint Emergency Relief fund.

Mrs. Charles H. Swift will sing at the midwinter meeting of the Mothers' Aid of the Chicago Lying-In hospital next Wednesday afternoon at the Chicago Woman's club. President Hutchins of the University of Chicago will be a guest speaker.

Mrs. Dolly Gann will arrive early next month to be the house guest for a few days of Mrs. Jacob Baur.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Kohlsaat of Evanston have been in Princeton for a holiday visit with Mrs. Kohlsaat's parents, Dr. and Mrs. William Starr Myers.

NORTHWESTERN ROMANCE

MISS AUGUSTA CRAFTS WATSON.

[Carlos Photo.]

Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Crafts Watson of Ravinia have announced the engagement of their daughter, Augusta Crafts, to Preston Reeves Weir, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles F. Weir of Chicago. Miss Watson is a senior at Northwestern university and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma. Mr. Weir was graduated last year from Northwestern and is a member of the Wranglers.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Clothing, Batteries Would Help.

"I am a widow and the mother of two children who are badly in need of warm clothing. The girl is 13 and the boy is 12. The latter is badly in need of a sweater. Perhaps you could get me some "B" batteries, too. You got a radio set for me not long ago, but we haven't been able to use it because it has no batteries.

"MRS. W. M."

If your children are about the same ages as Mrs. M.'s boy and girl, perhaps you'll have some of their outgrown clothing to give. Being able to use the radio would make them extremely happy, too. Who can supply the batteries?

Denies McFadden Group Has the Pictorial Review

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—When Lee Ellmaker purchased the Pictorial Review and its affiliated interests recently he acted as an individual and not in behalf of the MacFadden Publications, Inc., with which he was connected, the Pictorial Review company announced today. The statement said considerable confusion as to the new ownership has arisen and that "the MacFadden Publications, Inc., neither directly nor indirectly has any interest with him and other in the Pictorial Review." Ellmaker, it was announced, has resigned from the MacFadden organization to devote all his time to his new properties.

Bethany Bible Society Gets $2,000 from Estate

Dayton, O., Jan. 6.—(AP)—The Bethany Bible society, Chicago, and the general mission board of the Church of the Brethren were given bequests of $2,000 each in the will of Saloma E. Fasnecht, former Dayton resident, filed for probate today. A bequest of $500 was given to North Manchester, Ind., college.

First Silk Suit of the Spring Appears

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — All of the French dressmakers are showing silk suits in their advance spring styles for the south. Suits made of printed or plain silk and suits made of satin are ready to go to Palm Beach and to migrate to the cities of the north later in the spring.

The jackets of these suits are departing in a big way from the normal jacket silhouette. They are cut to bolero proportions, they are short dolmans and they are brief tailcoats taking inspiration from the masculine tailcoat. The skirts are slender and fitted, with whatever fullness they have set in somewhere near the knees. Blouses with such suits are usually white and frequently made of satin.

The Augustabernard suit in the accompanying sketch is the silk suit that is being most talked about in Paris. It is made of black silk crêpe, a heavy and rough weave, and it has the new tailcoat silhouette jacket. This jacket explains itself in the sketch. The standing collar that extends to the waistline down the front is made of bias bands of crêpe.

Under the jacket is a blouse of white satin that has a collar just like that of the jacket, except that the bands down the front are loose and made into a loop that is held in place by the jacket belt.

The skirt is close fitting to the knees and then flared by circular cutting.

How Do Clubwomen Manage?

The active head of an important society, the moving spirit in several others, and a full social calendar. Such women can't pause because of monthly periods! So, the knowing woman relies on a preparation called Midol. This truly amazing discovery of the specialists keeps her perfectly comfortable every minute of her time to menstruate.

Midol is not a narcotic. It doesn't interfere with the normal menstrual process. It just blocks all possibility of any pain. It can't fail. It acts in five to seven minutes! Tiny tablets in a tiny box to tuck away in your bag. Just ask the druggist for Midol.

Mexican Boy's Painting Wins Critic's Praise

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

THREE exhibitions which will give one pause are those of water colors by Jorge Murillo, a young Mexican boy fifteen years of age, at the Indian Trading post, 619 North Michigan avenue; the water colors and oils of Louis Weiner at the Palette and Chisel club, and the etchings by Mrs. Bertha Jaques at the Cordon club, Fine Arts building.

Murillo is surprising for the accuracy of his drawing and the fineness of his color. There is a great deal of the primitive in his work, which is but to be expected. His ability to depict character is extraordinary, and his flair for the adventurous makes it a delight to follow him through Mexico in his pictures. He has put old Mexico into a series of small sketches with the precision and vigor usually found today in the painting of our southwest Indians alone.

Louis Weiner at the Palette and Chisel club leafs over very gracefully the more colorful pages of New Mexican landscape. His work is vivid and alive. He uses reds, pinks, browns, and yellows with a spontaneous freedom that makes his landscapes scintillate like so many escaped diamonds, throwing from every facet new rays in the light of a hot sun. There is a restlessness about this painting which some may not like. It serves its purpose, however, in telling the story of a new country.

Mrs. Jaques at the Cordon club sustains the fine reputation she has won as an etcher with a group of excellent prints. Her flower etchings are always interesting, but to these she has added a London series and a series of boat pictures. One particularly fine print is that of sheep in pasture. Other delicate etchings are those of Venice. Now that she has retired from the more arduous duties of the Chicago Society of Etchers it is to be hoped that more etchings will come from the fluent tools in her capable hands.

These exhibitions will continue through the month.

David Warfield Says Stage Will Survive, but He Enjoys Rest

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—David Warfield broke the silence of his seven year retirement today and talked approvingly of the modern theater and its trend toward naturalness. But he won't return to the stage.

Comfortable in his big apartment overlooking Central park, the actor contentedly smoked a cigar and said he is enjoying his rest and freedom too much for that. At 65 he has no wistful longings for footlights, crowds and applause that greeted him when he starred in "The Music Master" and "The Auctioneer."

"I've had my cake," he said with a smile. "You can't eat cake all the time, you know."

He is not one to regret "the good old days," contemptuous of modern actors and complaining of slovenly diction.

"How do we really talk?" he asked. "Isn't it slovenly with everybody except the pedants? That is the natural, the simple way, not like an elocutionist."

About the future of the theater he has no worries.

"Never mind what they say," he declared; "the theater is not dying. It never will die, because people love it."

Just as a great picture is better than a photograph of it, so do audiences like flesh and blood acting better than the talkies—when they can get it, he said.

"Actors in the talkies have one great advantage, though. They can afford to live the emotions of their big scenes because they do not have to repeat them night after night—every night and twice a week in the afternoon."

Bright Sayings of the Children

Recently I gave my little sister a copy of Robinson Crusoe. After going through the copy several times she became disturbed over something. I asked what the trouble was and she responded:

"Was Robinson Crusoe an acrobat?"

"I don't know. Why?" I answered.

"It says here that he sat on his chest."

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight.")

Every wise mother teaches her children on their first trip to the theater to mark out the exits. We all want a lot of things most of the time, but in time of trouble there is nothing that is wanted as urgently as a way out.

A card of exit is often the key to a contract hand. In yesterday's play-a-problem the player sitting North carefully kept his card of exit and East was able to make a very unusual play and take it away from him. East locked the door and left North hammering upon it. This was the hand:

NORTH
♠—K,J,10
♥—Q,J,10,8,2
♦—4,3,2

WEST
♠—A,2
♥—K,7,6
♦—7,6,5

EAST (Dealer)
♠—Q,9,8,7
♥—A,9,4
♦—A,Q,10
♣—Q,J,9

SOUTH
♠—6,5,4,3
♥—5,3
♣—4,3,2

East dealt and bid one no-trump. South passed. West bid two clubs. West could, of course, have raised to two no-trumps, but a two club bid in this situation shows the same strength and shows the club suit. In other words, it gives far more precise information to East than a simple raise of two no-trumps. North overcalled with two hearts. If it had not been for North's overcall East would now have jumped to three no-trumps, since he should feel almost sure of making up the club suit that his partner has shown him. However, since he has only one stop in North's heart suit, judgment compels him to bid but two no-trumps. South passed and West, having a second stop in hearts after his partner has shown one and slightly more strength than is shown by his bid of two clubs takes the bid to three no-trumps. All passed.

East's play of this hand is clever in the extreme. I am going to give it to you as it occurred and see if you can find the really brilliant spots in it. After I am through I will then explain just what these were.

South opened the ♥ 5, dummy played the 2, North the 10, and East took the trick with the A. East now finessed his ♣ Q, which lost to North's K. North returned the ♥ Q, which East took in his dummy with the K. Dummy now led the ♣ 7, which East took with the J, leading back the ♣ 9, which dummy took with the 10. Dummy then led the ♣ A and ♣ 8. On the last three leads of clubs North discarded the ♦ 3-2 and the ♠ 10, while South, on the last two leads of clubs, discarded the ♠ 4-3. Dummy now led the ♦ 7. North played the 4, East the A, refusing the finesse, and South the 9. East now led the ♥ 9, on which South discarded the ♠ 5, North capturing the trick with the ♥ Q. North now cashed in the ♥ 8 and 2, and then led the ♠ J, which East took with the Q. East then led the ♠ 9 to dummy's A for three odd and the game.

Have you seen how East carefully planned and executed his play? North's discards have shown East very plainly that North holds the ♠ K and that South holds the ♦ K. Having forced North to discard all but his one protecting card for his ♠ K and his single exit card, the ♦ 4, East leads the ♦ 7 from dummy to take away North's way out (the card of exit), East, of course, refusing to finesse. At trick nine East puts North in with the heart, allows him to take his other two heart tricks, and then forces him to lead the spade up to his A-Q combination—the only possible way of pulling in the game.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as S. 3, H. K. etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

City's First 1932 Triplets Swell Family to Nine

Chicago's first set of triplets for 1932 arrived yesterday at the Augustana hospital, just a half hour after twins were born in the same hospital. Mothers, triplets and twins were reported as doing nicely.

Three baby girls, each weighing about 5 pounds, were born to Mrs. Henry Parisek of 2657 Mildred avenue. There are already four children in the Parisek family. Dr. Robert Crow, the attending physician, said Mrs. Parisek's husband is a printer, working only three days a week. Dr. Crow said that Parisek had applied to the charities for aid, but had been refused any help help on the hospital bill.

The twins at the Augustana hospital, a boy and a girl, were born to Mrs. Frank Theise, 750 Belden avenue. The boy weighed 6 pounds and 3 ounces and the girl 7½ pounds, according to Dr. William Brown.

U. of C. Students Urged to View Utilities as Basis of Careers

University of Chicago students yesterday were urged to consider the great possibilities of the nation's public utility industries in their choice of careers. But more than that, they were counseled not to go job hunting.

The wisdom of deliberate and careful choice of a vocation, rather than of haphazard hunting of jobs, is the principle upon which the university's board of vocational guidance yesterday inaugurated a series of ten lectures by prominent alumni of the university on the possibilities of success in ten great types of business.

The university's effort is to utilize its wide connections with industry to train its students definite posts so that they may be better prepared to overcome the handicaps of the current depression.

"Public utilities challenge the genius of coming generations as imperatively as our virgin continent challenged the pioneers," Marshall Sampsell, president of the Central Illinois Public Service company told 200 students as the first session. "Our railroads are far from entering upon a period of mere stability. They are really at a point of new departure. Within them one can find opportunity for high service and constructive adventure.

"Transportation over steel rails will always be the backbone of American commerce, and given the slightest release from bureaucratic fetters, our railway system will expand naturally into a great coördinated system of transportation by water, sea, air, and highway."

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare, costs little, and saves money, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

BLACKHAWKS RALLY TO WHIP DETROIT, 4 TO 2

TRAINING CAMP IS FOUND WHERE ATHLETES TRAIN

Olympic Skaters Are There to Skate.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 6.—Eighteen kids lay sprawled on wire cots in a log bunkhouse, a room rank with the smell of rub stuff, on the edge of a wilderness where deer and elk, bobcat and fox roamed the forest. It was such a place as I had in mind the first time I went south to visit the ball clubs at their training camps and, instead, discovered the ball players bedecked in dude flannels lolling around the marble lobbies of the hotels or coursing the evening away in glum domesticity at family bridge tables on the mezzanine.

From pegs and nails around the room, heavy flannel underwear hung along with skating tights and suits of those gay overalls with bright piping and shoulder straps and zippers down the legs of the pants, which are now uniform for the wintry carnivals. And there were racing skates with long, thin, light blades. There were skates on the cots, skates hanging from nails, skates tucked under the beds, about 70 pair, all told, worth, so one of the young men estimated, close on to a couple of thousand dollars.

Seek Olympic Places.

This camp is about one hour and thirty minutes from Broadway and 42d street, on the western bank of the Hudson river and on the eastern boundary of the Palisades Interstate park. The 18 young athletes were mainly from Chicago, New York, and Detroit, and they had been in camp since Dec. 6, training every day at long hikes over the mountains and long sessions on the ice in competition for places on the speed skating team which will represent the United States in the Olympic games at Lake Placid in February.

Down in the city there had been only a couple of flurries of snow and as yet not even a crust of ice on the park lagoons. There were only scattered patches of snow no bigger than footprints on the low slopes of the mountain where the lodge was, but the hilltops were white and, as the road led inland and gently up, the ground was covered and within five minutes by car ice appeared on the lakes.

Mr. Taylor's in Charge.

Two men in leather jackets lined with fleece were inspecting the ice on a small pond of maybe 30 acres called Lake Mawahunta. One said he was Maj. W. A. Welch, the superintendent of the park, and the other happened to be Bill Taylor, the foreman of Lake Tiorati, one of the big lakes in the park, and coach of the last two American Olympic skating teams and of the present one.

They were plotting to fetch up several large tanks of hot water from the heating plant down at the lodge during the evening and spray it on the surface of the skating course to melt down the bobbly ice caused by the partial thaws of the last few days. Then, they hoped, an overnight freeze would produce a hard, smooth surface suitable for speed trials.

Not Such a Bad Job.

There are worse jobs than Mr. Taylor's. He is supposed to prevent any and all hunters from cannonading any and all game in the park, and in addition to that he is supposed to shoot on sight any and all fox and bobcat encountered by him anywhere on the reservation.

He is also supposed to shell any and all wild housecat and domestic dogs not personally known to him, according to a law which presumes all such to be there on no friendly business. He is further required to fish now and again so as to know how the fish are getting along. And Broadway and the shows are 90 minutes from where he lives, as deep in the woods as though he lived in Maine.

Maj. Welch is a West Point man of some ripe old class and it was he who invited the Olympic committee except for their food and, of course, their athletic equipment and liniment. The Military academy sent down some training material from the athletic plant at the Point.

Healthy? See Those Chests!

The squad was back in quarters now from a long workout on the ice and lazing around the dormitory under a ceiling of logs waiting for an old army cook, named Scotty, once attatched to the Military academy, to yell for them to come and get it. They were all in that magnificent health which asks only food and sleep. Some of them were blowing their chests out and comparing their expansion.

There was a young fellow from Chicago named Eddie Murphy who had been a member of the last Olympic team and who won THE TRIBUNE's Silver Skates Derby in 1929. I had bought some sweaters from him in a sporting goods store last spring, but he had seemed to have changed and I didn't recognize him at once. He didn't look the same with his clothes off.

Murphy said some of them were wondering how they could manage to travel up to Placid and pay their maintenance there if they should happen not to make the team. There will be only a dozen places on the team, possibly no more than eight, and the rest will have to be eliminated from the squad when the final selection is made, either

Reveals Badger Council Forced Little to Resign

Madison, Wis., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—George Little, former Wisconsin director of athletics, was unanimously asked to resign by the Badger athletic council and Irwin C. Uteritz, who succeeded Little, was a compromise candidate. These were the principal facts brought to light by the legislative investigating committee here today.

GEORGE LITTLE.

They were brought out in questions fired at Prof. J. F. A. Pyre, chairman of the Wisconsin athletic council. Others who were quizzed were George Downer, director of publicity; George Levis, business manager of athletics, and their two aids, Harry Schwenker, ticket sales director, and Robert Foss, assistant publicity man.

Legislators Favor Little.

The legislative body, strongly in favor of George Little's work as director of athletics at Wisconsin, pressed Prof. Pyre for the reasons why Little was requested to resign.

"We had the impression that he had not run affairs of the athletic department competently," said Prof. Pyre in response to repeated questions by Assemblymen F. W. Krez, Plymouth, and Oscar J. Schmiege, Appleton.

The legislative investigating body attempted to place the blame for Little's failure on the acts of the athletic council. This Prof. Pyre vigorously denied.

Can't Give Reasons.

Questioned as to specific reasons why the athletic council found Little incompetent, Pyre replied, "I don't think I can give any. He had a bungling way and was vacillating."

"Unless you can give us some definite reasons for Little's resignation under fire we must conclude that the council's action was at least untimely," remarked Assemblyman Krez.

Continuing their probe along a different track, the legislators asked why Glenn Thistlethwaite received the solid backing of the faculty members of the athletic council as director after he had resigned as football coach.

"It was to show that the faculty had control of the matter," said Pyre.

Mum on Meanwell.

Prof. Pyre stated that Dr. Walter E. Meanwell, Wisconsin basketball coach, received but two votes for athletic director in a straw ballot by the council. Queried as to the reason why Meanwell was not regarded more highly for the position, Pyre replied, "I would rather not answer."

Neither Little nor Thistlethwaite was present at the meeting. A final meeting will be held by the legislative committee at a date to be announced next week.

Tales of Tattersall's

[This is the fourth of a series of articles about old time fights and fighters at historic Tattersall's on South Dearborn street.]

BY FRENCH LANE.

The showmanship of Lou Houseman, the matchmaker at Tattersall's, was demonstrated convincingly when he set about to make a second match for Benny Yanger, the Tipton Slasher.

The scene was conveniently laid in Houseman's office a few days after Yanger had knocked out Harry Forbes, thus establishing himself as one of the leading bantamweights.

Two strangers unexpectedly entered.

"We're ready to bet $5,000 we can bring a man into your ring who will whip Yanger," said one of them.

The proposition startled Houseman, but not for long. "May I ask what you are using for money?" was his comeback.

Then the two strangers spread out upon his desk $5,000 in gold and currency. Tattersall's finances had reached the big figure stage, but even so the sight of $5,000 at his finger tips caused Houseman's eyes to swell out like well heated popcorn kernels.

Size of Wager Grows as Tongues Wag.

Houseman would see if he could find a taker.

Within a couple of hours everybody in downtown Chicago and in the stockyards district had heard the story of what had taken place in Houseman's office.

Of course, the size of the proposed wager grew as the story traveled from mouth to mouth. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon the sum had grown to $50,000, according to the gossips.

However, the $5,000 had been covered, and after the wager was placed in the hands of a stakeholder the strangers who by this time had been identified as south siders added even more mystery to the fight. They refused to name the man on whom they had bet $5,000 and who was to be Yanger's next opponent.

Try as they might, the curious boxing followers could learn but little as to his identity. They discovered only that he was a street car conductor and had seldom missed making his daily runs over the bumpy Cottage Grove avenue car lines.

Mystery Deepens as Interest Increases.

So the pending fight came to be known as Benny Yanger against the Fighting Conductor.

As the mystery deepened so did the interest grow. It became noised about that Eddie Santry was training the Fighting Conductor and that he was confident his charge would whip Yanger. Ring folks had a lot of confidence in Santry's judgment.

Everywhere on the south side the Fighting Conductor was mustering backers. Yanger's supporters about the downtown district were cautious because of the mystery which shrouded the Fighting Conductor. Yet every wager the south siders offered was scon covered.

Two days before the fight it became known that the Fighting Conductor was Tommy Mowatt.

In the public prize ring Mowatt was a mystery. But he was no stranger to his backers on the south side. He had fought many bouts in private out in that section of Chicago. Some of them took place in the back rooms of saloons. Others in the country—out in the wide open spaces—where a few score fans would journey. Everybody who had watched him in action knew he was a natural fighter of the rough and ready type and he never had been beaten.

One Knockdown After Another.

The fight on July 4, 1900, attracted one of the largest crowds that ever jammed into Tattersall's. No other affair of the prize ring had aroused the people of Chicago as had this. No crowd had ever watched a more thrilling battle.

From the tap of the bell it was one knockdown after another. Early in the second round Yanger was on the canvas flat on his back and the referee was counting. It was the first time Yanger ever had been knocked down. He was up before the count was finished. He was down again in the third and so was Mowatt. There were other knockdowns in the fourth and fifth rounds.

As the sixth and last session started the 10,000 spectators within the walls of Tattersall's were frantic.

The fight neared the finish and Yanger was taking a whipping. There was no question about that. Mowatt had scored more knockdowns. He had outfought the desperate and game Tipton Slasher all the way.

Tosses in Towel as Bell Would Have Saved Him.

Suddenly a swish and a thud, Yanger's last desperate blow—a right which smashed into Mowatt's chin—hushed the crowd. The crash sent Mowatt down nine seconds before the fight was to end. He was out this time, there was no doubt about it; still the bell could have saved him.

In the excitement, Santry, the chief second for Mowatt, and noted for his coolness, lost his head. Just before the bell sounded, which would have ended the fight at the count of nine, he tossed in the towel. It gave Yanger the victory on a knockout.

These were wild nights at Tattersall's, you may be sure. But there were wilder nights to come.

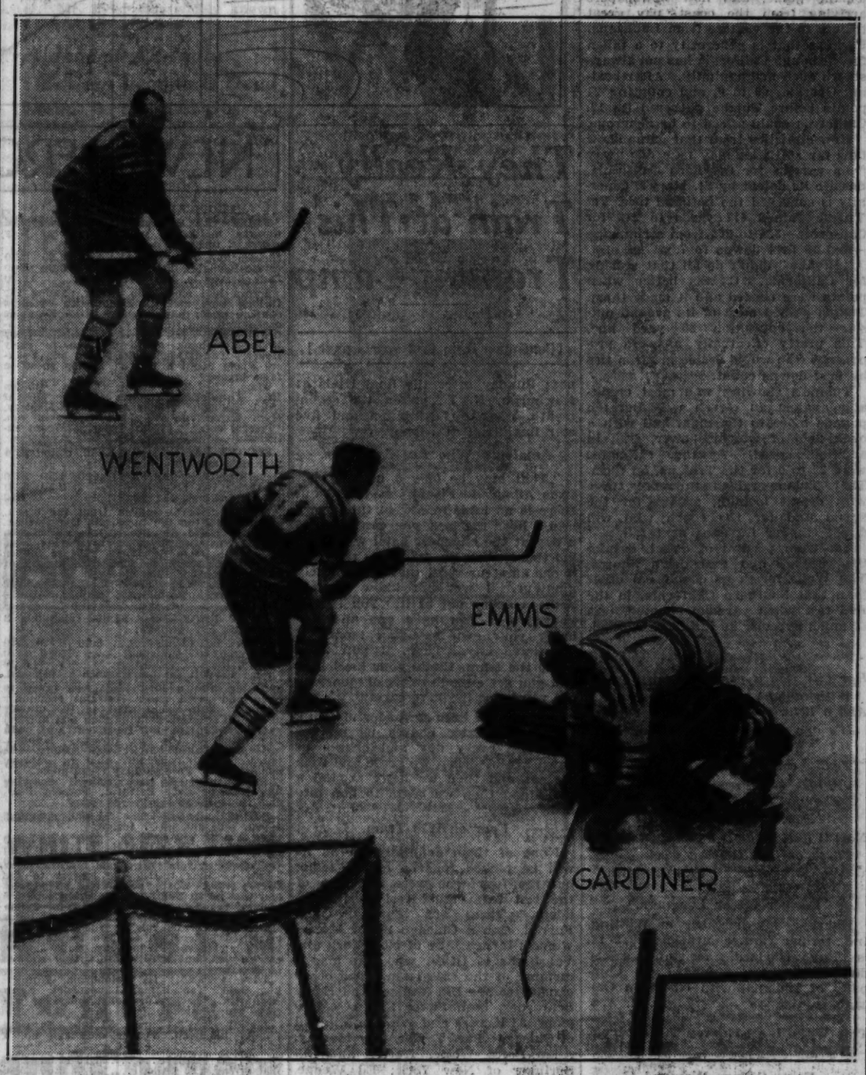
WHEN A GOALIE REALLY NEEDS HIS ARMOR



Do you still wonder at the necessity of a goalie's garb? Well then, how would you like to trade places with Chuck Gardiner—sans pad and protector—in this play? Chuck jumped from his cage to smother Emms' shot. They collided and fell in a heap. Wentworth, Blackhawk defense, recovered the puck. Later the Hawks won from Detroit, 4 to 2. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Hitchcock Still No. 1 Poloist, with 10 Goals

New York, Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Thomas Hitchcock Jr., America's international captain, continued at the top of the ranking list of the United States Polo association, the only ten goal player in the country and one of the three of the world, today as the United States Polo association announced its handicap ratings.

There are no longer any nine goal players in the United States. Eric Pedley of California and Winston Guest of Long Island were dropped from nine to eight goals today as the association's delegates accepted the report of the handicap committee. Another internationalist, Earle A. S. Hopping, was dropped from eight goals to seven. Four players were reduced from seven goals to six.

Only Four 8 Goal Men.

With Hitchcock heading the new list, Guest and Pedley have only Elmer J. Boeseke Jr. of California and Cecil Smith of Texas to share the eight goal ranking with them.

The others on the top of American polo are all at seven goals and include, besides Hopping, Stewart Iglehart of Yale, Devereux Milburn, former international captain; Arthur Perkins of Colorado, J. C. Rathborne of Old Aiken, Aidan Roark of California, Harold E. Talbott Jr. of Roslyn, H. W. [Rube] Williams of Texas, Edward Baldwin of Hawaii, and Gerald Balding.

Mills Back to 6 Goals.

James P. Mills, the Yale and Old Aiken player, who was raised to seven at last summer's meeting, was returned to six goals, as were Stephen Sanford, captain of the Hurricanes; J. Watson Webb, the former internationalist, and Robert E. Strawbridge Jr., a member of several international squads.

Three new six goal players, brought up from the five goal mark, are Michael G. Phipps, Yale student, who played some very good polo last year; Seymour H. Knox of Buffalo, and Lindsey Howard, Pacific coast player.

Ruth to Demand 2 Year Contract at $80,000 Salary

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Babe Ruth broke his silence today on the matter of a new contract with the New York Yankees, and his words will scarcely reassure Col. Jacob Ruppert or any other baseball magnate advocating the new policy of reducing wages.

The Babe declared he will demand another two year contract with the Yanks at $80,000 a year, the same price the colonel has been paying for Ruth's services the last two seasons.

"Last season was one of the best I ever had," said the Babe as he sat bundled in blankets in McGovern's gymnasium.

"I see no season why I should take a cut in salary. I haven't talked with Col. Ruppert about that yet. I would like to sign for one or two years more at the same money.

"But I don't think we'll have any trouble getting together. I don't expect to see the colonel before I go down south in February."

There seems no doubt Col. Ruppert will ask the Babe to take a cut, but from Ruth's appearance today, and the weight and logic of his arguments, he will have a job convincing Ruth.

Ruth never has been in better physical or mental condition. He weighs 225½ pounds for his 19th season in the major leagues. Not only is his weight lower than it ever has been at this season during the mighty years of his baseball career, but his waist, hips, and neck are smaller.

Michigan Ring Champ Wins in Golden Gloves

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 6.—[Special.]—Bob Gignac of Lansing, Michigan amateur flyweight champion, tonight knocked out Ivan Ansdro of Grand Rapids in the first round of the feature bout on the Golden Gloves boxing card at the Armory. More than 2,000 attended.

The tournament, sponsored by the Grand Rapids Press, is a qualifying round of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Golden Gloves meet. A team of eight champions will represent Grand Rapids in the Tournament of Champions at Chicago Stadium.

George Warner of Grand Rapids, a strong contender for the bantamweight championship, drew a bye in tonight's card. He went to the semi-finals in the national A. A. U. meet in New York last spring.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Falcons, Detroit's hockey team, last night took a 4 to 2 licking from the Blackhawks at the Chicago Stadium which was reminiscent of the 4 to 1 overtime thrashing they took on their other visit here, on Dec. 16.

Last month the Detroiters finished the regular part of their game at the Stadium in a 1 to 1 tie and blew up in overtime to allow the Hawks three goals.

Last night, two minutes before the end of the final period, the game was tied 2 to 2. And again the ferocious Falcons became setting hens. After 18 minutes of the third period Ripley broke the tie with a shot that caught in Goalie Connell's boots and popped out in the right direction to score Hawks goal No. 3.

Lowrey Scores 4th Goal.

One minute and 10 seconds later, 50 seconds before the close of the game, Lowrey took a pass from Thompson and socked in one for good measure

The earlier Hawks scores, both in the second period, were scored by Cook on a pass from March, and by Ingram in a spectacular solo effort.

The smallest National league crowd of the Stadium season saw the match. Fewer than 7,000 were on hand to view the festival, which means that about 6,000 or 7,000 regulars stayed at home and ought to feel pretty bad at having missed a good battle. But maybe they were saving up for the big Boston game Sunday night.

The score which the Hawks registered in 5:30 of the second period was a handsome maneuver by March and Cook. Mush took the puck down the left boards, then passed toward the cage. The situation was such that Cook had to overtake the rubber, which was sliding directly away from him. Just as the thing was about to slip to safety Tommy stretched out and succeeded in hooking the disk. With a deft twist of the wrist he thereupon gave the Hawks a 1 to 0 lead.

Ingram Scores Alone.

The first Hawk advantage prevailed for only three minutes, for in 8:20 Lewis took a pass from Smith well inside the blue line and drifted a high one past Gardiner's outstretched left mitten.

In 13:00 Ingram got his first National league homecoming goal. It was a solo, a beautiful swooper, in which Frankie gave a pleasant imitation of a mail train dropping off a pouch at a nonstop depot. Frank dropped the puck in the cage without slackening speed and swooped right back to his faceoff position, as though he hadn't just committed his 1932 inaugural counter.

The third period opened with a penalty to Ingram, and the Falcons sent four men down the ice, but were unable to score. Just as Ingram returned to the ice Adams drew a penalty for tripping, and Detroit continued to press the attack.

Penalty Saves Falcons Goal.

While Detroit was still playing the entire team, with the exception of the goalie, down in the Hawk zone, Gottselig suddenly took the puck down center ice closely pursued by Noble, who only prevented Gottselig from scoring by drawing a penalty for tripping. This gave the Hawks a one man advantage for a short time, but they were unable to score.

Carson and Goodfellow took the puck down center ice. Goodfellow shot but missed, Emms catching the rebound and batting it in for the tying score.

A few minutes later Smith missed a nice pass from Carson directly in front of the Hawk net. Lewis drew a penalty, but again the Hawks, although pressing hard, were unable to tally.

Ripley took a pass from Couture skating down center ice beat Connell from a few feet past the blue line, the puck hitting the goalie's pads and rolling into the net for the Hawks' third goal.

About a minute later Lowrey and Thompson combined their efforts for the Hawk fourth goal, Lowrey getting credit for the goal and Thompson for the assist.

11 TEAMS ENTER PREP SWIMMING MEET ON MIDWAY

Senn, Schurz and Maine Squads Favorites.

Eleven entries in the University of Chicago's eighth annual swimming interscholastic, which begins tomorrow night at Bartlett gymnasium, were received yesterday by Ed McGillivray, Maroon coach. Three more entries have been promised.

Two suburban squads—Maine Township, defending champion, and Deerfield-Shields—have sent in acceptances and Calumet, Harrison, and Parker indicated their entries would be in before last night's deadline.

The three favorites to win the meet are Senn, Schurz, and Maine. Senn and Schurz placed one, two in a recent city meet.

Marks have been shaved consistently in the last few renewals of the meet, but this year's stars will have a hard time besting the six records set in the last two years. Outstanding performers this year are Diamond of Senn in the 40 and 100 yard events. Weckler of Senn in the 220 yard event, Hayes of Austin, and Capitan of Harrison. Previous records:

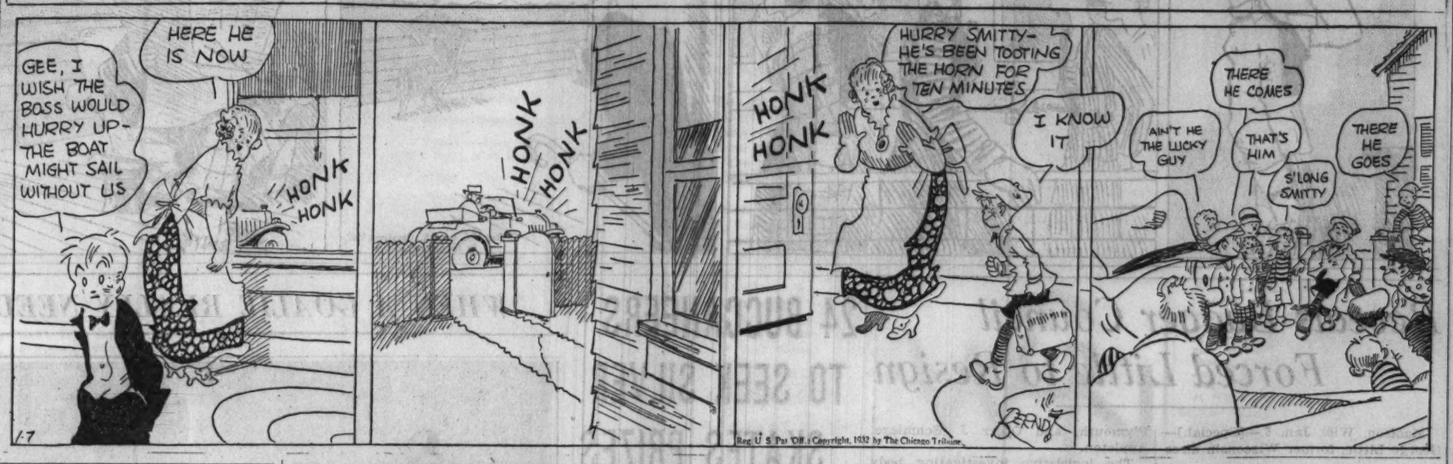
MOON MULLINS—WILLIE'S WELCOME HOME

SMITTY—THE SENDOFF



In the WAKE of the NEWS

TROJAN FOOTBALL.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA is one football team which played to greater receipts in 1931 than 1930, the gross admissions amounting to $1,262,000, as against $1,190,000, unofficial figures. True, the Trojans took part in one more contest, that of the Tournament of Roses against Tulane. This was offset, in part, by playing Notre Dame at South Bend instead of at home where a 30,000 difference in stadium capacity at $5 per ticket means $150,000.

Radio broadcasts of the Trojan-Tulane game, and now newspapers arriving from the coast, pay great tribute to the visitors from Louisiana. Perhaps that is generosity to a fallen foe, although California has not always shown such magnanimity. After beating Georgia, 60 to 0, and counting 21 points before Tulane gathered its 12, California could afford to be generous.

Now statistics from that game show how far statistics may take one away from results, for Southern California, despite its defeat by St. Mary's, generally is conceded the national title. Yet Tulane gained 417 yards to 248 for California—354 to 221 from scrimmage—and 15 first downs to 7.

"Breaks" didn't do all that scoring for California. It was better when points were needed and it made them. Tulane gained most of its ground outside the opposition 20 yard line. This pretty effectually answers proponents who would decide gridiron ties by first downs count.

Tulane's showing was most creditable against an eleven weighing ten pounds more to the man, and with a back field of weight, power, and, in addition, speed. Advance estimates were 20 to 0 for the Trojans, on form. That Tulane rallied to score twice with defeat looming speaks for the squad and for the coach who will direct Gopher fortunes next fall.

Yet from perusal of detail, despite the yardage and first down figures, The Wake forms no conclusion other than that Southern California, in the acid test when yardage counted, was as much superior as the score showed.

They Really Train at This Training Camp

next Sunday after the final trials at Newburgh, N. Y., or on the seventeenth, after an exhibition and five star final trial at Albany.

Amateurs Who Are Amateurs.

"That may be only a mashie shot from Albany to Placid," said he, "but there is no loose money in this crowd and I hear the best you can do is $5 a day at the cheapest hotel when you get there. You can tell them that this is one amateur sport that is absolutely amateur. I wouldn't know how to make a dollar out of it. You lay off your job if you have one and you bring your own spending money if you have any. Then, if you don't make the team, that's your hard luck and you get enough expense money to see you home if you're careful.

"But it has been a wonderful camp, anyway. Taylor chases us up the mountain every day and chases us down again. Then we skate and then we eat and then we hang around a while and then we begin to flop into bed."

Four on 1928 Team.

None of them definitely knows he will be picked for the official team, but the four who were members of the last team must feel fairly confident. These are Murphy, Oneil Farrell, also a Chicago Silver Skates winner; Irving Jaffe of New York and Val Bialis of Utica, who was also a member of the 1924 team. The other candidates are Bill Minster and Eddie Schroeder, both Silver Skates champions, Al Kucera and Wallace Mitchell of Chicago; Bert Taylor, Ray Murray, Allan Potts, Walter Rutter, and Bill Springer of New York; Ed Wedge, Charles Delpier, Lloyd Gunther, and Mel Johnson of Detroit; Milford Dietz of Saranac, and Jack Shea of Lake Placid. Shea is training at home.

Taylor believes they will yield the best American team to date and expects to win the meet, consisting of races at 500, 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 meters, although the Norwegians and Swedes, natural skaters who learn under natural conditions, are sending great teams this year. Most of the American candidates are city youths with whom skating is a synthetic sport learned and practiced largely on synthetic ice.

SECOND RACE—Purse $1,000, claiming, 4 year olds and up, 6 furlongs:

Hazel Gumperts, 108 [M'y]	8.20	4.20	2.70
Deerfield, 108 [Monte'y]		8.50	5.70
Black Stockings, 111 [Cal]			5.10

Hazel Gumberts, outran from the break, saved ground on the turns and last furlong. Deerfield raced Sir Barley into submission in the early stages and was driving hard to outlast Black Stockings. Please moved up with a determined challenge at top of home stretch and then stopped.

Time, 1:12 2-5. Borealis, the Spaniard, Fair Albert, Sir Zamdiiwuj Orkin, and Guffie ran.

THIRD RACE—Purse $1,000, claiming, 3 year olds, 5½ furlongs:

Song Hit, 110 [Wells]	6.20	3.30	3.20
Don Pablo, 107 [Catrone]		14.30	6.70
Captain Ed, 112 [Phillips]			5.20

Song Hit left the barrier with a rush and, sprinting into a long lead, was taken in hand and raced under restraint remainder of trip. Don Pablo went to the outside of leaders entering home stretch and finished gamely. Captain Ed fought it out with Discobolus all the last furlong. Monana, unprepared when barrier was sprung, was taken up and was not able to improve her position. Foreign Play raced green.

Time, 1:05 [new track record]. Discobolus, Rudiba, Ever Faithful, Foreign Play, and Nonana ran.

FOURTH RACE—Purse $1,000, claiming, 4 year olds and up 7 furlongs:

Bird of Prey, 118 [Riley]	5.20	3.00	2.50
Gibby's Choice, 118 [Cle'd]		4.10	3.00
Sour Mash, 113 [Mills]			4.10

Bird of Prey trailed the leaders to the stretch turn, where he moved up stoutly and was up in final strides. Gibby's Choice had lot taken out of him racing La Golondrina off who saved ground all top of home stretch, where he hugged the rail. Mills permitted Sour Mash to drop too far back in early stages. Wandering Gold showed early speed, but tired. Tanalizing showed no speed.

Time, 1:27 25. La Golondrina, Wandering Gold, Tantalizing, Lansquenet, *Fair Argument, Torcalong, and Play Furious ran. *Field.

FIFTH RACE—Purse $1,200, Sarasota County handicap, 3 year olds and up, 1 mile:

Arras, 100 [Mills]	23.10	11.50	2.80
Water Way, 112 [Allen]		5.60	2.40
Calf Roper, 109 [Chiavetta]			2.10

Arras, a keen factor from the start, carried Rip Van Winkle off his feet the first 6 furlongs and hung on with determination last furlong. Water Way stumbled and went to his knees when break came. Allen went to the outside and might have won with a stronger finish. Calf Roper outlasted Rip Van Winkle at end.

Time, 1:38 3-5 [new track record]. Rip Van Winkle, Martis, and Islam ran.

SIXTH RACE—Purse $1,200, claiming, Marion County purse, 4 year olds and up, 7 furlongs:

Muff, 98 [Mills]	16.30	3.00	2.10
Griffin 112 [Horn]		2.60	2.10
Putter, 107 [Corbett]			2.60

Muff beat her field away from the barrier and after racing into a godo lead the first furlong was taken in hand and raced under restraint. Griffin closed a lot of ground first quarter, but was never able to get to the leader. Putter wore down Vesta in stretch run. Latter raced in hand most of the journey. Coady was left.

Time, 1:26 4-5 [new track record]. Vesta, Silvery, and Coady ran.

SEVENTH RACE—Purse $1,000, claiming, 4 year olds and up, mile and sixteenth:

Typhoon, 113 [Mills]	3.20	2.40	2.50
Big Bo, 109 [Clelland]		2.60	2.70
Chas. Clarke, 112 [Quillen]			4.00

Typhoon, showing good speed, opened up an early lead to the far turn when Mills let Big Bo come through on inside and take temporary lead. Typhoon came on again under powerful urging and outlasted Big Bo. Chas. Clarke had no excuse. Jimmie L. had plenty of early speed, but found the distance too far. Others outrun.

Time, 1:46 1-5 [new track record]. High Player, Prince Toy, Draha, and Jimmie L. ran.

WHITE FOOT MICE USE NESTS FOR WINTER HOMES

Offers Game for Hikers in Chicagoland.

BY BOB BECKER.

Many years ago Henry David Thoreau pointed out that the reason why people suffer from the winter cold was that they inhabit houses which are difficult to heat and store a lot of unnecessary gear. Apparently this eccentric outdoor lover, whose natural history observations are known to many, had in mind the white footed mouse and his winter home when the question of how to keep warm was discussed.

Outdoor fans who like to take cross-country hikes on crisp winter days should keep their eyes open for the white foot's model winter apartment, which represents just about the best ideas in "small homes" and economical heating.

He's Common Hereabouts.

This little animal, which is quite common in Chicagoland, doesn't mind having a second hand winter home, as he takes over for the autumn and winter abandoned nests of song sparrows, woodthrushes, or towhees.

As a rule only a single animal occupies the structure. Usually, if your eyes are good, you can spot such a home at once, because the white foot has remodeled it by thatching the roof with grass or strips of bark so the old nest presents a rounded, domed appearance.

Has Big Ears, Thick Fur.

The white footed mouse is a large eyed, big eared fellow with thick fur and white underparts. Its back is a lighter shade than the common house mouse. Both seem to be competing for favorite spots in our home, as each fall and winter our traps catch these two species. They are set for house mice only but invariably we get a few white footed fellows who like to sample civilization in the shape of a convenient corner of the cellar.

The white foot is mostly nocturnal and does not hibernate in the winter. Therefore the snow reveals the antics of this little fellow in between the times that he is snugly housed in the old nest which just fits him so exactly that there is no room left over for "furnishings."

PARIS, Jan. 7.—[Thursday, 4 a. m.]—Andre Maginot, war minister and the man who is responsible for the building of the powerful French military machine since the war, died at 3 a. m. today of typhoid fever.

Maginot was born in Paris, Feb. 17, 1877, entered the world war as a private and before being severely wounded became a top sergeant. He became minister of war under Raymond Poincare in 1922 and returned to the office when Laval formed his cabinet.

Maginot's death is an important political event with international implications. The remaking of Premier Laval's cabinet, rumored last evening, is now inevitable. It is believed that Laval will hand in the collective resignation of the government in the next few days and form a new government with new men to replace both Maginot and his arch enemy, Aristide Briand, foreign minister, who is ill and on the brink of leaving public life.

Maginot was bitterly hated by the left parties as a militarist, and his influence over government affairs, which he shared with Pierre-Etienne Flandin, finance minister, and Andre Tardieu, former premier and now minister of agriculture, was often viewed in a sinister light.

Maginot's most notable achievement was to conceive a gigantic scheme of fortifications to protect France's borders facing Germany and Italy and he forced the plan through parliament.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks — sparkling eyes — most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

AVERAGE PRICE OF BIG BOARD SHARES IS $20

Deflation Is Placed at 75 Per Cent.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Is the stock of the average American industrial or railroad company worth a quarter of its price in September, 1929? Is it worth $20? That is about what it now is selling for, and it is for both investors and speculators to decide whether deflation has been carried far enough.

The extent to which prices of stocks have dropped in the last two and a quarter years is strikingly shown in the monthly report on market values issued by the New York Stock exchange yesterday. On Jan. 1 the total market value of all listed shares was $26,693,836,532, compared with $31,105,267,133 on Dec. 1, 1931. This marked a decline of $4,411,430,601 during December and resulted in the average price falling from $23.59 to $20.24 a share.

The value on Jan. 1, 1931 was $49,019,878,459, making a decline of $22,326,041,927 during 1931. The value at the beginning of this year was the lowest for any month in more than seven years.

1929 Value 90 Billions.

The aggregate market value of all shares listed on the New York exchange at the end of September, 1929, was not far from 90 billion dollars. Allowing for additional shares listed since then, it would seem that the average stock has incurred about a 75 per cent deflation. To be sure, security prices were boosted to absurd heights in 1929, even considering large earnings at that time.

But haven't stocks now declined more than changed conditions justify? The business of most companies has not declined 75 per cent, nor have their earnings shrunk that much. While many companies have reduced or omitted dividends, the sum total of dividends also has not dropped so heavily. Therefore, it would seem that between the absurdly high prices for stock in 1929 and their present prices there is a middle level that could be justified both by present conditions and future prospects.

Of course, if you believe the United States and its industries are going to wrack and ruin, then stocks are not worth their present prices and, in fact, are not worth anything. But if such a debacle is going to occur, neither will anything else be worth much, including the money now to be derived from the sale of securities.

Third of Market Value.

Approximately 100 stocks on the New York exchange now represent more than one-third of the market value of the total list. The value of these issues was $10,624,433,000 on Dec. 31, last, or almost exactly half as much as at the end of 1930, according to a compilation by Frazier Jelke & Co.

The shrinkage in value last year was $10,784,330,000, which was more severe than the depreciation of $8,700,190,000 in 1930 and the decline of $2,709,474,000 in 1920. In fact, last year's depreciation was somewhat larger than the appreciation of $10,204,722,000 in 1928.

Between the end of August, 1929, and Dec. 17, 1931, the appraisal of the group fell $32,173,597,000, or 76.5 per cent, from $42,031,598,000 to $9,858,001,000.

Deflation in Rails.

"The 1931 devaluation in the 15 rails [64.9 per cent] and the 5 railroad equipments [62.3 per cent] contributed approximately one-fourth of the net losses for the year; but on a percentage basis the 70.4 per cent decline in the steel shares was the most drastic," the survey says. "The amusements slumped 65.9 per cent; the mines, 55 per cent; the chemicals, 51.7 per cent; the oils, 48.8 per cent; the electrical manufacturing issues 47.8 per cent; the miscellaneous industrials, 47.3 per cent; the utilities, 40 per cent, the motors, 36.7 per cent; the foods, 42.1 per cent, and the stores, 29 per cent.

"From the August, 1929, highs the collapse has been more severe in the mines than in any other group, 88.1 per cent. The amusements between Aug. 30, 1929, and Dec. 17, 1931, declined 87.7 per cent; the equipments, 82.2 per cent; the rails, 81.6 per cent; the electricals, 79.6 per cent; the chemicals, 79.5 per cent; the stores, 77.7 per cent; the miscellaneous industrials, 74 per cent; the motors, 73.9 per cent; the oils, 71.5 per cent; the utilities, 71.1 per cent; the steels, 70.8 per cent, and the foods, 63.8 per cent."

Westinghouse Taps Surplus for Dividends

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 6.—Directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company today declared a dividend of 87½ cents a share on the preferred stock and one of 62¼ cents on the common stock.

The dividend on the preferred stock is 25 cents a share larger than was paid the previous quarter, but that on the common stock is the same as formerly was paid. The dividends will be paid out of surplus, A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board, said. He announced the dividend action in the following statement:

"The operations for the year will result in a deficit when the final figures are available. However, the board declared these dividends to be paid out of the earned surplus of the company. Final figures for Dec. 31 are not available, but there should be no substantial change in current assets from Nov. 30, when the ratio of its current assets [$98,756,982] to current liabilities [$8,102,315] was 12.2."

What Stock Has Paid.

The preferred stock is entitled to $3.50 a share annually before the common stock receives any dividend, but had been receiving payments at the rate of only $2.50 a share. After $3.50 a share has been paid on the preferred the common stock is entitled to dividends up to $3.50 a share, after which both classes of stock participate equally in further payments.

The North American Gas and Electric company declared a dividend of 10 cents on the class "A" common stock and an initial dividend of $1.50 on the $6 preferred stock. Previously 40 cents quarterly was paid on the common.

Jantzen Knitting Mills company declared a dividend of 5 cents a share on the common stock. The issue formerly was on a $1.50 annual dividend basis, and in the last quarter 15 cents was paid.

Tobacco Products Declares Extra.

Directors of Tobacco Products corporation declared an extra dividend of 15 cents a share and the regular quarterly dividend of 20 cents on the class A stock. A similar extra was paid a year ago. United Cigar Stores Company of America has declared a dividend of $1 a share on the preferred stock, compared with previous payments of $1.50 a share quarterly.

Cluett, Peabody & Co. has declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock, placing the issue on a $2 annual basis, compared with $3 paid previously.

A dividend in liquidation of $20 a share will be paid to the stockholders of the Cumberland Pipe Line company after Jan. 25. The company has set aside $600,000 for this disbursement, which will be the first in connection with the program for winding up its affairs. Cumberland's properties were acquired last September by the Ashland Refining company for $60,000 cash and notes for $360,000.

WILLARD GIVES ARGUMENT FOR 4 SYSTEM PLAN

Says Rail Proposal Is Best for East.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—(AP)—The chiefs of the great eastern trunk lines today informed the interstate commerce commission they believed four well balanced railroad systems in the east the best way to meet the needs of shippers and secure efficiency and financial stability for the carriers.

Speaking through Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio, the executives outlined their contention that such a setup would be superior to the five system arrangement proposed by the commission. Mr. Willard read a general statement on behalf of all and then one speaking for his own line. Presidents of the Pennsylvania, the Chesapeake and Ohio, and Patrick E. Crowley, until recently president of the New York Central, will follow with statements for their individual systems.

Chairman Claude R. Porter of the interstate commerce commission presided. He, with Examiner Koch, handled consolidation proceedings when the commission was studying the problem between 1920 and 1929 on orders of congress. At the outset the chairman announced this would be a general inquiry and that any one who desired might give evidence. Hearings are expected to last several weeks. The railroads will take the first three or four days.

Outlines Negotiations.

Mr. Willard outlined briefly the negotiations of the past and then launched into the reasons for four eastern systems instead of five.

"The four systems seemed more logical to me than a greater number," he said, "because there are about 56,000 miles of railroad in the eastern region and we found when we began to study the matter that under any practicable solution of the problem nearly half of the mileage seemed certain to be found ultimately in the systems of the Pennsylvania and New York Central companies. That would leave about 26,000 miles to be merged into other companies.

"Obviously if this were put into more than two companies the mileage of each must be substantially less than the mileage of the New York Central or the Pennsylvania."

He went on to say that while the executives did not consider mileage itself controlling, they did believe it important that each proposed system be given as nearly as possible the same opportunities to secure traffic and each system in a general way should reach the same markets and the same points of origin.

Reason for Four Systems.

"If we were to have systems with something approaching equal opportunity to secure and deliver traffic," he said, "we found that with the mileage available we could not have more than four and so we proceeded to develop a plan based on the four system idea."

Mr. Willard then summarized the objects at which the executives were aiming. He said the systems should be strong enough to obtain funds for additions and betterments and equipment at the lowest possible cost; they should be efficient—"neither so large

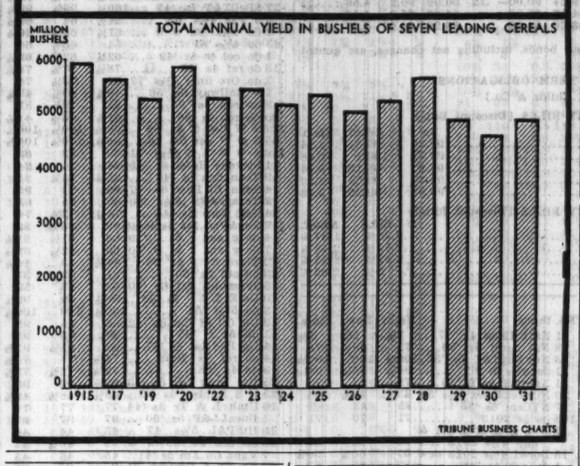
AMERICAN FARMERS IN 1931 PRODUCED A BILLION LESS BUSHELS OF CEREALS THAN IN 1915



PRODUCTION OF STEEL INGOTS IS SLIGHTLY HIGHER

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Steel ingot production is estimated at 24 per cent, or slightly above the low point of the last two weeks of December, the Iron Age said today. At Pittsburgh and Chicago operations are at 20 per cent, but Cleveland continues at 32 per cent. The Wheeling rates has risen sharply to 40 per cent and Birmingham is more active at 50 per cent.

On the industry's immediate outlook, Iron Age said: "Notwithstanding the slow start of the new year, it is expected that steel operations will continue to gain moderately during January with the possibility that February will reflect the usual seasonal rise more than this month."

For the second year, building construction led in consumption of steel products in 1931. Operations absorbed 3,450,000 tons of steel, or 18½ per cent of the total output, against 19 per cent in 1930. The automobile industry was second with a consumption of 2,950,000 tons.

Judges Call Gov. Sterling's Oil Action Subterfuge

Houston, Tex., Jan. 6.—(AP)—A three judge federal court today took under advisement an injunction suit brought by two oil men to test the validity of Gov. Ross Sterling's martial law restriction of oil production in the east Texas oil field.

Previous to taking the case under advisement, which action means that production in the huge field will continue at present under proration enforced by guardsmen, two of the three judges said Gov. Sterling's action was a subterfuge.

Martial law occupancy of the field, declared by the governor's attorneys to have been designed to prevent "riot and insurrection," were said by the two judges to have been carried out in a desire to restrict oil production.

Treasury Bill Offering of $50,000,000 Announced

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—(AP)—Secretary Mellon announced today the treasury would sell 50 million dollars in treasury bills on Monday, Jan. 11. The bills, which will be for 91 days, will be sold on a discount basis to the highest bidders and redeemed at face value on April 13. The proceeds of the sale will be used to retire $51,641,000 in treasury bills which fall due Jan. 13.

GRAIN MEN BELIEVE GOV'T MUST PURCHASE FARM BOARD WHEAT

A decision on the part of congress to buy 40,000,000 bushels of wheat from the federal farm board for distribution among the poor and unemployed would result in a most interesting situation, as viewed by men in the grain trade.

The wheat held by the farm board has been bought and paid for. Congress cannot take the wheat away from the farm board unless it pays for it, it is contended. On the basis of 50 cents a bu, it would mean the expenditure of $20,000,000 additional for the wheat which has already cost many millions more. Arrangements would have to be made with millers to grind the government's wheat, and possibly they would do it provided they are given the offal, which can be disposed of for feed.

According to millers and the grain trade the dumping of this amount of wheat on the market would result in practical disorganization and curtail the demand for farmer owned grain to a considerable extent.

Stevens Hotel Is Paying Interest After Delay

The Stevens Hotel company is now making its Jan. 1 interest payments on its 6 per cent, twenty year bonds, due in 1945, the New York Stock exchange was notified yesterday.

The committee on securities has ruled that the bonds be quoted ex-interest, 3 per cent, on Jan. 7. Trading in the bonds will continue on a "flat" basis, and after today deliveries must carry the July 1 and subsequent coupons. The interest was due Jan. 1 but was not paid at that time.

Aveyard, vice president and secretary. Other vice presidents are, Albert W. Sherer, William Findlay, Don Francisco, Frank H. Fayant, Albert Ross, and S. R. Coons. William R. Sachse was named assistant secretary.

BY SCRUTATOR.

During the last four months scores of municipal bond issues have been "left waiting at the church." These unsold bonds include offerings of states, cities, counties, townships, and school and drainage districts.

In some cases the same bond issue has been offered more than once. In others the bids have been so low that they have been rejected.

This situation began to develop early last autumn. A glance at the record is interesting in view of the proposal by a group of legislators to issue $388,000,000 bonds for Cook county's 1930 taxes and the unpaid portions of the county's 1928 and 1929 taxes.

No Bids for Offerings.

On Sept. 3, 1931, Cook county offered $2,150,000 of nurses' home bonds. There were no bids. On the same day the county offered $2,000,000 of poor relief bonds. There were no bids. A million dollars worth of the poor relief bonds have been disposed of to creditors in lieu of cash.

There were no bids for the Chicago board of education $5,200,000 issue which was offered Dec. 23. The board is awaiting the outcome of legislation pending at Springfield before readvertising. The $400,000 issue of the Chicago sanitary district went begging Nov. 5 and in October no bids were made for the Cook county forest preserve $500,000 issue.

This situation is not peculiar to Cook county. On Dec. 16 the state of Arkansas had to postpone the sale of $2,864,500 of bonds. San Francisco offered $2,700,000 of bonds for various purposes late in November and received no bids.

Sells Half of Issue.

Kansas City, Mo., last month tried to sell $1,800,000 of bonds for various improvements and succeeded in getting takers for only half of them.

Down in Texas the Brownsville navigation district late in October offered a $2,000,000 issue and received no bids. Salt Lake City had no bids on Dec. 9 for a $1,000,000 issue but early this month got local interests to take three-fourths of the amount.

After Seattle had received no bids on Oct. 2, for $1,000,000 of water bonds officials announced that an attempt would be made to sell them over the counter. Tacoma was unable to sell a half million dollars of electric light bonds in October.

On Tuesday the city of Baltimore rejected the sole bid on its $4,200,000 issue of 4s. Buyers ignored the $4,200,000 issue put up by the Orleans levee district in Louisiana early in September and two weeks ago the state of Mississippi's $2,500,000 shared the same fate.

Disposed of Privately.

Passaic, N. J., tried twice last month to sell $2,000,000 of bonds without success and early this month disposed of them privately as 6s. Elizabeth, N. J., on Dec. 28 failed to get a bid on $4,998,000 of water bonds.

Allegheny county, Pa., three weeks ago postponed indefinitely the sale of $4,200,000 bridge and tunnel bonds. Greensboro, N. C., had to do likewise with a $3,310,000 issue. South Carolina canceled the sale of $10,000,000 road bonds on Dec. 23.

Municipal bond sales were not at a standstill during the last three months, but the volume fell to $102,000,000, resulting in the lowest quarterly total for ten years.

A point that municipalities are likely to overlook is that long term bonds are sold not to banks but by banks and that the market for such securities is governed by the willingness to buy of the ultimate investors. And the investing public is the taxpaying public under another name.

AETNA LIFE 1931 INCOME PASSES 1930; NEW RECORD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 6.—Aetna Life Insurance company had total income in 1931 in excess of the 1930 total, which set a new record high figure, according to preliminary figures made public today by Morgan B. Brainard, president.

Premium income for the company and its affiliates was more than $132,000,000, a decrease of $353,000 or 25 per cent from 1930. Premium collections in the life department were $80,244,000, an increase of 7 per cent. Total new insurance issued and paid for in the life department was $722,000,000.

The total casualty premiums written in the accident liability department of the Aetna Life and in the Aetna Casualty and Surety company were approximately $43,116,000, a decrease of 2 per cent as compared with 1930.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 6.—"Prosperity" doctors shot a jolt of life into Wall street's decrepit stock market today and sent it humping ahead at the liveliest gait it has been able to muster in weeks. Price runups from 1 to 5 points were recorded in nearly all departments.

Rumors of an agreement between Great Britain and France for a prolonged moratorium on German reparation payments were played on as the big reason for the sudden display of enthusiasm. Prospects of an early establishment of the Washington government's credit lending corporation, the weekly steel summaries showing a slightly better tone, and a hardening in commodity prices, notably wheat and cotton, were also megaphoned far and wide.

Above all these, however, was what appeared to be an organized effort on the part of exasperated "market makers" to embarrass the large and ever growing short interest which the list was known to be harboring. A host of large buying orders filed over night were awaiting execution when the market opened and the dumping in of these sent prices kiting from the initial transactions.

Auburn Jumps 8¼ Points.

Advances among the more active issues amounted to as much as 5 and 6 points on the opening sales. Auburn Auto, indeed, jumped 8¼ points on its initial transaction. United States Steel shot up 2½, Norfolk and Western, 6½; Allied Chemical, 5⅞; American Can, 3; American Telephone, 2¼, and Atchison, 3⅜ points.

The rally continued pell mell for about thirty minutes—until the overnight orders had been exhausted—and then came to a rude halt. For a while the market displayed signs of an acute inclination to crawfish. The one galoused boys didn't seem to be coming in as they should. In the second hour, however, some fresh buying appeared and the advance got its

GET $30 IN CASH AND 80 PER CENT IN SECURITIES

Villa Grange Bondholders Receive 110%.

BY AL CHASE.

First mortgage bondholders in the Villa Grange apartments received cash to the amount of $30 for every $100 worth of bonds, and 80 per cent in new securities, of a total of 110 per cent of their old holdings, according to T. E. Williams, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, in a statement issued yesterday. According to the plan of reorganization made public some weeks ago, R. M. McNeily, the owner of the property, which is a twenty-five flat building at 27 North Brainerd street, La Grange, transferred his equity to the Villa Grange Building corporation.

FREDERICK J. STEBBINS. [Moffett Photo.]

This transfer was subject to a $50,000 first mortgage for five years at 6 per cent and a second mortgage of $108,000 for ten years at 4 per cent. Of the authorized issue of $108,000 second mortgage bonds, $103,760 have been issued and distributed to the depositing bondholders. This is equivalent to 80 per cent of the deposited bonds.

Book Value of 86.

"The committee has placed a valuation of approximately $140,000 on the property," said Mr. Williams. "On this basis the new second mortgage bonds distributed to the bondholders have a book value of 86 on the present valuation and as property tends to recover in value the book value of the bonds should enhance."

The Villa Grange apartments were financed by a $135,000 first mortgage bond issue, at 6½ per cent, by the Equitable Bond and Mortgage company. H. D. Pettibone is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee. The other members are: Frederick J. Stebbins, H. E. Deveraeux, W. J. McGuire, Harold M. O'Brien, all of Chicago; N. H. Dosker of Louisville, Ky.; G. L. Hughes, Jacksonville, Ill., and C. A. Mueller of Kankakee, Ill. Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin are attorneys and the Chicago Title and Trust company is the depositary.

Sylvan Apartments.

Morton S. Ries took title yesterday from Louis M. Semter to the Sylvan apartment building at 1351-53 South Kildare avenue, on behalf of the bondholders of the $48,000 first mortgage bond issue which was underwritten by Baer, Eisendrath & Co. Mr. Ries represents the Realty Investors Trust which is in charge of the reorganization of all the Baer, Eisendrath & Co. issues.

According to Clarence L. Coleman Jr., secretary and treasurer of the Realty Investors Trust, interest on the South Kildare avenue flats defaulted on March 15, 1931. The original issue has been reduced to $43,600. The building was erected in 1926 by Charles Diamond and David Ackerman. It contains ten suites, nine of them having five rooms and one four. The site is 50x125.

Holders of the first mortgage bonds now outstanding have been notified and $21,000 of securities already have been received by the Realty Investors Trust, Mr. Coleman states. A new loan will be negotiated with an insurance company, if possible, when all the bonds are received and the reorganization proceeds in an orderly manner. If all of the bonds are not received, Edward G. Felsenthal, president of the Realty Investors Trust, states that, of course, foreclosure proceedings will have to be instituted.

BULLS TURN ON SHORTS; PRICES LEAP FORWARD

Whole List Makes Gains of 1 to 5 Points.

second wind—after a fashion. The support was not strong enough nor lasting enough to add to initial gains as a rule, but it was sufficient to pen the list and preserve the improvement through to the finish.

Steel Closes at 39½.

The closing figures on some of the "big time" issues were rather impressive, United States Steel closing at 39½—its best price of the day—showed a net gain of 3⅜ points. American Can was up 3½. Consolidated Gas, 4¼; Atchison, 4⅜; Westing house, 3⅜; Du Pont, 4⅛; Eastman Kodak, 3; New York Central, 2⅞; Norfolk and Western, 6½; Cocoa Cola, 6⅜; Air Reduction, 3½, and Allied Chemical and Dye, 5½ points. The biggest individual gain of the session was recorded by the flighty Auburn Auto which sold to 131⅞ point, up 12½ points from yesterday's close.

Only a handful of stocks moved against the trend, Federal Light and Traction being one of them.

Railroad shares made the best showing in weeks as a group. In addition to the other "good news" bulletined from the bull camp, the carriers had the special advantage of renewed talk of a likelihood of an agreement on wage reduction when the executives and brotherhoods leaders get together again.

Utilities Are Strong.

Virtually all classes of utilities were strong. The oils found their quota of friends and Standard Oil of New Jersey and Houston both jumped ahead more than a point.

Motor stocks began dressing up for the annual national automobile show to get under way here later in the week. General Motors recovered more than 2 points of the severe losses it has been suffering and Chrysler, Nash and others of the group bettered their positions by a point or so each.

The turnover was around 1,800,000 shares. Money was a bit easier, the call rate renewing at 3 per cent with accommodations to be had as low as 2½ per cent on the outside.

153 Favorable Dividend Changes in December

The number of dividend changes in December, both favorable and unfavorable, was the largest reported for any month of 1931, according to the Standard Statistics company of New York. Unfavorable changes totaled 359 in comparison with 144 in November, while favorable changes totaled 153 in comparison with 50 the preceding month.

BULLISH NEWS BRINGS ADVANCE IN WHEAT MART

Report Rising Foreign Grain Demand.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bullish news had more effect on the wheat market yesterday than of late. Prospects that the reconstruction finance bill would be quickly passed by congress brought up visions of inflation in prices of commodities, and there was also buying influenced by the strong stock market and rumors that an extension of the moratorium to Germany had been agreed on by England and France.

The trade also had reports that between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 bu North American wheat had been sold for export in the past two days, largely Manitoba, but it was claimed there were indications of business in American hard winter, the farm board presumably being the seller. The development of a brisk foreign demand was taken as confirming the recent rports suggesting that Europe and the orient would come into the market after the turn of the year. Included in the total was around 2,000,000 bu Canadian grain said to have been taken by China.

No Pressure on Wheat.

There was no material pressure on the wheat market until prices had advanced over 1c from the close on Tuesday. May at the top sold at 57½c or 1⅜c above the previous finish with selling against offers and profit taking checking the bulge. Final trades were at net gains of ½@1c with March at 56¼c; May, 56⅞@57c; July, 56⅛@56¼c, and September, 57¼c.

While the buying lacked snap at times the volume of trade in wheat was well above what it was the two previous days, and operators were more inclined to take an optimistic view as to the future of the market. Much depends, however, according to observers, on whether the foreign demand continues or not.

Removal of hedges against export sales were a factor in the Winnipeg wheat market which closed 1@1⅛c higher with May at 63½c in Canadian funds or 54c on a gold basis, the latter comparing with 52⅜c on Tuesday. There has been an advance of around 5c in the Canadian exchange rate of late equal to around 3c per bu. Liverpool gained ½@¾c per bu with May finishing at 58c. Buenos Aires had a holiday.

Wisconsin Buys Corn.

Wisconsin was reported as the leading buyer of cash corn at Chicago yesterday, the bulk of the 32,000 bu sold by local handlers yesterday being understood to be going into the former state. The eastern demand, however, was distinctly slow, while an advance in futures resulted in the country selling more freely to arrive with purchases of 56,000 bu reported.

Continued unfavorable weather over the west, with the strength in wheat and stocks led to sufficient local buying of corn futures to lift the price ½c for the day with March closing at 39¾c; May, 41½@41⅝c, and July, 43c. Selling against offers checked the bulge. At one time May corn was 15¾c under May wheat, compared with 14¾c under on Monday.

FARM OUTLOOK.

Decreased production of farm products which have felt most severely the price slump, and correspondingly increased production of the higher quality products are foreseen by Prof. Alvin H. Hansen of the University of Minnesota. Grains will be most sharply affected by this shift, he believes, attributing the necessity for diversification to agriculture's greater dependence upon general business conditions.

Higher prices for hogs, lighter receipts, and the advance in grains and stocks brought a better tone to the lard market yesterday, with fair buying of May by commission houses. WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat traders, although mostly moderately bullish, are not inclined to follow advances in prices until they are more certain as to the disposition on the part of foreigners to continue to take cash wheat from the United States and Canada in sufficient volume to attract attention, reduce supplies and induce speculative buying. This is not the season for bull markets, as in most years early upturns culminate around Jan. 10 to 15. Foreign political conditions are attracting more attention and create nervousness among all speculative interests. There are a few traders who are quite bearish, but they are not backing their opinions with heavy sales of wheat futures. Trade sentiment in corn is mixed, with a disposition on the part of the bears to sell July corn and buy July wheat.

Increased exports of wheat and flour for the week attracted attention, with the aggregate for the season as given by Bradstreet as 178,000,000 bu against 208,000,000 bu last year. Heavy sales of Manitoba wheat is furnishing a large percentage of the total. Canada is expected to continue to do a good export business, but it is uncertain as to the quantity the United States will sell. Exports sales of wheat recently by the farm board are being moved out. About 50 per cent of the 25,000,000 bu taken by Brazil have already cleared, with one-half of the 17,000,000 bu taken by China gone and more than 50 per cent of the 7,500,000 bu secured by Germany have cleared. The federal farm board is understood to be selling its quota of 5,000,000 bu of wheat a month. On this basis its holdings would be about 175,000,000 bu.

Germany is still figuring on bartering manufactured articles for Russian grain, according to Broomhall. Last month they took 3,700,000 bu of wheat, 4,000,000 bu of rye and 4,500,000 of barley from Russia.

Exports of flour from Jugo-Slavia in 1931 of 24,874 barrels are the smallest of any year since the war, with the exception of 1928, when they were 21,893 barrels, as officially reported.

MacCHESNEY TO BE COUNSEL FOR LOCAL REALTORS

Succeeds Late William Wilhartz.

Nathan William MacChesney, general counsel for the National Association of Real Estate Boards, has been made counsel for the Chicago real estate board. The board of directors of the realty body appointed Mr. MacChesney to succeed the late William Wilhartz, who died recently, and the announcement was made last night at the January meeting of the board. The new counsel is a former president of the Illinois Bar association and was once head of the American Institute of Criminal Law and Criminology.

N. W. MACCHESNEY.

Mr. MacChesney served in the 33rd division during the world war. Twenty-eight years ago he was attorney for the Chicago real estate board. He lives at 568 Hawthorne place and has a summer home known as River Hill farm, at Belvidere road and the Desplaines river, Libertyville.

New Phone Exchange.

Excavation and foundation work has been started on the four story building to be erected by the Illinois Bell Telephone company, at 1338-48 West Monroe street, from plans by Holabird & Root. The site was purchased last October from Arthur M. Barrett of Winnetka, of the Barrett Bindery company, for an undisclosed consideration. It fronts 137½ feet on Monroe street and is 236 feet deep, containing approximately 32,000 square feet. The building will occupy the entire frontage but only 180 feet of the depth.

The new structure will be of reinforced concrete construction with a stone façade. The R. F. Wilson company has the excavation and foundation contract. Within two weeks the contract for the superstructure will be let. The new building will replace the present west side exchange.

Some Outlying Leases.

Irving Chlavin of Lester Simon & Co. reports negotiating five outlying leases. For the Gay Time Frocks, Inc., he secured the store at 6448 South Halsted street from Max Hirsch and the store at 4023 Lincoln avenue from the Magnus Building corporation, lessor. The Bata Shoe company leased the store at 7159 West Grand avenue from Dr. Samuel Zimmerman and another at 3554 Irving Park boulevard from the same lessor. The store at 4736 Sheridan road was leased by the Grayson Shops, Inc., from the Emerman Building corporation.

Eugene Raff has bought from John B. Bezazian the business property at 4650-56 North Rockwell street, consisting of four stores, four apartments and four garages, for a reported $70,000, subject to $40,000, through the Georges Realty Co.

WOULD DIVORCE SPECULATION AND DEPOSIT BANKING

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Joseph A. Broderick, state superintendent of banks, made a new appeal for complete divorce of speculation or trading activities from bank operation, in his annual report published today.

"Recent experiences have shown conclusively that there is no place in our banking institutions for trading or speculative activities, or for the financing or encouraging of such activities," the report states.

"More than ever before, it appears absolutely necessary that there shall be a distinct line of demarcation between deposit and investment banking. It is clear, too, that many of our banking methods and our banking laws are not in keeping with the changing conditions and changing practices."

The superintendent recommends that the state "limit to 10 per cent of capital and surplus the amount which any bank or trust company may be interested in all affiliated corporations by way of loans, investments in stock or obligations and loans to others secured by stock or obligations of affiliated corporations." Additional loans, he added, might be permitted "in conservative amounts" provided they are well secured.

As another proposed safeguard, the report urges that the state "restrict the loans which an institution may make to its directors" and also that it "prohibit an officer of a bank or trust company from borrowing from the institution by which he is employed."

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 6,000; hogs, 38,000; sheep, 14,000.

Buying on eastern account swept through all divisions of the live stock market yesterday and reversed the trend in cattle and hogs. Lambs reached a new high point for the last 2½ months, with the peak price at $6.90 showing a rise of $1.55 in two weeks. The strength in cattle yesterday was scored against liberal receipts and adverse influences. A big decrease in supplies of hogs at points farthest west partly explains the actions of the hog market.

The shortage of supplies at other points brought a flood of shipping orders for hogs to Chicago and the clearance here was the best in weeks. Muddy roads and snowstorms were blamed for the decrease of more than 30 per cent at some of the biggest markets west of Chicago, and this helped to stimulate local demand in view of the possibility of shorter supplies here the remainder of the week.

March Hogs Bid $5.

March and May hogs were bid $5 on the futures trade yesterday and a few were offered at $5.25. All January and February contracts carried bids of $4.00@4.25.

The rally in the cattle market came unexpectedly.. Strength crept into trading soon after the start and before the close, many of the medium to good grades were selling 15@25c above the average trade Tuesday. Weakness in weighty beeves vanished on eastern buying and, despite the bearish attitude of some local houses, the clearance was made at an early hour and only a very small holdover remained. The top price at $10.65 was paid for weighty beeves in the absence of fancy yearlings.

Competition Is Brisk.

Competition was unusually brisk in the lamb market yesterday and several carloads went to eastern buyers as high as $6.90 near the finish, while packers bought freely of the better grades of natives and fed westerns at $6.50@6.75. Another rise in the east carried the Buffalo top to $7.00. Receipts at all leading markets dropped off abruptly. The seven markets handled 48,000 against 70,000 last Wednesday. The total was less than on the corresponding day a year ago.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 6,000 cattle, 38,000 hogs, and 14,000 sheep, against 3,717 cattle, 41,398 hogs, and 13,812 sheep the previous Thursday, and 9,061 cattle, 49,654 hogs, and 19,132 sheep a year ago.

For the year 1931 the Illinois Central handled 1,641,177 cars of revenue freight, as compared with 2,004,409 in 1930. In the week ended Jan. 2 the road hauled 23,500 cars, as compared with 19,990 in the preceding week and 29,265 in the 1931 week.

FOREIGN TRADE OF U. S. DECLINES OVER 2 BILLION

Favorable Balance Is Maintained.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 6.—The foreign trade of the United States in the first eleven months of 1931 declined by more than two billion dollars from the total for the same period in 1930, figures issued by the commerce department disclosed today.

Although marked declines were noted in both the value of exports and imports, a favorable trade balance of more than 300 millions was maintained during the eleven months period. The balance of trade in favor of this country in 1930, however, amounted to more than 700 millions.

Exports of merchandise to foreign countries, according to the figures, were valued at $2,240,177,359 in the eleven months period of 1931, as compared with $3,568,325,557 in the corresponding period of 1930. In November they totaled $193,553,921, as compared with $288,978,174 in the same month of the previous year.

Imports $1,937,099,821.

Imports in the first eleven months of 1931, the figures showed, were valued at $1,937,099,821, as compared with $2,852,272,476 in the first eleven months of 1930. In November, imports of merchandise into this country were valued at $149,718,291, while in the same month of 1930 they totaled $203,592,767.

The decrease in the value of exports in the eleven months period, as compared to 1930, was $1,328,158,198, while the decrease in imports was $915,172,655. November exports decreased by more than 115 millions from their 1930 total, while imports were nearly 54 millions lower.

Britain Best Customer.

During the eleven months period the United Kingdom was our best customer, exports to that nation being valued at $418,861,033. Canada received the second largest shipments of merchandise, with a value of $375,877,788. In the eleven months period this country received its largest shipments of imports from Canada, the value being $246,310,940, while the second largest were from the United Kingdom, valued at $126,215,419.

Although our exports to each of the grand geographical divisions were lower in the first eleven months of 1931 than in the same period of 1930, an increase of more than two and a half millions in our shipments to Asia was noted during November, as compared with November, 1930.

GERMAN ISSUES LEAD IN BROAD RECOVERY ON N. Y. BOND MARKET

New York, Jan. 6.—(AP)—Led by German loans, both public and private, the bond market today staged a cheerful recovery. Prices of many issues closed from one to 8 points higher. The general upturn was attributed partly to a feeling of optimism regarding Germany's ability and willingness to pay her private debts and the belief that the $2,000,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation will soon become a reality.

With securities in almost every category apparently striving to rally, action of United States government obligations cast somewhat of a shadow over the day's buoyancy. Both Liberty and treasury issues were heavy throughout the day, six of them sagging to new lows.

German bonds seemingly aided the entire foreign list. The 7s and 5½s, of the Dawes and Young plans, were strong throughout the day and closed more than 3 points higher despite some profit taking. Berlin City Electric 6½s of 1951 gained 7½ points.

There was hardly a foreign loan that showed a loss in the session. Finland 5½s added 5⅞ points, while bonds of Argentina, Chile, Brazil, Poland, Colombia, Hungary, Italy, France, Japan, and Great Britain registered advances. Canadian issues also were fractionally higher.

Commonwealth Customers Pay LESS for LOANS

$2.95 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

COMMONWEALTH'S rate on amounts above $100 is substantially lower than the lawful rate usually charged.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months to pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.

JORDAN CONVERTIBLE COUPE. 1929 Great 8-in-Line. Here is a sporty car that's the last word for smart appearance and spirited performance. Roomy rumble seat. Wire wheels, side mounts, and every essential extra. A sensational buy at our price of $295.

STUTZ SEDAN. Late custom model with special Weymann body. The attractive maroon finish has not a mar on it. Equipped with wire wheels, side mounts, hydraulic shock absorbers, trunk rack, built-in winter front. Chromium plating and safety glass throughout. The body is unusually low slung, in the modern trend. Motor is A1. Specially priced at $495.

CHEVROLET ROADSTER. 1930 that really looks and runs as though it had never been driven a mile. Has rumble seat, windshield wings, and extras galore. The finish glistens like a new dollar and the upholstery appears unworn. This snappy Chev. is worth at least twice our special price. $295.

STUDEBAKER SEDAN, 1929 President 8, duco'ed a handsome maroon. It was owned by an officia. of this company who had it checked over every day by the head mechanic. We can assure you, therefore, that this car has practically the appearance and performance of a brand new model. Unusually well equipped.
